Martin's Temper Cooled By Law Suit

CHICAGO (AP)—Terrible-tempered Billy Martin, Cincinnati's second baseman, returned to Wrigley Field yesterday for the first time since punching Cub pitcher Jim Brewer in the eye. And Martin was hit with a $1,040,000 damage suit.

The suit, brought by the Chicago Cubs baseball club and Brewer, stems from a devastating punch the fiery Martin threw at Brewer during the Red's last appearance in Wrigley Field Aug. 4.

Brewer, a 20-year-old southpaw, suffered serious injuries from the blow in his face. The orbital bone was fractured and the young pitcher since has undergone two operations to correct the damage. He still is hospitalized and probably will be out of play the remainder of the season.

Martin, whom since has expressed regret for the fracas, charged Brewer was deliberately throwing at him. National League President Warren Giles fined Martin $500 and suspended him for five days.

Martin had little to say when served with formal notice of the suit, although he cracked: "I wonder if they want this in cash or by check."

The Cubs and Brewer each seek damages of $520,000, $260,000 punitive and $260,000 actual damages.

The complaint, filed in Circuit Court of Cook County said Brewer has suffered a loss in the opportunity to engage in professional baseball and therefore lost great earning power. He has suffered bodily harm requiring hospitalization, operations and other extensive medical expenses.

Martin's teammates reportedly chipped in and paid off his $500 fine. Yesterday they clustered around him after the papers were served and said: "Don't worry, Billy, we'll all chip in again on this thing. It'll only cost us about $35,000 each."

Olympic Girls Need Papers To Prove It

ROME (AP) — All the girls on the United States Olympic team are girls — and they've got papers to prove it.

"We've had some border line cases in the past," said J. Lyman Bingham, executive director of the U.S. Olympic Committee, "but we've got none this time." He took a filled in form from his desk.

"This tells the story," he adds. "It's a ST-8 form, signed by a doctor. One has been turned in for all of the 18 girls on our track and field team."

He said every female on the American team has been closely questioned by a physician. The doctor turned in the papers when he was satisfied all the girls were just that.

The question of whether a girl athlete may not, in fact, be a girl arose when officials of two unnamed European countries were reported to have questioned the sex of a British Olympic girl athlete.

The British treated the allegation so seriously that K. S. Duncan, secretary of the British Olympic Association, issued an off statement denying that any girl on the British team was a man.

Bingham said the ST-8 form is a requirement of the International Athletic Federation.

The precaution isn't as silly as it may sound.

"There have been definite cases," said Bingham, "of athletes who've participated as girls who later officially became men."

Sobczak to Fill Fullback Position

Penn State's top fullback assignment this season will be in the capable hands of Sam Sobczak—for two years one of the unsung members of the Nittany Lion backfield.

Playing in the shadow of Pat Botula, Sobczak earned letters in both his sophomore and junior campaigns. This year, the 196-pound ram-rod from DuBois has the No. 1 job locked up.

Sobczak was the team's fifth-best rusher last year, gaining 190 yards in 49 carries for a 3.9 average. He's also a top-flight defensive player and a crisp blocker.

In spite of better known names the likes of Roger Kochman, Jim Kerr, Ed Caye, and Dick Pae in Penn State's backfield, coach Rip Engle says that Sobczak "just might develop into the top running back on the squad."
