

Family to Be Theme Of HomeEc Weekend

"Families Away from Home" clothing and textiles; "What It's Like to be a Freshman," given by Dorothy Houghton, assistant dean of home economics; and a panel discussion given by the Home Economics Student Council called "Dating Away from Home."

Every year this event is planned and produced by the students and faculty of the College of Home Economics. It is fashioned to appeal to the interests of high school students, visiting alumni, and professional people as well as students here at the University.

A highlight of the weekend will be a talk by Dr. Norbett L. Mintz, of the department of social relations at Harvard University, who will speak about "Psychological Effects of Surroundings." Mintz will consider the effects of room conditions on people.

A few of the programs planned especially for visiting high school students are: "What Teen-Agers Eat," given by Louise W. Hamilton, associate professor of foods and nutrition; "Date Duds," given by Eunice Deemer, instructor in clothing and textiles; "What It's Like to be a Freshman," given by Dorothy Houghton, assistant dean of home economics; and a panel discussion given by the Home Economics Student Council called "Dating Away from Home."

Tomorrow afternoon, students in home economics will present a fashion show in Schwab Auditorium entitled "Fashions Here and There." Students will model clothes which they have made in clothing and textiles courses.

An added attraction in the fashion show will be the participation of nursery school children wearing clothes made by coeds enrolled in children's clothing courses.
