

Lion Outfielders Have Plenty of Speed, Power

By SANDY PADWE

(Second of a series on the Penn State baseball team, tomorrow the infield)

Good hitters, good speed and good defense.

A baseball coach couldn't ask for more and that's exactly what Penn State's Joe Bedenk has in his outfield this year.

Little Dick Landis, Tom Durbin and footballer Roger Kochman give the Lions three of the fastest outfielders anywhere while Zeke DeLong and Durbin supply the power and defense.

DeLong will start in rightfield where he did an outstanding job both at the plate and in the field last year.

The Lion junior was the number three hitter with a .368 batting average a year ago and he didn't commit an error in 23 games as the Lions rolled to a fourth place finish in the College World Series.

Leftfield isn't settled yet, but Landis appears to be the choice. The Lion captain split the 1959 campaign between third and left and Bedenk says he'll stay in the outfield if sophomore John Phillips can win the third base job.

If not, Bedenk may have to move Landis back to third and put Durbin, State's leading hitter (.393), in left. And that poses a big problem.

A pitcher by trade, Durbin is being counted on to take his place in the starting rotation once the season gets underway against Gettysburg here Wednesday.

Durbin is a whiz on the base paths and because of his speed he picked up quite a few infield hits last year.

Center field is wide open with Kochman, letterman Ron Rinker and varsity holdover Brad Davis battling for the job.

Kochman, best known for his 100-yard run against Syracuse last fall, has looked good in pre-season practice, but the Lion coaches aren't really sure of his offensive ability yet.

"I saw Kochman play Legion ball," said Bedenk, "and he looked like a real good ballplayer then, but we haven't been practicing that long to really tell."

last year, hitting only .149 but he ranks with the best defensively.

The Lions also have some good sophomore outfielders, namely Spencer McGraw and Jack Melchior. McGraw has a bullet arm and moves well in the field but his hitting is a question mark.

Rookie, 40, May Help Pittsburgh

By ED WILKS

Associated Press Sports Writer FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP)—When he was a kid, Diomedes Antonio (Tony) Olivo had to shut the barn door on his papa's cows before he'd lope into town and play baseball. Now he's a 40-year-old rookie with the Pittsburgh Pirates, who hope he can shut the door on the other guys as a relief pitcher.

Olivo is lean, but solid at 6-foot-1 and 195 pounds and what English he has is on the ball—fast ball, curve and slider.

He didn't start playing for money until he was 27. He got a tumble from the Chicago White Sox a year later. In 1955 he was with Havana of the International League for a few weeks, then was sold to the Mexico City Reds. A year ago, Cleveland had an option on him, but let it lapse.

Some of the Pirates who played winter ball got the brass interested in "an old left-hander who can throw like the devil." So the Bucs made a condition purchase.

With Ramon Mejias doing the interpreting, Olivo confessed to 40 years and no more. "I start when I am boy of five or 10 with pick-up teams at home in Dominican Republic at Guayubin.

"My papa have a ranch. When I put the cows away, I got into town to play."

Nieporte Takes Lead In Azalea Open Tourney

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—Tom Nieporte, 30-year-old Bronxville, N.Y., professional went on a nine-birdie spree to shoot a 64 and grab a three stroke lead in the first round of the $15,000 Azalea Open Golf Tournament yesterday.

He toured the 665-yard Cape Fear Country Club course in 32-32, eight under par, missing the competitive course record by one stroke.

For Sportsmanship

Lion Cagers Win Schoenfeld Award

Penn State yesterday was named winner of the Sam Schoenfeld Sportsmanship Award made annually to the collegiate basketball team that "has shown the highest degree of ethics and sportsmanship in the conduct of its basketball games."

The award, given by the Collegiate Basketball Officials Association, will be presented to Penn State coach John Egl Saturday at a luncheon in Leone's restaurant in New York.

University President Dr. Eric A. Walker and Athletic Director Ernest B. McCoy will accompany Egl.

State is the fourth team to win the award. Previous winners were Canisius, Massachusetts and NYU.

"I think the award speaks well for our boys, especially Wally Colender (State captain)," Egl said last night after hearing the news. "It's really quite an honor."

More than 100 schools along the Eastern seaboard were considered for the award which is made in honor of Sam Schoenfeld, the late president of the Collegiate Basketball Officials Association.

Egl's Lions got off to a poor start this year, losing five of their first six games, but they bounced back to finish the season with an 11-11 record.

Orioles Win on Homer

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Gene Woodling's two-run homer in the third inning was the winning blow yesterday as the Baltimore Orioles edged the Kansas City Athletics, 5-4.

Batting honors of the day, however, went to Norm Siebern of the A's who belted a homer and two doubles and drove in three runs.

Phakes Take IM Basketball Championship

By BOB KILBORN

The Phakes reign as the new all-university intramural basketball champions after their decisive 42-34 victory over Alpha Phi Alpha last night at Rec Hall.

Behind until mid-way in the third quarter, the Phakes put on a late rally, took a one-point lead and then poured it on to ice the game with three minutes left.

Harry Watson sparked the early splurge by Alpha Phi Alpha scoring eight of his team's first 18 points, mostly on a jump shot from the corner.

Dick Hoak and John Jacobelli combined to bring the Phakes within three at the half, 21-18. Hoak threw in a hook and two fouls and Jacobelli hit on two straight drives.

A fast break by Bob Pharoah and a drive by Hoak gave the Phakes the lead, 26-25, mid-way in the third quarter, but a twisting drive by Bill Johnson put Alpha Phi Alpha back into the lead, 27-26.

At that point, the Phakes began to click as Hoak hit another drive and a foul, and Bud Torris and Jacobelli ran up the score on fast breaks, drives, and fouls.

The Phakes were able to force Alpha Phi Alpha into making several mistakes on ball handling while hitting well on fouls to put the game out of reach.
