

University Wins Citations In Public Relations Field

The University won an unprecedented five citations Tuesday in the national honors competition of the American College Public Relations Association.

Scientists Attempt To Make Graphite Out of Carbon

Scientists at the University are seeking methods of producing graphite from carbon.

The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission since 1954 has been supporting the project and for the current year has provided a grant of $6,248.

Dr. Philip L. Walker, professor of fuel technology and chairman of the Division of Mineral Technology, and Dr. C. R. Kinney, professor of fuel technology, are conducting the study.

They said that synthetically made graphite is needed to supplement the supply of natural graphite used by industry for such things as electrodes and crucibles.

The Atomic Energy Commission is especially interested in the project because of the use of graphite as a moderator in atomic piles and reactors.

23 Campus Net Courts Available for Students

Several tennis courts are available for student use on the Penn State campus.

There are eight courts near Recreation Hall on Curtin road. Eight more are on Pollock road across from the new Pollock Residence Halls. Four courts are located below Recreation Hall behind the fraternities on Burrows road.

The largest group of courts—thirteen—are near the Nuclear Reactor in back of the Ice Rink.

About 10,000 years ago, the time the Ice Age ended in Europe and America, the Sahara Desert was a land of abundant rivers and fertile plains, says the National Geographic Society.

Acting Chaplain To Be Speaker

The Rev. Preston N. Williams, acting University Chaplain, will speak at the 9 a.m. service Sunday in the Helen Eakin Eisenhower Chapel.

Williams has served as acting chaplain at the University this past year, and before coming here four years ago, he was assistant professor of religion at Lincoln University and Knoxville College, and College Chaplain at North Carolina College.

The organist for this service will be William Mastrocola, fifth semester student in secondary education at the University.

He will play three works of Johann Sebastian Bach: "Wachet auf, ruft uns die Stimme," for the prelude and for the offertory; "Vater unser in Himmelreich." As a postlude, Mr. Mastrocola will play "Fugue in B flat."

The summer choir will sing "In Thee, O Lord, Have I Put My Trust," by George Fredrich Handel, for the anthem.

the awards on behalf of the University during the Association's annual meetings in Washington, D.C.

There were two citations in the category of "Education News," two in "Audio-Visual Media," and one in "General Public Relations or Development Projects."

The five were cited as "outstanding by reason of originality, technique, impact and general effectiveness" in fulfilling their public relations purposes.

An Eminent Achievement or "best in class" citation was conferred on the 15-minute, all purpose, color sound film titled "Introducing Penn State." The entry was filmed by the University's Motion Picture and Recording Studio. It was written and produced by Gilbert S. Aberg.

Top-ranking citation of honor in the public relations category went to the University's project to confer the names of Pennsylvania counties on living units in its men's residence halls. An all-university committee handled the various details of this project.

Educational news citations were of two kinds. One went to Coogan for his two-part newspaper series interpreting the University's student loan program. He also won a second citation for inspiring and cooperating in the preparation of an article on the University's summer counseling program by Edgar Williams of the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Fifth citation of honor was conferred on Aberg for his production of a 15-week radio series titled "Footnote" involving 150 faculty members and broadcast by 30 Pennsylvania radio stations.
