

Quantico Sliderule Says Nittanies, Jaspers Even

By JIM KARL

If the Quantico Marines are an accurate measuring stick, Penn State and Manhattan should be fairly evenly matched when they hook up in a dual meet on the Jasper's home grounds tomorrow.

Quantico, one of the top track powers in the nation, ripped the Lions two weeks ago, 74-57, and last week they smothered Manhattan, 85-55. Discounting an added event in the Marine-Jasper meet — the hop-step and jump — the score would have been 80-51, only six points off the Marine-State score.

In the running events Manhattan has sprinter, John Fernandez; hurdler, Henry White; and a flock of quarter and half milers who could give the Lions trouble.

Fernandez will be trying to prevent State's Bobby Brown from becoming a double winner for the third consecutive week. Two weeks ago Brown beat Quantico's Lion 440 star Dick Hambright, sidelined by an ankle injury last week, apparently is fully recovered and will see action in the 440 and mile relay tomorrow. If Hambright's ankle acts up again, Bobby Brown may replace him in the relay.

Walt Fillman in the 100 and pulled a mild surprise by nipping ex-Villanova sprinter Ed Collymore in the 220.

Then last week against Pitt he won the 100 going away and nosed Panther Mel Barnwell in the 220. His time of 20.8 against Barnwell was well under the Olympic qualifying standard of 21.4.

"By reputation Fernandez was a great high school runner, a 9.5 or 9.6 man," Lion Coach Chick Werner said yesterday.

In the Quantico meet the promising Jasper sophomore won the 100 in 10 flat, over Fillman but was edged by Collymore in the 220. Collymore's time was 21.5 with Fernandez right behind in 21.6.

White, a fifth place winner in the IC4A's, is one of the better hurdlers in the East. He should give Bob Szeyller, IC4A 220 low hurdles champ, a tough time in that event.

Art Evens, Kyle Courney, and Roland Colineo give Manhattan a strong nucleus in the middle distance events, but the Jaspers reportedly lack depth in the 440.

IC4A shot put champ Joe Marchiony, broad jumper Bob O'Brien and high jumper Frank Carroll are the top Jasper fieldmen.

Carroll has done 6-6 plus and should give Lion record holder

Dick Campbell some stiff competition. O'Brien jumped 22-10 against Quantico for second place honors behind Charlie Latting, 23-2.

Lion Mel Ramey tied Latting for first place in the State-Quantico meet with an effort of 22-2½.

Marchiony will be in a class all by himself tomorrow. One of the best shot putters in the nation, Marchiony won the IC4A indoor title this year with a heave of 57 even. This broke the record of 56-6, set by Al Blozis of Georgetown in 1941.

Blozis' record was the longest standing mark in the IC4A books until Marchiony stepped in. Penn State shot putters Bill Simon and Bill Snow are still a long way from the 50-foot mark, and chances are they won't reach it in the near future.

Moran Attempts to Crash 4-Minute Mile in Coliseum

A crowd of about 50,000 is expected to witness Ed Moran's mile duel with Aussie Herb Elliott and Hungarian born Laszlo Tabori tonight in the 20th annual Los Angeles Coliseum Relays.

For the second year in a row the former Penn State great will attempt to break the 4-minute mile on the grass carpet of the Coliseum.

Last year Moran ran a 4:09 on the Coliseum turf to finish a disappointing third behind Bill Dellinger of the United States Air Force and Jerome Walters of the Southern California Striders Club. The race was billed in the East as one in which Moran would crash the 4-minute barrier.

The Penn State grad student did a lot of running in indoor invitationals this year and on one occasion, the Washington Star Meet, he set a world record when he toured eight laps in 4:08.3 over an indoor flat track.

Later in the season he ran a 4:04 at the Boston A.A. Meet to finish second behind former Illinois Star Phil Coleman. It was the fastest indoor mile he had ever run.

Outdoors he set a new meet record at the Quantico Relays by winning the Butler Invitational Mile in 4:04. Two weeks ago in a race sanctioned by the A.A.U., he accompanied runners from Penn State and Quantico at Beaver Field in an effort to meet the Olympic Qualifying standard of 4:02.

Fighting a 12-mile an hour wind, he finished in 4:05, but Lion Coach Chick Werner said that if weather conditions were better Moran would have crashed the barrier.

His two biggest rivals at the Coliseum, Elliott and Tabori, have both broken four minutes. Elliott holds the world record at 3:54.6 and last week Tabori ran a mile leg of a relay in 3:59.0. —Jim Karl

Off-Season Puzzles Southpaw Ace, Kikla

By SANDY PADWE

Everyone seems to have the answer to Ed Kikla's troubles with the exception of one person—himself.

Suffering through one of those "off seasons" that frequently befall pitchers, Kikla feels that he actually hasn't been doing as bad as most people say.

A close look at the record books proves his point. Even though he has a 2-5 record, Kikla has recorded 56 strikeouts in 51½ innings and has a 3.05 E.R.A.

Last year when he posted a 9-1 mark, the Lion southpaw had a 1.46 E.R.A. and 76 strikeouts in 80½ innings.

Poor fielding, both by Kikla and his teammates, have caused his downfall more than anything this season.

Miscues by his teammates led to Kikla's losses against Villanova and Colgate while his own inability to field bunts hurt in the Maryland game two weeks ago and the Temple loss Wednesday.

"I looked up on one of those bunts against Temple," Kikla said, "but I don't know what happened on the other one."

Asked what he thought his major problem was this year, the junior fireballer said he couldn't pinpoint it to one thing.

"I don't think I've lost anything from last year, but I've been having a little trouble with my curve. It might be that when I throw my curve hard I jerk my arm. I just have to work on it," Kikla said.

With only three games left including a twinbill at Pitt tomorrow, Kikla already is looking forward to next year.

"It seems that this season I just can't do anything right, but I expect to do a lot better next year," he said.
