

Job Opportunities Exceed Applicants

By KAREN MILLER

There are more jobs in every area available to students graduating from the University this year than there are students to fill the jobs, George N. Leetch of the scholarships and placement office, said.

Over 650 companies have interviewed University students this year, and since February 1960 an average of 1000 interviews per week have been held. Graduates of the University are sought by companies from all over the United States, including Alaska and Hawaii.

Appointments for companies to interview University students are filled until the end of spring. "This is an indication of the high respect given to Penn State," Leetch said.

Retail workers, engineers and physical scientists are three of the groups most in demand. Some of the jobs that are difficult to find are in public relations, advertising and jobs in foreign countries.

Raymond H. Amalong, head of the teacher placement division of the University, said that vacancies in positions for teachers increased from 5342 to 13,557 between January 1960 and March 1.

He said that one of the reasons for the great number of vacancies is that many schools will not settle for less than top talent to fill their teaching positions. Thus there are many vacancies, but still many teachers seeking jobs.

Amalong said that there is now a marked shortage of language and social studies teachers. There is also an exceptional demand for teachers in chemistry, physics, mathematics, girls' physical education, vocal music and reading.

Prof Elected Science Officer

Dr. George F. Deasy, professor and acting head of the Department of Geography, was elected a vice president of the Pennsylvania Academy of Science at its 36th annual meeting in Williamsport.

Lipp Gives Statement On Letter

Dorothy J. Lipp, dean of women, last night clarified her statement made in a second letter to the 160 women chosen to participate in the junior resident staffing program next fall.

Dean Lipp said "the women received a second letter because we felt, from the tone of an article which appeared in Friday's Collegian, that some people might have thought the meeting scheduled for tonight had been cancelled."

Dean Lipp's statement in the letter read, "We hope you will ignore the article in Friday's Collegian concerning the staffing of junior residents in residence halls for next year."

The article stated that the WSGA committee for the residence hall counseling was dissolved because of differences in the program as seen by WSGA and Dean Lipp.

An initial letter had been sent early last week to the 160 women asking them to attend a meeting in order to obtain complete information on the responsibilities of the junior resident program.

Miss Lipp said that during the meeting at 6:15 tonight in 10 Sparks, she will explain the program and attempt to dispell the misunderstanding and misjudgment that surrounds it.

Filing of Census Urged

Students who received the second state-extended census forms have been urged by the Census Bureau to fill out the forms and file them. The forms are to be sent to Altoona.

Borough Police to Hold Bike Check Tomorrow

The State College Borough Police will hold a bicycle inspection at 6:30 p.m. tomorrow at the east end of lot 46. Inspection will continue until 9 p.m.

According to a Borough law, any bicycle which is operated in the Borough must be equipped with a horn or bell and must have a light if the owner rides it in the Borough at night.

Five O'Clock Will Present 'Pass' Today

Five O'Clock Theatre will present "The Pass," written by James T. Miller, junior in arts and letters from State College, today in the Little Theatre in the basement of Old Mam.

Judson Sanderson, graduate student in theater arts from Kingston, N.H., who is directing the play, describes it as a "thinking man's play filtered to him through imagery and symbolism."

The part of the man who came through the pass will be played by Walter Dairan, junior in arts and letters from Easton. In the pass, the man meets an old woman, played by Vicki Stupp; her daughter, played by Joanne Coffman and a tramp, played by Randy Wilson.

Sanderson said that the play is very different and that the management should not be held responsible for the audience's reaction.

The technical direction of the play is being done by Royal Brown, sophomore in psychology from Ogontz Center.

Welder Burned Inside of Manhole

A welder, working on a University construction project was burned in an explosion which occurred about 8:30 a.m. yesterday.

Gerald Stroup, 45, of Burnham, was treated for burns of the face and hands yesterday at the Centre County Hospital.

Stroup, employed by the Keating Co., went down into a manhole in front of Tyson Building at Shortlidge and Curtin Rds. to do some welding.
