'60 Civil Rights Plank May Cause Party Split

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A bitter battle over a strong civil rights plank shaped up at the Democratic National Convention yesterday.

Stern-faced Southern delegates entered a closed session of the convention's 109-member Resolution Committee all primed to speak their mind about the plank, which was approved Sunday night by a 20-member subcommittee.

The Dixie attitude was expressed in the crisp comment of one of their leaders, Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. of North Carolina—"I cannot accept it."

The plank pledges the Democratic party to use the full powers of the federal government to end racial discrimination.

It commits the party to enactment of legislation empowering the attorney general to seek a civil injunction against those accused of employing discriminatory practices.

The plank also has a kind word for the sit-in demonstrations staged in the South in protest against Negroes being barred from eating places. These words galled the Southern delegates.

Ervin and Charles Block of Macon, Ga., also a member of the committee, said they probably would file a minority report on the civil rights controversy. They stood ready to take the fight to the convention floor if they failed in efforts to get the committee to soften the plank.

Headed by Rep. Chester Bowles of Connecticut, the committee moved its meeting place to a new hotel for the second time in two days in an effort to hide from newsmen and others interested in its proceedings.

Anticipating sharp debate on the civil rights controversy, the committee prepared for a long session. Bowles had expressed hope the group would approve the full platform Monday in preparation for submission to the convention Tuesday.

Ike Requests Plane Report

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — President Eisenhower called on the State and Defense departments yesterday for a full report on Soviet allegations it has shot down another U.S. plane.

Press secretary James C. Hagerty said at the summer White House that until the President has received the report no government official will have any comment on the Moscow announcement.

The Soviet Union said yesterday that 10 days ago it had brought down a U.S. Air Force reconnaissance plane which had been reported missing in the arctic.

The Moscow announcement charged a violation of Soviet airspace and said two of the six-jet RB47's crew were captured after parachuting. The other four are dead or missing.

Army's football team will appear at Penn State's Beaver Stadium in 1961. The Cadets last played at University Park in 1957.

Finished Business Points to Party Fun

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Most of the delegates, if not the candidates, are having a lot of fun at the Democratic convention, but it appears now that the real business was done long before anybody left home.

The real business, of course, is to choose the party's candidate for president.

It is generally believed now that Sen. John Fitzgerald Kennedy of Massachusetts already is the choice, although the formal voting doesn't start until Wednesday. How so?

Well, Kennedy won seven straight state primary elections. His band wagon was oiled months ago. His lieutenants, with precise timing, were the smoothest of operators.

This, in short, is a technique of the jet age.

If they do, the national convention — in the old-fashioned sense of looking over the candidates at the convention site, of bargaining and maneuvering there — is finished.

The main business will have been completed before the first badge, button and banner is printed.

But a convention has another function.

It is to assemble some 10,000 politicians and their mates in a pleasant city, far from home in most cases. There they put on funny hats and red-white-and-blue costumes; whoop and holler in hotel corridors, glad-hand their best friends and worst enemies, make speeches, see the sights, and have a high old time for about a week.

Castro Recovering From Pneumonia

HAVANA (AP) — Prime Minister Fidel Castro, ill with a pulmonary infection and being treated with antibiotics, was reported resting comfortably yesterday.

He told a television audience Sunday night it was just a matter of "getting some rest." He promised he would be completely well by July 26, the anniversary of his successful revolutionary movement.

Government officials said they had no fresh official information yesterday about his condition and newspapers and radio stations said they were assuming there would be no more formal bulletins about it. The one read Sunday before a disappointed rally said Castro was unable to appear because of a pulmonary infection. Doctors said they thought this pneumonia.

Parking space, at a premium in the area of Penn State's former football stadium, no longer will be a problem at new Beaver Stadium. Ten-thousand spaces will be ready for opening day, 1960.

Congo Nation Appeals to UN To Curb Riots

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States yesterday alerted troops for possible duty in the mutiny-torn Congo, but left the decision to use them up to the United Nations.

The fledgling African republic has appealed to the U.N. for help in restoring order. Top U.S. officials said tough American infantry troops, already alerted in West Germany, could be rushed swiftly to the Congo — if the U.N. decides to intervene.

But, it was clear from cautious statements that the Eisenhower administration did not want to take the lead in the emergency. Authorities feared the Soviet Union might twist the action into a sign the United States wanted to snuff out the independence of the 12-day-old African nation.

Mexico Denies Action

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Foreign Minister Manuel Tello said yesterday two Mexican congressional leaders did not speak for the government when they asserted last week that Mexico would side with Cuba in its dispute with the United States.

Their views do not represent government policy, Tello said in an official statement aimed at clearing up a situation that has caused tension between the United States and Mexico.
