Lion captain Jerry Carp met little Nick Temple in the second match. Carp started strongly and seemed to have the match in hand until Temple began clicking with his tricky drop shots. Temple came back to win the last two sets and the match, 2-6, 6-2, 6-2.

Middie Dave Haughton followed suit with a win over Lion junior Dick Ludwig. The Lion junior didn't have the shots to cope with the speedy Midshipman and lost, 7-5, 6-2.

Steady Johnny Blanck had his streak broken at three by Bill Moore in the fourth match, 6-3, 6-3.

Lanky Garry Moore broke into the Lion singles lineup for the first time this year but big Bill Manning ruined the junior veteran's debut by taking the fifth match, 6-1, 6-1.

Lion coach Sherm Fogg pulled a surprise by starting John Krall in the sixth singles slot. Krall had been out of action for nearly a month with an elbow injury and played only a week of practice.

Krall's game was still a little rough after his inactivity and the plucky Lion senior was beaten by Mike Willsey, 6-2, 6-1.

Fox and Temple teamed up to down the Nittanians' Carp and Moore in the first doubles match, 6-3, 6-3. John Quinn and Navy's Moore followed up with an easy 6-2, 6-2 win over Baker and Blanck.

Krall and Ludwig put up a good fight for the first set of the final doubles match, but the Middies' Rick Fluegel and Willsey put on the pressure and completed the whitewash job, 7-5, 6-3.

Brown Improves, Olympic Hopes Rise

On a chilly, overcast day in Philadelphia's Franklin Field last Saturday five sprinters from all corners of the United States took their places in the starting blocks. The Penn Relay crowd of 40,000 hushed as the elite of sprintdom, Bobby Morrow, Dave Sime, Bill Woodhouse, Ray Norton and Ira Murchinson got set for the gun.

One hundred meters and 10.5 seconds later it was all over. Norton, winning by a decisive margin, established himself as the United States' No. 1 Olympic candidate in the sprints.

The other four-fifths of what the Franklin Field announcer called the greatest sprint field ever assembled in the United States did not look impressive in a losing cause.

In fact, their performances gave evidence that there may be some new blood representing the U.S. in the sprints at Rome this summer.

Murchinson seems to be out of the Olympic picture all together. The spunky little sprinter has had heart trouble recently, and was down to 94 pounds from his regular running weight of 148.

Sime and Morrow have been troubled by bad legs, and their inconsistent efforts the past year have cast a shadow over their Olympic status.

Woodhouse, who was named the Most Valuable Athlete in the Relays last year, ran hard but couldn't touch Norton.

If these four track greats can't carry the load in Rome, who will? One name comes immediately to mind—San Jose State's Bob Poynter. And if you like dark horse candidates, don't count out Penn State's Bobby Brown.

On that same overcast afternoon in the college championship 100-yard dash Brown bolted from the blocks like he was going into orbit and after 60 yards Poynter was choking on his dust. At 80 yards Poynter began to creep up on Brown, and at 90 yards he was hitting on all four cylinders and Brown was beginning to slow down. Then Poynter caught him at the wire in one of the most thrilling races of the day.

Poynter finished second to Norton in the National Collegiate Championships last year and there's no doubt that he is Olympic material.

Brown, a relative newcomer on the scene, is flirting with stardom. A Penn State hero, he has yet to win the big one that will project him into the national limelight.

But the Lion junior is improving steadily and come June it is conceivable that he will surprise just about everybody and win an Olympic berth.

"You don't think that we're out here practicing just for Pittsburgh, do you?" queried Lion track Coach Chuck Werner. "We've got a long way to go but we're trying."

Brown was not an outstanding runner in high school and his best time was an unspectacular 10.1. But he has improved rapidly at Penn State and now, on a good day is almost unbeatable in the short dashes (50 and 60).

His starts are his strong point. But he still has trouble with the longer distances like the 100 and 220.

After a certain distance my toe drags and then I can't lift my knees as high," the Lion junior said.

Fast Starts by New Cards Make Trades Look Good

NEW YORK (AP) — Chalk up a home run for the St. Louis Cardinals in the player exchange league. They probably wouldn't swap their trading record for anything.

The Cards obtained four key players for Manager Solly Hemus during the winter and now are saying "so solly" to San Francisco, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, the clubs with whom they transacted.

St. Louis acquired Daryl Spencer and Leon Wagner from the Giants for Don Blasingame. Spencer is batting .351 with 5 homers and 12 runs batted in. Wagner has a .302 average with four homers while Blasingame is wallowing at .214 with only three doubles in the extra base hit department.

In another deal, the Cards picked up pitcher Ronnie Kline from Pittsburgh for Gino Cimoli. Kline beat his old mates Monday night for his first decision. The Pirates, who lack pitching depth, have gotten little mileage from Cimoli, a .125 hitter so far.

Carl Sawatski, obtained from Philadelphia for Bobby Gene Smith, has been a big surprise for the Cardinals. He shows a .381 mark with two homers after 21 at bats. Smith has been to bat only five times with two hits.

Otherwise, all the hoopla over the winter and spring trades has turned out to be no big deal so far. Only a half dozen or so are doing well with their new clubs.

Hal Smith of the Pirates is batting .435 after 23 at bats. Pittsburgh obtained him from Kansas City. Roger Maris, another former Athletic, is hitting .387 with three homers for the New York Yankees. Minnie Minoso, back for another whirl with the Chicago White Sox after a stopover at Cleveland, is at .333 with 13 RBI and three homers.

Johnny Callison, with the White Sox part of last season, is batting at a .341 pace for the Phillies. Lee Walls of Cincinnati, a Chicago Cub in 1959, is at .345. Bobby Thomson, another former Cub, is hitting .297 with two homers for Boston. Norm Siebern, the ex-Yankee, has a .293 mark and four homers for Kansas City.

Collins Tops Palmer in Playoff

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Bill Collins won the Houston Classic Golf tournament playoff yesterday by two strokes under Arnold Palmer. Collins shot a 3-under-par 69.

Collins, the big blond belter from Crystal River, Fla., seeking his first tournament victory of the year, bounced back from a 2-stroke deficit in the first nine holes. He banged two birdies on the incoming nine while Palmer took a bogey to go with one birdie.

Palmer, golf's biggest money winner, was seeking his sixth tournament victory. But the Lionier, Pa., pro strayed too far on his shots to the green yesterday.

Collins and Palmer tied at 280 for 72 holes in the tournament that ended Monday. They met yesterday over 18 holes to determine first money of $5,300. Second money is $3,400.

A crowd of about 2,000 turned out to watch the playoff over the 7,122-yard Memorial Park course where Collins and Palmer had staged a glittering duel for first place Monday. The two players got half the gallery fees yesterday.

Jack Fleck of Los Angeles had 281 and got third money of $2,200 in the tournament.

Palmer birdied the first hole with a 9-foot putt and made it a 2-stroke margin on four where Collins missed a 3-footer and took a bogey. But on No. 7 — the really crucial hole for Collins — the big fellow 2-toned his tee shot within four feet of the pin and sank it for a birdie two. Palmer, however, was in a sand trap and pitched past the hole. So he had a bogey and the match was all even going through nine.

They parred 10 and 11 but on 12 Collins was off the green while Palmer was in the edge. Palmer stroked to the left and left himself a 3-foot putt. Collins putted within 3 inches of the pin. Palmer missed his putt for a bogey and Collins was down for a par. That was the turning point. Collins increased his lead to two strokes on 14 where Palmer was on 20 feet away, and 2-putted while Collins drilled within five feet and ran it down for a birdie.
