'K' Refuses to Negotiate Unless Ike Apologizes

PARIS (AP) — The first summit conference in five years floundered yesterday on Soviet bitterness over the U2 American spy plane incident.

President Eisenhower and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev traded charges with all the chill of the cold war's bleakest days.

Each accused the other of torpedoing the session.

There was only a glimmer of hope that Eisenhower and Khrushchev might be reconciled sufficiently to permit continuance of the Big Four meeting, called to consider the big issues menacing world peace.

At yesterday's first meeting of the Big Four, Khrushchev tensely refused to negotiate with the U.S. chief executive unless the President apologized for the flight of the intelligence plane shot down May 1 over the Soviet Union.

He withdrew his invitation to Eisenhower to visit Moscow June 10, saying that the Russians might not now be able "to receive the President with proper cordiality."

Khrushchev called for a delay of six or eight months in the Big Four session—a delay which would convene it near or beyond the end of Eisenhower's second four-year term.

Eisenhower grimly accused Khrushchev of coming to Paris armed with an ultimatum and with "the sole intention of sabotaging this meeting, on which so much of the hopes of the world have rested."

He promised there would be no more U.S. spy flights over the Soviet Union, but announced he came to Paris to seek agreements to end all forms of espionage. He said if it proved impossible to come to grips here with that and other issues threatening world peace, he planned to submit to the United Nations soon a proposal for creation of a U.N. aerial surveillance to detect preparation for attack.

The President challenged the Soviet premier to private two-way talks to save the conference.

But a source close to the French delegation said, "It would be extremely difficult to see how the summit conference could continue."

A meeting which was to have dealt with tensions threatening the very existence of civilization never really got under way. Indeed, a Soviet spokesman denied that the gathering of Khrushchev, Eisenhower, President Charles de Gaulle of France and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain was a summit meeting at all. "The meeting never began," the Soviet spokesman said.

No further sessions were scheduled.

In an atmosphere of gloom unrelieved by the splendor of the Elysee Palace, the site of the gathering, the four leaders of the world's great powers sat through

Atwater Named Head Of PoliSci

Dr. Elton Atwater, professor of political science, has been named head of the Department of Political Science for the period July 1, 1960, to June 30, 1963.

He succeeds Dr. M. Nelson McGeary who has held the post for the past three years.

In announcing the appointment, approved at the weekend meeting of the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees, President Eric A. Walker explained that appointments to the post rotate each three years.

Atwater was named acting head of the department on Feb. 1, 1956, filling out the three-year term of Dr. Harold F. Alderfer who had resigned from the post to accept a position with the Federal government.

Atwater was named to the faculty in 1950 and prior to that was associate professor of international relations at American University. He served as director of the Foreign Service Training Program of the American Friends Service Committee and was assistant professor of political science at Elmira College, Elmira, N.Y.

On leave from the University in 1957-58, Atwater served as associate director of the Quaker Program at the United Nations, a program conducted by the American Friends Service Committee of Philadelphia and the Friends World Committee of London.

Showers Predicted To Return Today

Warm weather is expected to remain for a few days, but the rain will be quick to return to this area.

Today will be partly cloudy and warm with showers and thunderstorms probable by late afternoon. The high temperature will be near 80 degrees.

Showers will persist into tonight, but will tend to dissipate late tonight. The overnight minimum will be about 60 degrees.

Mostly cloudy and warm weather is likely again tomorrow with afternoon and evening showers and thunderstorms.

Auto Crashes Involve Two

Two students were involved in automobile accidents this weekend.

A car operated by John Erickson, junior in arts and letters from Elmira, N.Y., collided with an auto owned by the Armstrong Cork Company at 5:55 p.m. Saturday in front of the Alpha Sigma Phi house on Fairmont Avenue.

The Armstrong Cork car, a 1960 Ford sedan, was crushed between Erickson's auto and a tree, police said.

Erickson escaped from the crash uninjured, police said.

In another accident, Bruce Hall, sophomore in electrical engineering from Shamokin, was admitted to the Ritenour Health Center after his car collided with one operated by David J. Ferguson of State College at 8:30 p.m. Saturday.

Plays, Poets Set For Artist Series

"J.B.," the Archibald McLeish play which for two seasons has been playing to capacity Broadway audiences, will be one of the fifteen presentations by the University Artists' Series next year.

Marcel Marceau, Errol Garner and the Robert Shaw Chorale have also been booked for next year's series, Mrs. Nina Brown, committee chairman, announced yesterday.

Two performances of "J.B." have been scheduled for Sunday, Oct. 30.

Marcel Marceau will appear on Sunday, Nov. 20. The noted French pantomimist will perform in Recreation Hall.

Errol Garner will appear with bass and percussion accompaniment to give a rendition of his jazz and blues piano style. His performance is scheduled for Sunday, March 19 in Rec Hall.

The Robert Shaw Chorale will start off the new year on Sunday, Jan. 8 with a concert in Rec Hall. The next month will find the Pittsburgh Orchestra in Rec Hall on Feb. 12.

The National Symphony Orchestra has been scheduled for Sunday, Oct. 9. Jaime Laredo, violinist, will appear with the orchestra in Schwab.

Leon Fleisher, pianist, will follow the symphony on Wednesday, Oct. 19 in Schwab.

Fischer-Dieskau, baritone, will appear Thursday, Nov. 10 in Schwab.

The last concert before Christmas vacation will be given by the Societa Corelli, chamber orchestra, on Thursday, Dec. 1 in Schwab.

Merce Cunningham and Dance Company with David Tudor and John Cage will follow the Robert Shaw Chorale and the Pittsburgh Orchestra on Saturday, Feb. 18 in Schwab. Garner's March 19 appearance will be the next event on the schedule.

Victoria de Los Angeles, soprano, will appear on Friday, March 24 in Schwab. The National Ballet of Canada will perform in Rec Hall on Sunday, April 9.

Andres Segovia, guitarist, will appear Thursday and Friday, April 20 and 21 in Schwab.

Library Deficient In Several Areas

By BEV CADES

Any university worthy of the name must have a distinguished library," Ben Euwema, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, said last Thursday in reference to a special report on the library presented to the faculty of the college.

The report points out that the library is not adding to the prestige of the University because of the gaps and deficiencies in its holdings.

Standard works of both major and minor writers within all fields are lacking, states the report. Specific text lacks are Weber's "The City," Ward's "Dynamic Sociology," and Herber Spencer's "Social Statics."

The report also points out that many of the standard editions in the library are incomplete. The "Shakespeare Variorum," the "Archives Diplomatiques," and "Works of Vivaldi" are representative examples.

The report further states that severe limitations are caused by gaps in reference materials. In the field of Medieval Studies, the library holds fewer than 35 per cent of the reference titles listed as basic tools.

Gaps in Russian holdings and deficiencies in music works also contribute to the inadequacy of the library's holdings, the report discloses. Gaps in Russian works include "Krasnyi Arkhiv," "Ruskii Vestnik," and "Vestnik Evropy." The "Complete Works of Beethoven" and the "Complete Works of Brahms" are among the music deficiencies.

The assets and weaknesses of the periodical department are also discussed in the report.

The library holds 65 per cent of 1008 journals annually surveyed by Publications of the Modern Languages Association for its yearly bibliography of scholarship in fields of language and literature. However, the library holds only 15 per cent of 136 journals devoted to mathematics and related subjects, states the report.

Serious deficiencies in the area of newspaper holdings are also pointed out in the report.

Indiana Discusses ROTC Issue

By KAREN HYNCKEAL
Third of a Series

Go to your left, your right, your left . . . and you are sure to find someone arguing the pros and cons of compulsory ROTC. This time to your left, geographically speaking, to Indiana University.

There, too, ROTC has been a main topic for discussion. The Faculty Council has been investigating the program in recent months which prompted John Dean, a reporter for the Indiana Daily Student, to begin a series of five articles.

Dean explained that basic ROTC has been compulsory at Indiana University although the University is not a land-grant school and is not required to offer military instruction.

Dean said that the compulsory program seemed to be based mainly on the University's feeling of obligation during World War I and on its "tradition as a compulsory ROTC school."

How do the students at Indiana feel? According to Dean, the students have moved several times to abolish the system but the Board of Trustees has not discussed the program since it was first established.

Dean was also concerned with the feelings of other schools and his investigation netted the following results:

Cornell and University of Idaho students are among many who have protested compulsory ROTC.

As for the Big Ten schools, Northwestern is the only one without any ROTC program. Of the other nine, only Minnesota and Michigan have voluntary ROTC, with Wisconsin trying it as a two-year experiment starting next fall.

Returning to ROTC at Indiana, Dean could draw no conclusions as to what effect the policies of other schools would have on his
