

Most Students to Receive Room Assignments Soon

All room assignments for men, nearly all assignments for independent upperclass women and perhaps half of the sorority assignments will be made before the end of the semester, James S. Kline, head of assignments, division of housing, said yesterday.

"By the end of this week we expect to have assigned 1400 upperclass men, out of the 1700 applications which we have received," Kline said. There have already been 255 room cancellations from upperclass men.

Coeds Will Compete In Bike Derby

If you notice an unusually large number of bicycles on campus this week, you'll know that coeds are practicing their peddling for Saturday's bicycle derby.

Bicycle Derby Day is sponsored for the first time this year by The Daily Collegian. It will begin at 2 p.m. Saturday in the parking lot between Old Beaver Field and the Eisenhower Chapel.

But practice may not help participants in this bicycle battle. Team relays and individual events have been planned with an eye toward fun rather than skill alone. Spectators will have just as many laughs as Bicycle Derby participants.

An obstacle race will appropriately show some of the obstacles a Collegian reporter meets when trying to track down a story on campus. Riders may find that getting through Old Main is harder than they thought.

The winner of the Bluebook Race will be the rider who can put off reaching the finish line the longest. And coeds trying to travel at a snail's pace without deviating from a given lane can provide some fun for everyone watching.

All groups who have registered for the Bicycle Derby have received final information. Groups should send their $2 entry fee to Lohi Neubarth, 2764 Cooper, by tomorrow.

At present 1000 upperclass women have been assigned rooms, out of the 2300 applications which will eventually be received from upperclass women. Six sororities have not yet turned in their room assignments, Kline said.

Those upperclass women who do not receive their assignments before exams will receive them at their home address during the summer. Out of 1440 applications received from freshman women, 950 have been assigned.

"We expect to have not nearly as many empty rooms in the residence halls next year as we did this year," Kline said. This year there was an unusually large number of cancellations from upperclass women, he said.

Women will be assigned to South Halls, Atherton, Simmons, McElwain, Pollock 2, 3 and 4, Irvin and McKee. Men will be assigned to Nittany, Pollock A, B and C, North Halls and the remainder of West Halls.

For the 1960 summer sessions, men will be housed in McElwain if they desire combined housing and food service. If they desire only housing, they will be assigned to Graduate or North Halls.

Women will be housed in Simmons if they want housing and food service and in Graduate Hall if they choose housing without food service.

Seniors Enroll In Alum Group

More than 300 seniors have signed up for membership in the Penn State Alumni Association to date, according to Theodore Haller, chairman for the annual alumni membership drive.

A total of 78 of 189 class agents have reported on their progress, Haller said. Agents who have not done so are urged to turn their results in to the Alumni Office, 102 Old Main, he said.

Special rates for seniors will continue through the day of commencement, June 11, Jesse Jangjian, chairman for the agents, said. The rates have been set at $2. Any students who missed the personal solicitation are asked to take or send their membership fee to the Alumni Office by that time, she said.

AIM to Distribute Handbook Early

Distribution of the Association of Independent Men's Handbook should begin at pre-orientation counseling early this summer, Ralph Levy, editor-in-chief, said.

The booklet contains sections on AIM government and independent social functions and activities. Photographs of these activities as well as campus scenes will be included.

2000 copies will be printed. Members of the staff are Peggy Nagy, who is in charge of the cover, Paul Craska, Earl Gershenow, Robert Landis, Sandra Levy and Theodore Simon.

Cheerleaders Named For 1960 Season

Penn State's newest crop of cheerleaders was chosen Sunday night in stiff competition at Recreation Hall.

Those chosen are Judith Cheadle, freshman in arts and letters from Harrisburg; Lillian Leis, freshman in home economics from Clairton; Sally Simonson, freshman in home economics from Yardley; Robert Banks, freshman in chemical engineering from Harrisburg; William Miller, freshman in engineering from Point Marion; and Ronald Thompson, freshman in hotel administration from Mount Lebanon. Alternates chosen are Barbara Watchorn, freshman in arts and letters from Mount Lebanon and Grier Cooper, freshman in business administration from Pittsburgh.

The new captain of the cheerleaders was also chosen. He is Charles Hodges, junior in electrical engineering from Drexel Hill.

Cheerleading practice for 105 girls and 15 boys who tried out began May 1. Practices were held in front of Old Main and in Rec Hall. Each cheerleader, who was assigned groups of about twenty freshmen, taught various cheers and songs which were learned for the try-outs.

Indiana Discusses--

(Continued from page one) own school. At Indiana, as at Penn State, the final decision is up to the Board of Trustees. Dean seemed to feel, however, that Indiana University will not be a voluntary ROTC school — "Not for some time yet, anyway," he said.

And thus, this spring many students and Universities have again been tossing compulsory ROTC back and forth in lengthy and often heated verbal battles.

But what do the military heads have to say? The Secretary of Defense and the Department of the Army as well as Penn State officers will be heard from in the next article.
