

'Dead Week' Brings DZ, Pi Phi Campus to Standstill Tie For Derby First

By ANN PALMER

It's quiet, the mall is empty, the SGA office and the HUB Assembly room lack their characteristic buzz. What has happened? Has everyone vanished into thin air? Of course not! It's Dead Week.

Collegian To Publish All Summer

While weary students take a vacation, the Collegian will continue publication of all news affecting the University throughout the summer months in the semi-weekly Summer Collegian.

The Summer Collegian will be published every Tuesday and Friday from June 14 through Sept. 2. It will be distributed on campus and mailed anywhere in the country for the subscription price of $1.

Subscriptions may be made by sending name, summer address and $1 to The Daily Collegian, Box 261, State College, or by stopping at the Collegian office in Carnegie Building.

The Summer Collegian will carry campus news, national and international wire news, features, editorials, columns, cartoons and the same regular coverage as The Daily Collegian.

Twenty-four issues will span inter- mid- and post-sessions. Students interested in working on the editorial or business staff of The Summer Collegian may contact the editor at the Collegian office after 4 p.m. daily or at UN 5-2531.

For those of you who are unfamiliar with this term, it is the period of time immediately before the beginning of the examinations. Various extracurricular groups on campus are urged to participate in as few activities and hold as few meetings as possible.

Dead Week is sponsored by the Freshman Council and is supported by the Women's Student Government Association.

This period of little campus commotion will continue until Saturday, the first day of examinations, and will give everyone a chance to cram for those fast approaching exams.

Recently the Freshman Council sent out approximately 60 letters to organizations on campus. Eleven have replied that they will participate fully in the Dead Week program and others have said that they will participate as completely as possible, which means a few but not many meetings to attend.

Campus organizations which will support fully the Dead Week program are SGA, Business Administration Council, Freshman Advisory Board, Delphi, Mineral Industries Council, Hillel Foundation and Phi Chi Theta.

Sororities which have said they will give complete support to the program are Phi Sigma Sigma, Phi Mu, Sigma Delta Tau and Kappa Delta.

AEC Research Grant

A grant of $17,557 from the Atomic Energy Commission will be used by Dr. Karl Gingerich, assistant professor of chemistry, for research on high temperature properties of titanium and zirconium phosphides and related refractory materials.

The rains came, the bikes went an' fearless riders drove on through the storms.

When the showers ended and the soaking score sheets had been collected the judges announced that Pi Beta Phi and Delta Zeta sororities had tied for overall first place in The Daily Collegian's Bicycle Derby Day held Saturday.

Undaunted (though slightly dampened) by the whole affair, Drowning Denny Malick, fearless former editor of the sponsoring paper, sputtered that a runoff is tentatively scheduled for 6:30 p.m. tomorrow.

It will be a team relay race held on Pollock Rd. between the dead end signs near the Mall in a space commonly referred to as Penn State's Gaza Strip.

The tie occurred because Pi Phi took two first places in the 8 O'Clock and the Deadline Races, worth 25 points apiece, and Delta Zeta took two firsts and a second in races requiring less team participation. They piled up 20 points for the Bluebook Race, 10 points for the Pinmate Race and 15 points for the Paperboy Race giving them also a total of 50 points.

Winners of the individual events were:

Eight O'Clock—Pi Beta Phi, first; Gamma Phi Beta, second; and Alpha Xi Delta, third; Bluebook—Delta Zeta, first; Alpha Chi Omega, second; and Alpha Epsilon Phi, third. Paperboy—Delta Gamma, first; Delta Zeta, second; and Gamma Phi Beta, third. Pinmate—Delta Zeta, first; Zeta Tau Alpha second and third. Deadline—Phi Beta Phi, first; Alpha Xi Delta, second; and Delta Gamma, third.

Complete details on the runoff will be published in tomorrow's Collegian.

Major Biddle Will Speak At Dedication of Wagner

Maj. Gen. A. J. Drexel Biddle, adjutant general of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, will speak at the dedication of Wagner Building at 2 p.m. Thursday.

The building, constructed by the General State Authority at a cost of nearly $1.2 million, has been named for the late Lt. H. Edward Wagner, a University honor student and student leader who was killed in action in France in 1944. It will provide facilities for the Army, Navy and Air Force ROTC programs at the University.

Among the participants in the dedication will be the late Wagner's brother, Karl B. Wagner, also a University graduate, of Austin, Texas. He will present a plaque, the work of the sculptor, Horton Smith, for the foyer of the new building.

Biddle, who served as minister to Norway, ambassador to Poland, and interim ambassador to France as well as in other posts with the diplomatic service, has been the Adjutant General of Pennsylvania since 1955.

Dr. Eric A. Walker will speak on the naming of the structure. Maj. Gen. J. C. Frank, a graduate of the University who is now with the US. Army Reserve Center at Harrisburg, will also speak.

A. J. Caruso, executive director of the General State Authority, will present the building to the University, and J. B. Long, of Blue Bell, as president of the Board of Trustees, will accept the building.

Dusinberre Talks on Highway Deaths

By CAROL KUNKLEMAN

"Public safety agencies deplore but don't seem to understand public apathy toward safety legislation," observed Dr. R. K. Y. Dusinberre, Rit-enour Health Center physician, speaking on fatality rates on our highways to the Faculty Luncheon Club yesterday.

Offering a solution towards solving this problem, Dusinberre listed three areas which account for the public's attitude: First, there are obvious inconsistencies in the methods used by safety agencies. "The public isn't going to support safety," he said, "if truck weights are being increased and speed limits are also being raised."

Second, continued Dusinberre, there is a confusion of interest between the public and the private concern.

"No driver wants to sacrifice his personal interest for public protection," he declared.

Third, Dusinberre said, this conflict of interests between public and private concerns has been blurred over the years.

Citing as an example the fact that Harold Curtis, president of the General Motors Corporation, was also head of a safety committee for President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Dusinberre said that we must expect public apathy if these "contradictions" are present in our society.

"The modern highway is a men's club," Dusinberre declared. "Traffic represents man's interests and reflects his personality, especially in his use of speed," he said.

The 68 million men drivers do not believe women are interested in safety, he told the group. Women are appealed to because they are organized in clubs and civic groups, Dusinberre said.

Sommerfeld to Speak

Edna Sommerfeld, assistant dean for Commonwealth campuses and continuing education in the College of Home Economics, has been invited to speak at a school meeting in Baltimore, Md., tomorrow.
