

Baseballers Lose, Play Scarlet Today

Special to The Collegian
EASTON, Pa., April 29.—The rise and fall of the Penn State baseball team ended today with a big thud when Lafayette beat the Lions, 9-1, here.

The loss was the fourth for the Lions in ten games and all but knocked them out of the running for the District II playoffs which lead to the College World Series.

The Lions finished fourth in the Series last year, but they hardly looked like a team that lost only three men through graduation.

Lafayette's Bill Evanko scattered eight hits to pick up his second straight win while Penn State's Marlin Biesecker took the loss, his first of the year. He has two wins.

Biesecker, who pitched three innings of relief against West Virginia Wednesday, went six innings and gave up six runs on nine hits and two walks. Bob Arner and Lee Rentzel mopped up for State.

The Lions will wind up their road trip Saturday when they play another strong team, Rutgers, at New Brunswick, N.J. Eddie Kika (2-3) will hurl for State.

Lafayette wasted little time getting to Biesecker, scoring twice in the first inning on a walk to third baseman Fred Farzenagen, singles by Bob Kessler and Bill McDonald and a sacrifice fly by Bobby Lewis.

They added another in the third and three each in the sixth and eighth.

Penn State scored its only run in the ninth inning when first baseman Bill Benton blasted a home run to right field. It was the second homer of the year for Benton who doubles as a pitcher.

Larry Fegley kept up his fine hitting for State with three safeties in four at bats and his average moved to .475.

If there was anything encouraging at all for Lion fans, it was the performance of Zeke DeLong who broke out of a season long slump with three hits.

DeLong, a .368 hitter last year, was hitting 161 before the game, but his three hits boosted his average to .228.

Lafayette, also having a sub-par year, has a 6-5 record after beating the Lions.

Following Saturday's game with Rutgers, State returns to Beaver Field for a two-game homestand with Bucknell Wednesday and Maryland next Saturday.

Stickmen Will Meet Scarlet Knights at 10

By DEAN BILLYCK

Fully rested after a ten-day layoff, the Penn State lacrosse team swings back into action at 10 this morning against perennial powerhouse Rutgers on Beaver Field.

The Lions will be looking for their second win of the season today against two losses.

After winning their opener at Loyola, Earnie Baer's boys lost to Navy, 17-3 and Cornell, 12-3 and today they'll be battling a team that holds nine straight wins in an action packed series.

The Scarlet Knights come into today's game with a 5-3 record, having beaten Harvard, New Hampshire, Colgate, Stevens and Yale. They've lost to Navy, Army and Johns Hopkins, three of the top teams in the country.

Last year Rutgers was ranked fifth in the nation, and the Knights haven't had a losing season since 1951. This year, however, coach Al Twitchell has been rebuilding after losing his three top scorers.

This year's big gun is Ed Wiesmeier, who scored 22 goals in 1959. Together with Tony Pisano and Dick Allio, he gives Rutgers a strong front line.

The midfield centers around co-captain Bill Fleischman and senior letterwinner Vin Tognio. Sophomore Herb Schmidt holds down the third slot.

Rugged Dick Pencek anchors the Scarlet's stubborn defense. Bob Clark, a 6-4, 210-pound standout, and Dick Abidin, a regular two years ago, round out the defense.

Junior Ted Koch who is big (6-5) and fast is among the nation's top goalies and should prove a stern test for the Lions' offense.

Baer will send essentially the same lineup into today's battle that started the first three games. The only possible exceptions are at attack and goal.

Honorable mention All-American Jim Kane suffered a recurrence of a knee injury received in the Loyola game and may not be able to start.

If his knee fails to respond to treatment Hank Schilling will take over.

In the goal there is a toss-up between senior John Castella and soph Jim Irwin.

The rest of the lineup will be the same with Gordon Bennett, the team's leading scorer, and Dick Hammond at attack.

Dick Bullock, Mike Raiser and Lou Meir form the Lion midfield with Dave Erwin, Tom Greenlee, and Andy Lockhart on defense.
