

Rebels Give Up In Venezuela

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Rebels led by a disgruntled Venezuelan general crossed the border from Colombia yesterday, seized the mountain city of San Cristobal and attempted to touch off a nation-wide revolution. They failed.

Rockefeller's Plans Stay Unchanged

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — New York's Gov. Nelson Rockefeller said yesterday his visit to this north central Pennsylvania region in no way means more than a campaign boost for his one-time college roommate.

"There has been no change in my plans," he told newsmen when asked if his appearance here meant more than help for Herman Schneebeli.

Schneebeli, a Williamsport automobile dealer, is the Republican candidate for Congress in a special election to fill the 17th District seat left vacant by the death of Rep. Alvin R. Bush, long time GOP leader. Bush died last December.

"I was invited in by the state committee," said Rockefeller. "I was glad to come in and help out Herm Schneebeli. He was my college roommate at Dartmouth and he is the kind of man we ought to have in politics."

Rockefeller arrived in his personal plane. The weather was sunny.

Despite Rockefeller's disclaimer, political observers still watched for signs that the governor might be willing to challenge Vice President Nixon for the GOP presidential nomination.

U.S. Flunks Airlift Test

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force and the Army agreed yesterday that the United States flunked last month's test of its ability to airlift large numbers of combat soldiers to distant trouble spots.

Lt Gen William H. Tunner, head of the Military Air Transport Service, said the Puerto Rican airlift test demonstrated that 90 per cent of MATS' fleet is obsolete.

"The present force," he told a House Armed Services subcommittee, "cannot meet the time limitations established for the airlift of Army forces."

Gen. Bruce C. Clarke, head of the Army's Continental Command, joined in Tunner's conclusion.

"The limitations of the majority of the present MATS aircraft seriously limit the size of U.S.

The army said the rebels were bottled up within hours and a group of 300 surrendered at first contact with loyal fighters.

Leaders of all sorts—political, labor and military—gave a massive show of support to President Romulo Betancourt's moderately leftist government.

Betancourt told the nation that if the rebels refused to surrender shortly he would put down "this criminal adventure without hesitation." He declared the government was sure to win.

Foreign Minister Luis Arcaya charged the insurgents were backed by Generalissimo Rafael L. Trujillo, dictator of the Dominican Republic and an old foe of Betancourt. Officials have often linked him with anti-government plots here.

"The hands of Trujillo are visible in this," said Arcaya. "Venezuela will take energetic and categorical decisions against this monster of the Caribbean."

Under the command of Jesus Maria Castro Leon, a former air force general who has been agitating against the government for almost two years, the rebels moved across the border from Colombia at dawn.

How they managed to organize in that country, a friendly neighbor to the west, was not clear, but the mountain areas provided excellent cover.

The rebel force proceeded 20 miles beyond the border to San Cristobal, a coffee center of about 50,000 people in the Andean foothills, 385 miles southwest of Caracas. They seized the barracks of the military garrison. The 400 soldiers thus were neutralized

Kennedy Speaks In W. Virginia

MONTGOMERY, W. Va. (AP) — Folks in the strongly Protestant coal mining sections of southern West Virginia got their first look yesterday at Sen John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.), a Catholic who has brought up the religious issue head-on in speeches elsewhere this week.

There was some doubt as to the vote-getting value of Kennedy's campaign visit. To a great extent, the audiences were too young to vote for Kennedy or anyone else in the May 10 presidential preference primary.

Kennedy and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn) will be on the ballot as rival candidates for the favor of Mountain State voters.

The result will not be binding on delegates to the Democratic National Convention.

At Oak Hill, Gauley Bridge and Montgomery, three of the first five stops, Kennedy spoke in high school gymnasiums. The audiences consisted of the student body in each case, with adults filling the space left over.

The theme of Kennedy's remarks in this section was about the food that is distributed in the mining areas and elsewhere. He said four million Americans depend upon surplus food distributed by the Department of Agriculture.

"But what kind of food is it?" he asked. "Flour, rice and corn meal — sometimes some butter, cheese and dry skimmed milk — and more rice and corn meal."

That diet, said Kennedy, "is not the basis of a decent existence."

The biggest crowd Kennedy faced was at Montgomery High School. Mayor D. P. Brown estimated there were between 1500 and 1800 in the gym. About one-fourth of them were adults.

Humphrey followed virtually the same itinerary as Kennedy on a tour the week before last.

Britains Seek Device For H-Bomb Boomerang

LONDON (AP) — A London newspaper, the Evening Standard, reported last night that Britain is working on a radar device that would turn the H-Bomb into a boomerang.

The device would explode enemy rockets over the country which fires them and thus turn the bomb into "the most devastating boomerang in history," the newspaper said.

In Washington Pentagon scientists said they could recall no development similar to the device described by the newspaper.

South African Police Arrest 700 Negroes

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Police and soldiers backed by armored cars arrested 700 Negroes yesterday in raids on native settlements outside major cities on South Africa's cape peninsula. More than a thousand have been seized in the last 48 hours.

The raids are part of the drive to squelch an abortive strike called by the outlawed African National Congress protesting the government's strict apartheid laws.

Failure of the strike brought demands from liberal white groups for an end to emergency regulations permitting raids on Negro settlements without search warrants and detention of hundreds in jail indefinitely.

Lands Minister Paul Sauer, acting government head, said Tuesday South Africa would "reconsider in earnest and honestly her whole approach to the native question."

But in a statement to Parliament yesterday, Foreign Minister Eric Louw rejected any basic changes in government policy, including racial segregation. He also turned down suggestions for a coalition government with the opposition United Party which proposed easing the Negroes' lot.

If there is any change, Louw said, Prime Minister Hendrik V. Verwoerd will make it. Verwoerd, recovering from two bullet let wounds inflicted by a white assassin April 9, probably will be well enough to take full charge of the government within a week, "even though he might have to do so from his bedroom," Louw declared.

Louw also said the government's decision to discuss its racial problems with U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold is not a departure from the viewpoint that there should be no interference in the domestic affairs of member states of the U.N.
