This is the last in a series on the Penn State track team, today the Field Events.

Penn State's fieldmen, lacking in depth and experience day, April 20, the day spring rebut bolstered by some top-notch performers, may provide a cess ends. few surprises when the outdoor track season opens this weekend at the Quantico Relays.

"Of all the field events the javelin looks like our strongest and we are hoping to bring the others up to respectability," Lion mentor Chick Werner said. "The high jump also looks like a good event, but the field events will be the weakness of the track team this year.'

Regardless of some sore spots, Werner has three valuable point getters in high jumper Dick Campbell and weightmen Jim Schwab and Jon Musser.

But the Lions will be hurting in the shot put, with two sopho-mores, Ted Simon and Bill Snow the only serious candidates for heavy duty.

Prospects would have been brighter if former high school champs Andy Stynchula and Bob Hart hadn't decided to forego competition this year.

By playing for money in the Senior Bowl game in January, Stynchula automatically lost his status as an amateur. Hart decid-ed to devote his time to spring football.
