

Braun to Give Chapel Sermon In Protestant Worship Service

Rev. Theodore Braun, United Church of Christ chaplain at the University, will speak at the Protestant service of worship at 9 a.m. tomorrow in the Helen Eakin Eisenhower Chapel.

Music for the service will be supplied by the Meditation Chapel Choir, under the direction of James Beach. They will sing the anthem "Jesu, Joy and Treasure" by Buxtehude. The organist will be Miss Nancy Hadfield.

Yale Prof To Speak At Schwab

Dr. John Oliver Nelson, professor of Christian vocation at the Yale Divinity School, will be the speaker at the Protestant service of worship at 10:55 a.m. in Schwab Auditorium.

Dr. Nelson's topic will be "Beyond Urbanity, Simplicity."

The University Chapel Choir, under the direction of Willa Taylor, will provide the music for the service. The choir will sing "Fair-est Lord Jesus" from Munster Gesangbuch as introit, and "I Will Not Leave You Comfortless" by William Byrd as anthem.

George Ceiga, the University organist, will play "Meditation on 'Brother James' Air" by Darke as prelude. The offertory will be "I Will Sing My Maker's Praises" and the postlude "Praise the Lord With Drums and Cymbals," both by Karg-Elert.

Dr. Nelson received his bachelor of arts degree from Princeton University, his bachelor of divinity degree from Edinburgh and McCormick Seminaries, and the doctor of philosophy degree from Yale University.

For the past 10 years, Dr. Nelson has served as head of the Commission on the Ministry for the Federal Council of Churches.

ICCB to Issue Frosh Cards

The Inter-College Council Board decided at a recent meeting that individual name cards will be printed for each entering freshman in the fall term.

The name cards will be similar to those worn by engineering students during Customs Week last semester.

Each college will have a separate colored card so as to be easily identified.

ICCB also decided to investigate the possibility of holding an All-University Career Day similar to the one held two years ago.

Stephen Brown, ICCB president, also announced that the council will attempt to coordinate student council meetings next semester so that all councils will be meeting in the same week.

Luncheon to Honor 5 Local Authors

Five local authors of literary works will be honored today during an author's luncheon to be held at the Nittany Lion Inn by the University's Regional Library Conference.

Authors to be honored are Edward J. Nichols, professor of English composition; Anne Marbut, wife of Frederick B. Marbut, professor of journalism; John Barth, assistant professor of English composition; Lois Hyslop, professor of Romance languages; and Francis Hyslop, professor of art.

The conference, conducted by Continuing Education Services, is a joint meeting of the Central Pennsylvania College and Reference Section and the Juniata-Conemaugh District units of the Pennsylvania Library Association.

TIM Outstanding Mother Gets Award at Dance

Mrs. Richard A. Strand, the wife of a University instructor of electrical engineering, received the Outstanding Mother Award from the Town Independent Men at their Mother's Day Dance last Saturday night.

The award was announced by Philip Haines, TIM president.

The Strands have three children, two girls age 5 and 8 years and a 9-month-old son. They live at 1005 S. Pugh St., State College.

Sumner Medical Reports Acquired by University

By KAY MILLS

Medical reports revealing the true physical condition of Charles Sumner, pre-Civil War senator from Massachusetts, are among the papers recently acquired by the Pennsylvania Historical Collection, Wallace F. Workmaster, curator, said.

The letters are among the records of Robert Montgomery

Smith Jackson, Civil War surgeon. They were given to the library by two of Jackson's grandchildren, Mary Wigton Reeve of Clearfield and Robert J. Wigton of Warriors Mark.

Many Southerners claimed that Sumner was feigning injury as the result of a beating he received on the floor of the Senate from Preston Brooks, representative from South Carolina. Sumner's fellow abolitionists pointed to him as a martyr for their cause.

In two letters, one to the other U.S. Senator from Massachusetts, Jackson revealed that Sumner actually had suffered from injuries to the head and spinal column. Sumner had gone to Jackson's Allegheny Mountain Health Institute for rest.

Jackson felt that Sumner could have been completely cured had he remained at the hospital longer.

"The entire incident aroused a good deal of passion," Workmaster said. "Along with John Brown's raid, the Kansas issue and the Dred Scott Decision, it contributed to the cause of the Civil War."

Also included in the Jackson collection are field notes and maps which were made while Jackson participated in the first geological survey of Pennsylvania.

A copy of Jackson's "The Mountain" is included. "The book purported to be a scientific study of the Allegheny Mountains from Maine to Georgia," Workmaster said. "Instead, it is propaganda for his mountain health center."

Related to the book are letters from Ralph Waldo Emerson, Henry David Thoreau, Bronson Alcott and Theodore Parker. There is also a letter to Henry James from Emerson introducing Jackson.

Civil War newspapers form a portion of the collection. During the Civil War, Jackson was in charge of a large hospital on Lookout Mountain in Tennessee. He died in January 1865, probably as the result of overwork, fatigue and infection, Workmaster said.

Pollock Halls To Be Named

Fourteen houses in the men's Pollock residence halls will be given names of state counties in the dedication ceremonies to be held next fall. The counties were chosen on the basis of undergraduate enrollment.

Each house will have its own study lounge where a map of the state will be placed in a showcase along with the history, map and photographs of the county.

Counties which will be honored are Mercer, Lancaster, York, Chester, Lycoming, Lebanon, Northampton, Washington, Beaver, Fayette, Northumberland, Mifflin, Cumberland and Clearfield.

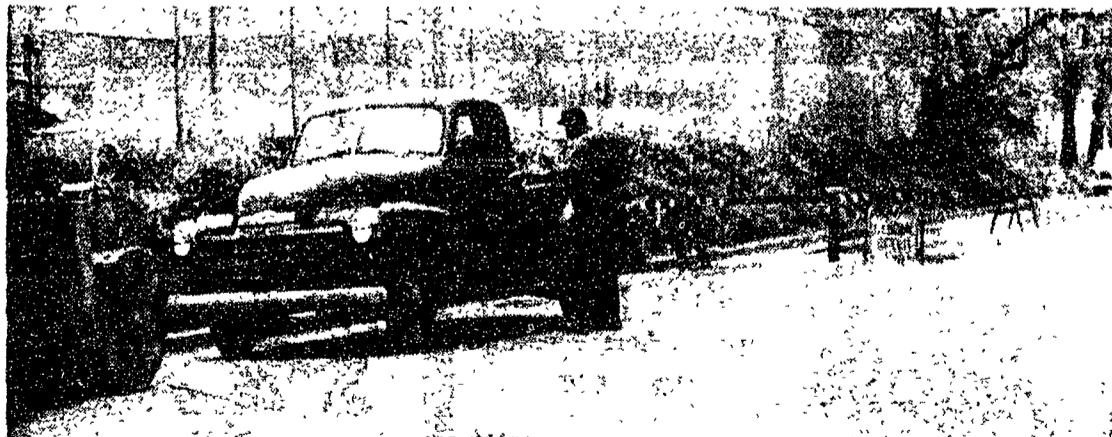

Snowed--

Theodore Simon, a sophomore in business administration, has developed a keen interest in this problem. He strongly believes that a university bookstore could provide a savings of several dollars each semester to all the students. He is so convinced of this that he is undertaking a one-man campaign to get a bookstore for Penn State at his own cost.

Simon has mailed 168 letters to university bookstores at other colleges and universities. In these letters, he has requested information about the operation of their bookstores and how they overcame the resistance and opposition to their establishment.

The answers to these questions will provide the background for the strong case that Simon will present to the SGA and the University Senate in support of his plan this autumn.

But there's still the town merchants which will be screaming "free enterprise." To them I say this: What is more characteristic of the American way than a student-run organization designed to save money for college students.
