Rhee May Drop New VP-Elect

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — A former premier indicated yesterday night he expects President Syngman Rhee to dump his controversial vice president-elect as a step toward easing South Korea's grave internal crisis. This would necessitate a new election.

While 10,000 students staged new—but this time mostly peaceful—demonstrations in the port city of Inchon, the 85-year-old President was reported about ready to make his announcement. The vice president-elect, Lee Ki-poong, is a main target of student and popular indignation. Many believe his landslide election in mid-March, unseating opposition Democrat John M. Chang, was rigged. Swelling protests since then led to this week's "Bloody Tuesday," which brought death to at least 125, injury to many hundreds, and martial law to Seoul and four other major South Korean cities. The upheaval also brought a stern rebuke to Rhee from the United States, which has supported his rule.

Former Premier Y. T. Pyun, a onetime close Rhee associate, conferred with the President and then told a reporter he left "with a very hopeful impression," adding he expected an early announcement of what the President intended to do.

Mummers Refuse To Judge Floats

By BARB YUNK

The Mummers have broken their promise to judge the Spring Week float parade next Friday night, Spring Week Chairman Walter Caplan said yesterday.

The Mummers decided not to come, Caplan said, when the Spring Week Committee refused to compensate them for the pay they would lose in missing work to judge the parade. When the Philadelphia group judged the parade two years ago, they were compensated only for their traveling expenses, rooms and meals.

Caplan said in the original understanding the Mummers implied that they would come again this year for the same fee.

"What makes it worse is that they led us along for two months and then turned around and said no," Caplan said. "Every time I asked them about their fee, they just said that we'd work out some arrangements," he said.

Magistrate Elias Myers, who is in charge of the group, had originally promised that three men would judge the floats.

"We can't afford to pay that kind of money," Caplan said. "The money earned in Spring Week is supposed to be used for scholarships. We can't use it up in fees," he said. "That destroys the purpose of Spring Week," he added.

Downtown merchants will now act as the judges of the parade which will begin at 5:30 p.m. Friday. The group will line up at intervals according to category. Caplan said that the order of the categories has not been determined.

The floats, led by the AIM-Leonides float carrying the Miss Penn State candidates, will line up on Entrance Rd. They will start up Entrance Rd. and then turn right onto Pollock Rd. They will continue down Pollock and then turn left to Shortlidge Rd. From Shortlidge the parade will turn right onto College Ave. and continue up College to turn right onto Burrowes Rd. From Burrowes the floats will turn right onto Pollock Rd. again. The parade will end at the corner of Pollock Rd. and Shortlidge Rd.

The parade will receive partial film coverage by television stations in Altoona, Lancaster and Johnstown.

CAB Alters Flight Rule On Tickets

Students, faculty and administration members can now apply for one-way tickets on the SGA charter flight to Europe.

Leonard Julius, former SGA president, said yesterday that a change in the regulations of the Civil Aeronautics Board made this possible. This change was made within the last 10 days, Julius said.

Tickets may be purchased for either the trip over or the return trip for half the price of a round trip ticket. Julius said that enough applications have been received to ensure that the quota of 75 will be reached. This means that the cost of a round trip ticket will remain at the original price of $235.

Julius had announced last week that students and faculty and administration members could apply for their parents or wife, husband or dependent children even though they do not wish to go themselves.

Originally they could not apply for relatives if they were not going to apply for themselves.

Julius said the letter has been sent to the airlines confirming final arrangements for the flight which will leave from Idlewild Airport in New York June 13. The return flight will leave from Paris for New York on July 23.

All those who have made a deposit on the flight must pay the remainder of the cost as soon as possible, Julius said. However, applications will be accepted until the plane is filled.

BEGINNING TOMORROW we'll have the advantage of an extra hour of sunlight. The price—the loss of one hour of sleep tonight.

Daylight saving time will go into effect at 2 a.m. tomorrow in more than half the communities in the nation including State College. At that time official clocks will be set ahead one hour.

Many people won't wait until 2 a.m. to set their clocks ahead, but will change them before going to bed.

This year for the first time all of Centre County will go on DST at the same time and continue to observe it until late October.

The change in time will effect the schedules of many lines of communication. Bus and railroad companies have released new schedules which will go into effect on Sunday.

Tickets for Organ Concert To Be Available Tomorrow

Ticket distribution will begin at 1 p.m. tomorrow for the concert to be presented by Catherine Crozier, organ virtuoso, at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday in Schwab.

Sale of non-student tickets will begin Monday.

Miss Crozier will appear as the 16th presentation of the

Indie Workshop To Open at Inn

The first annual Leonides workshop conference will be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. tomorrow in the Nittany Lion Inn.

The theme of the conference will be "Coeds, Community and Cooperation, The Three C's of the Future."

Leonides plans to establish a more active women's program for the 67 per cent of University women who are independent, Beverly Cades, chairman of the workshop, said.

The discussion topics and moderators are: Leonides, Margaret Orchard, moderator; Community Living, Ann Farley, moderator; and Individuality Among Thousands, Maryann Ganter, moderator.

Artists' Series this year. In addition to Wednesday's concert she will present a masterclass at 3:15 p.m. Tuesday in Schwab. No tickets will be required for the workshop.

Miss Crozier has one of the largest memorized repertoires among concert organists of the day. Among the works she plays from memory are Bach's major organ works, as well as pre-Bach composers, the principal works of Cesar Franck, Liszt and Messiaen.

She also performs works by Alain, the Reubke Sonata, the Soweby Symphony, the Pastorale by Roger-Ducasse, Hindemith's organ sonatas (which she studied with the composer), the most important works of Dupre and Langlais, and a long list of works by living American composers.

In addition, she has in her repertoire a number of major concertos for organ and orchestra.

Wednesday's program will (Continued on page eight)

First Heat Wave To Continue Today

The first major heat wave of the season will push into its second day this afternoon as the mercury climbs toward the 85 degree mark.

No rain is expected for at least three days and possibly longer. This will intensify the drought problem which now exists in most sections of the state.

Today will be sunny and hot with a high temperature of 85. Clear and mild weather is due tonight with a low of 60 degrees.

Another hot day is in prospect for tomorrow as the mercury climbs towards an afternoon high of 86 degrees.

Special Assembly Meeting

There will be a special meeting of the SGA Assembly on Monday at 7 p.m. in 203 HUB. All representatives are required to attend.

'Equal Rights' Group Asked for Town

By MEG TEICHHOLTZ

A bi-racial human relations committee, to be organized by the State College Borough Council, may be the next step taken by the anti-segregation group of State College.

At a meeting last night the group moved to send a letter to the Council before its next meeting, suggesting that such a committee be instituted to "insure equal rights for all members of the student body and town's people."

The Borough Council next meets on Monday, May 2.

The original purpose of last night's meeting was to discuss the matter of segregation with the barbers of State College, all of whom were invited. None of the guests appeared at the meeting, at which time the group decided to determine their future course of action.

Joseph Faulkner, instructor in sociology, who proposed that the group approach the State College Borough Council, said that many other university towns have similar committees "to insure students equal treatment."

The Human Relations Committee motion will be presented to an open meeting of the entire anti-segregation group at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow in the Helen Eakin Eisenhower Chapel for final approval.

Should the Borough Council refuse to take action on this proposal, the group would send a letter to Governor David Lawrence, detailing the issue. Copies of this letter would be sent to the metropolitan newspapers in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

Picketing of Bunn's Barber Shop had been called off Thursday in deference to last night's planned discussion and a talk that Jesse Arnelle, past president of the student body, had with Bunn on Thursday.

The latter proved fruitless when Arnelle reported "we got nowhere."

The anti-segregation group also will propose tomorrow that petitions be drawn up in favor of the formation of such a committee.

These petitions would be circulated among the student body and the town's people.

In regard to the barber shop is (continued on page two)

Glee Club to Give Concert at Schwab

The Penn State Glee Club, composed of more than 50 voices, and the Varsity Quartet will present a concert at 3 p.m. tomorrow in Schwab.

The Glee Club will be under the direction of Frank Gullo, associate professor of music. Gullo received his bachelor of science and master of arts degrees in music at New York University.

The program will open with "America—Our Heritage" by Helen Steele; "The Last Words of David" by Randall Thompson; "I Hear a Voice A-Praying" by Huston Bright; "Holiday Song" by William Schuman; "O Bone Jesu" by Palestrina; "Fair Maid, Thy Charm and Loveliness" by Hans Hasler; and "Carnival" by Louis Ganne.

Following a variety of popular songs by the Varsity Quartet and songs by the Hi-Lo's, a comedy group of 16 men, the Glee Club will continue with "The World Is Mine Tonight," featuring Henry E. Deemer, of Manheim, as tenor soloist.

Continuing, the Glee Club will present "Seventy-Six Trombones" from "The Music Man" by Meredith Willson; "Shadow March" by Daniel Protheroe; "Doney Gal," "Poor Lonesome Cowboy" arranged by Norman Luboff; "Hi Ho Nobody Home" by Ray Charles; "Lil' Liza Jane" arranged by Don Gardner; "Students Marching Song" by Sigmund Romberg; "Eleazar Wheelock" by Marie Wurm; and "Hail to Pennsylvania State" by Raymond T. Fortunato, director of employe relations.

The Glee Club has appeared at Tyrone and they will make two appearances at the University. Their Spring schedule also includes concerts at Selingsgrove, New York City, Tamaqua, Allentown and Gettysburg.

There will be no charge for admission.
