Student government candidates were asked questions about a one-page handbill on elections, the alternate system in Assembly and the reorganization of student government at The Daily Collegian's press conference yesterday.

The handbill was written by Alan Elms, "Froth" editor, and supported the Campus party.

The flyer accused student government of not representing the will of the students.

Peter Galie and John Brandt, Campus party candidates for SGA president and vice president, respectively, said that they were glad that someone had finally said exactly what he felt about student government.

Richard Haber, University party candidate for SGA president, said that "a great deal of the article is accusation and many students do not know what to believe about it."

In reply to a question on what effect the handbill would have on voting, Haber said that he thought it will lessen the number of persons who will vote.

"When people distrust student government they will lose interest and not vote at all," he said.

Galie maintained that the article might inspire some students to go to the polls. Someone who has never cared before may be prompted to vote this time, he said.

Discussing the reorganization of student government and its operation this past year, both parties agreed that it is generally a good system.

Haber said that the Assembly system could not be compared to the old Cabinet system. "This past year SGA has worked out most of its internal problems, and will be able to concentrate more on legislative duties in the future," he said.

Galie said that "with work and experience it will be fine. There are kinks in the alternate system but the present student government is a good basis with which to work."

On the alternate system, Brandt said that alternates help to make a more representative group.

Lion's Paw and transfer housing were discussed by candidates for SGA offices yesterday at a press conference held by The Daily Collegian.

The discussion on Lion's Paw, senior men's society, was initiated by John Brandt, Campus party candidate for SGA vice president.

He asked the University party candidates if they would accept a bid to Lion's Paw if they were elected.

Richard Haber, University party candidate for SGA president, said that Lion's Paw had nothing to do with the campaign or student government. "I know very little about it now and could not say until I found out more," he said.

Peter Galie, Campus party candidate for SGA president, said that he would not become a member of Lion's Paw if elected and offered a bid.

"Since it is a secret organization, one would have to join to find out about it. I would like to say now that I would not join," Galie said.

University party candidates maintained that they do not know enough about Lion's Paw to give an opinion, but that "if everything which has been said is true" they would not join.

Campus party candidates said that they feel Lion's Paw has a definite and bad influence on student government, and that they would not accept bids.

Brandt called Lion's Paw "an acting salesman of the administration."

"A secret society has no part in any government which represents people in an unintrusive manner," he said.

Candidates were also asked how they would have handled the transfer housing problem if they had been in office when it was brought up.

The University has ruled that all transfer students must live in residence halls unless they are affiliated with a fraternity or have another reason for not doing so.

Both parties agreed that the greatest mistake was in not notifying the students about the ruling until it had been passed.

Haber said that letters should have been sent out to let the students know about the issue.

Galie said that something could

Elms Takes Responsibility For 'Political' Handbills

Alan Elms, editor of "Froth" magazine, said last night that he alone takes full responsibility for the handbills that appeared throughout campus yesterday in which he took a personal stand against a student political party.

Although the opinion appeared under a "Froth" masthead of "Mug & Jester," the statement was in no way connected with the magazine itself. It was originally slated to appear in Froth but the senior board and the faculty advisor of "Froth" did not approve the page and had no knowledge of its distribution.

The $35 cost of the 1500 flyers were paid for by Elms. Elms said that he had not seen the final page proofs of the article and that the printers had neglected to put his name on it.

Elms said that the column is "a slam against the official stand of University Party, specifically the party platform." He added that he personally believes "some candidates running for office on the University Party ticket are as worthy of election as candidates of Campus Party."

"But on the whole I think University Party has taken a stand which is not in support of student will as a whole," Elms said.

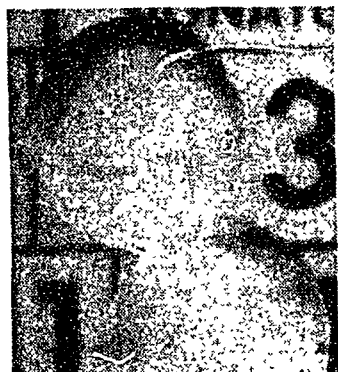

He also said that he thought "secret organizations such as Lion's Paw have no place in student government."

When asked why he printed the article Elms replied "that The Daily Collegian, Lion's Paw and other sources were suppressing information." He said he used the flyers as a means of expressing his personal views on student government.

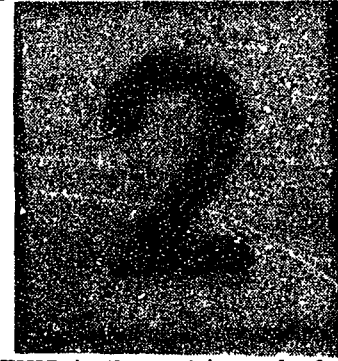

Stuart Barman, Howard Lincoln and Dale Peters, members of the Froth senior board, stated that "the publication, financing and distribution of the handbill were the personal and individual responsibility of Alan Elms and not of Froth." They said Elms was not acting in his capacity as editor of Froth in this action.

They added that the editorial policy of Froth has "traditionally been non-partisan" and will continue to be so. They said that Froth editorial statements are determined by the editor and the senior board as a whole, and "are designed to serve the interests of the entire student body."

In commenting upon the handbills, Leonard Julius, SGA president, said that parts of the article were "grossly untrue." He said that as far as he knew there had been no collaboration or bribes made with the administration.

Showers to Persist For Next 2 Days

Mostly cloudy and showery weather will persist for the next two days, but fair and warmer weather can be expected after that.

Rather heavy rain amounted to three-quarters of an inch late Sunday. This will serve to keep rivers and streams in this area on the high side, but no flooding is expected.

Today will be mostly cloudy and mild with occasional showers and a high temperature of 56 degrees. Tonight showers and cool weather are expected with a low temperature of 45 degrees.

West's Berlin Stand May Lead to War--K

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev warned yesterday that refusal to change the status of West-ern-occupied West Berlin "can lead mankind to the brink of war."

Reporting on his 11-day French tour to 17,000 Muscovites in the Sports Palace, he said disarmament is the world's foremost problem. But he concentrated his fire on the smoldering German issue. His talks with French President Charles de Gaulle will help in preparations for the summit conference in Paris next month. Khrushchev said. Yet he admitted difference with de Gaulle on major issues and showed no inclination of budging from positions rejected by the West.

"As for disarmament, which is the most important question facing the world today, I would say that our (his and de Gaulle's) opinions coincide," Khrushchev declared in the course of a home-coming speech in which he drew repeated applause.

He did not say how their views coincided. France has called unrealistic his plan to disarm the world in four years. A final communique in Paris Saturday said only that the two leaders agreed on the need of disarmament.

Khrushchev said the Soviet Union will do "everything for the solution of the question of a German peace treaty on a basis acceptable to the Western powers."

Alpha Delta Pi, Alpha Xi Delta, Delta Delta Delta and Gamma Phi Beta will compete in the women's group division.

Acacia, Phi Gamma Delta, Pi Kappa Phi and Tau Kappa Epsilon are the finalists for the men's group honors.

Sorority quartet finalists are Alpha Xi Delta, Kappa Alpha Theta, Kappa Kappa Gamma and Pi Beta Phi.
Fraternity quartet finalists are Acacia, Alpha Kappa Lambda, Tau Kappa Epsilon and Theta Chi.

Postponing the selection of the quartet winners to the Finals was a last minute change from the previously announced plan to select those winners at the preliminaries, according to Polly Berge, Sing co-chairman.

Thirteen sororities competed in the women's group preliminaries and 11 in the sorority quartet prelims. Ten fraternities competed in the male group prelims and 7 in the fraternity quartet contest.

Forty points will be given to the first place winners in the sorority and fraternity group divisions toward the over-all Greek Week trophy. Quartet winners will receive 20 points.

Second place in the group contest will carry 30 points and third, 20 points. Quartet runners-up will receive 15 points for second place and 10 points for third.

In addition, each group which entered the main Sing contest will receive 10 points and each competing quartet will be awarded five points.

The sing is the second event in Greek Week. Sunday, sororities and fraternities attended church in groups as a part of Greek Sunday which opened this year's events.

Tomorrow the 24 sororities and 53 fraternities participating in the program will cooperate as dinner partners in the Exchange Dinners. The award for the Outstanding Pledge and the fraternity pledge class with the highest scholastic average will be presented Thursday.

A bridge tournament will be held Friday, and Saturday all Greeks will cooperate in 38 community service projects. The week will conclude with the Interfraternity-Panhellenic Banquet Monday.
