

Infirmary Service To Improve—Glenn

By CAROL KUNKLEMAN

"We are on the threshold of an enormous improvement in health service," Herbert R. Glenn, director of the Ritenour Health Center, told the Faculty Luncheon Club yesterday.

In a talk explaining the origin of college health services and their functions, Glenn said that student health aid is

Hat Council Reorganizes, Wants Unity

"We will be known as the Hat Society Council whether or not the Women's Hat Societies are represented," Stanley Foster, council president, announced during the reorganization meeting of the group last night.

"It's up to you," he told the presidents and secretaries of the six men's hat societies represented.

Since October 11, 1959, the organization has functioned under the name of Men's Hat Society Association. The council disbanded after the women's hat groups withdrew.

"Women's Hat Societies are virtually under the Dean of Women's office," Donald Clagett, secretary-treasurer, said. "When they see that true spirit is not directed by anyone, but comes from the students, they will return to the council," he said.

Clagett's statement expressed the general sentiment of the group. Samuel Minor added that the men's societies need the council to coordinate their tappings and establish projects, whereas the girls don't.

In other business, officers were elected for the new year. Frank Milus of Parmi Nous was chosen president; Richard Pigossi of Androcles, vice president; and Dean Wharton of Delphi, secretary-treasurer.

Projects were announced for the coming year. The council will usher at the state-wide high school track meet and at the Artists Series.

Panhel Holds Tea

A tea for State College High School senior girls, sponsored by the City Panhellenic Association, was held last night in the Atherton lounge.

Two representatives from each sorority on campus served as hostesses for the tea.

Mrs. Arthur K. Anderson, advisor to the Alpha Omicron Pi sorority on campus and past national president of the sorority, spoke on "The Values of Sorority Membership."

A display of the badges of the national sororities on campus was shown.

Journalism Certificates Presented

Dennis Malick and George McTurk, 1959 editor and business manager of The Daily Collegian, received certificates of service at the Journalism Student Association Recognition and Awards Banquet Sunday night.

Five advertising majors received Interstate Advertising Managers' Association Awards for advertising presentations made for a local merchant to their hometown newspapers. The first place award was won by Richard Trotter; William Wassell placed second; Brad Davis, third; and Mary Cunningham, fourth. Harold Deisher received an honorable mention award.

Richard Paxton, president of Alpha Delta Sigma, men's professional advertising fraternity, won the Eyles Award. The award is presented by Charles Eyles, president of the Foley Advertising Agency in Philadelphia, to the ADS member who contributes the most to the chapter. Paxton will go to New York City today to participate in Inside Advertising Week.

The Outstanding Senior Award of Sigma Delta Chi, men's professional journalism fraternity, was presented to William Jaffe, 1959 managing editor of The Daily Collegian. The SDX Most Promising Sophomore Award went to James Karl.

Journalism Student Association Scholarship Recognition awards were presented to students who had made the dean's list twice consecutively. Winners of this award were Karl Bopp, Ian McNett and Ellen Sulkis.

Ten new members were initiated into Kappa Tau Alpha, journalism scholastic society, at the banquet. Members must have completed at least five semesters to be eligible. Grades in all courses are considered; at least 10 journalism credits are necessary for eligibility.

New initiates are Carol Blakeslee, Collegian City Editor; Janet Durstine; Patricia Gavan; Norman Goldstein; Geraldine Grube; Edwin Hirschmann; Roberta Levine, Collegian Copy Editor-1959; Ian McNett; Annabelle Rosenthal, Collegian Copy Editor-1960; and Gloria Wolford, Collegian Assistant Editor-1960.

Team Places 2nd In Chess Tourney

The Varsity Chess Team placed second in the Pennsylvania Intercollegiate Chess Team Championship held in Pittsburgh.

In the four team tournament, Penn State won two games and drew one, as did the University of Pittsburgh. Penn State placed second, however, because Pitt beat the University of Pennsylvania by a slightly greater margin.

Carnegie Tech won one game and lost two. Penn lost three games.

Mathematics Fraternity Initiates Nine Members

Pi Mu Epsilon, professional mathematics fraternity, initiated nine new members recently.

Membership is awarded to students who have shown an interest in mathematics and have completed advance courses with a good record.

The initiates include Josiah Alford, Eugene Francis, Richard Llorens, James A. Miller, Lauren Pryor, Samuel Shore, Dorothy Smeal, Robert Sproule and James Tietjen.

EUROPE MADE SIMPLE: NO. 2

Last week we discussed England, the first stop on the tour of Europe that every American college student is going to make this summer. Today we will discuss your next stop, France—or the Pearl of the Pacific, as it is generally called.

To get from England to France, one greases one's body and swims the English Channel. Similarly, to get from France to Spain, one greases one's body and slides down the Pyrenees. As you can see, the most important single item to take to Europe is a valise full of grease.

No, I am wrong. The most important single item to take to Europe is a valise full of Marlboro Cigarettes. Oh, what a piece of work is Marlboro! If you think flavor went out when filters came in, treat yourself to a Marlboro. The filter works perfectly, and yet you get the full, zestful, edifying taste of the choice tobaccos that precede the filter. This remarkable feat of cigarette engineering was achieved by Marlboro's research team—Fred Softpack and Walter Fliptop—and I, for one, am grateful.

But I digress. We were speaking of France—or the Serpent of the Nile, as it is popularly termed.

First let us briefly sum up the history of France. The nation was discovered in 1492 by Madame Guillotine. There followed a series of costly wars with Schleswig-Holstein, the Cleveland Indians, and Captain Dreyfus. Stability finally came to this troubled land with the coronation of Marshal Foch, who married Lorraine Alsace and had three children: Flopsy, Mopsy, and Charlemagne. This later became known as the Petit Trianon.

Most Frenchmen were able to walk under card tables...

Marshal Foch—or the Boy Orator of the Platte, as he was affectionately called—was succeeded by Napoleon who introduced shortness to France. Until Napoleon, the French were the tallest nation in Europe. After Napoleon, most Frenchmen were able to walk comfortably under card tables. This later became known as the Hunchback of Notre Dame.

Napoleon was finally exiled to Elba where he made the famous statement, "Able was I ere I saw Elba," which reads the same whether you spell it forwards or backwards. You can also spell Marlboro backwards—Orobolram. Do not, however, try to smoke Marlboro backwards because that undoes all the efficacy of the great Marlboro filter.

After Napoleon's death the French people fell into a great depression, known as the Louisiana Purchase. For over a century everybody sat around moping and refusing his food. This torpor was not lifted until Eiffel built his famous tower, which made everybody giggle so hard that today France is the gayest country in all Europe.

Each night the colorful natives gather at sidewalk cafes and shout "Oo-la-la" as Maurice Chevalier promenades down the Champs Elysees swinging his Malacca cane. Then, tired but happy, everyone goes to the Louvre for bowls of onion soup.

The principal industry of France is cashing travelers checks.

Well sir, I guess that's all you need to know about France. Next week we'll visit the Land of the Midnight Sun—Spain.

Next week, this week, every week, the best of the filter cigarettes is Marlboro, the best of the non-filters is Phillip Morris; both available in soft pack or flip-top box.

originally an American institution. Very few European schools have established health programs.

"Since World War II, more prestige has been added to this work," he reported. Until 1945, first-class personnel were not employed by colleges with health centers, he added.

Tracing the history of student health service, Glenn said that the spread of tuberculosis in colleges was the impetus for starting health centers early in the 19th century. Health service began because many college students contracted the disease due to poor housing facilities and improper food.

Reviewing the University's program, Glenn showed a photostatic copy of a list which had employees' names and the $1.00 fee they paid for a doctor to visit the campus. The list was dated 1859, when the University was called the Farmers' High School.

"We are probably the first school that added medical aid to its services," Glenn said. He added, however, that in 1910 the University of California was the first college to provide a health service as we know it today.

A health center was established in 1912 when a scarlet fever epidemic broke out on campus. The first infirmary was in the Electrical Engineering building. "Students called the rooms the 'Devil's Den' and the 'Bright Angel,'" Glenn said.

When Joseph Ritenour became director in 1915, he continued, the infirmary was moved to Beecher Cottage; in 1929 the central wing of the present center was built and in 1957 the east and west wings were added.

Presently, the Center's staff includes 11 doctors, a dentist, a pharmacist, 20 nurses, five technicians and five service people. "We also have a health physician and operate our own ambulance," Glenn said.

Glenn stressed that although the services of the center are provided primarily for the students at the University, the staff is always willing to help anyone in an emergency, whether he is a town resident, faculty member or visitor.
