Educators To Receive Certificates

The University's Latin American Project will present graduation certificates to 23 educators from nine Latin American countries at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Assembly hall of the Hetzel Union Building.

The graduates include four educators from the Dominican Republic who will be graduated in absentia; four each from Ecuador and Nicaragua; three each from Paraguay and Peru; two from Honduras; and one each from Colombia, Costa Rica and Guatemala.

The project, now in its fourth year, was established by the International Cooperation Administration to train experienced Latin American school administrators without a knowledge of English in a new philosophy of elementary school supervision.

The formal part of the program is presented in Spanish, although English is taught concurrently with the professional courses.

The program includes individual internships of at least five weeks in urban or rural school systems where the Latin American educators can put theory into application. The project will continue with a new group in November.

The ceremony Tuesday night, which is open to the public, will include an address by Dr. Joan R. Rackley, dean of the College of Education, following remarks by Dr. Paul W. Bixby, assistant dean for Continuing Education.

Students, Faculty Attend Encampment

About 120 students and faculty and administration members met together informally for three days last week to hash over problems of the University at the ninth annual Student Encampment.

Discussions on community living, communications academic affairs, present problems of Student Government Association, rules and regulations and university expansion were carried on in the relaxed atmosphere of bermudas and coke breaks at the University's School of Forestry at Mont Alto.

The recommendations which came out of this year's six workshops will be presented to the SGA Assembly for approval or revision at meetings early in the fall.

The Assembly will then refer the suggestions to the campus group or body which would be most concerned with the idea.

The structure of student government under the new community living plan and ways to deal with the parking problems highlighted the workshop discussions.

Other recommendations concerned the grading system, the campus elections, the honor system, better communications with the Commonwealth Campuses, the library, class cutting policy and student regulations—to name a few.

Next week The Daily Collegian will begin a series of articles explaining these and other Encampment recommendations.

Encampment was instituted by Milton S. Eisenhower when he became president of the University in 1950.

SecEd Students Can Get Forms For Teaching

Students who intend to enroll in student teaching for spring 1961 must submit applications to 207 Burrowes by Thursday.

Art education majors may obtain applications from their advisors or Dr. Edward L. Matill, associate professor of art education; business majors from Dr. Dorothy H. Veon, professor of secondary education, and students enrolled in Sec. Ed. 252 from their instructor. All others must secure applications in 207 Burrowes from Miss Shirley Reed, secretary for the Department of Secondary Education.

Students will include in their applications the center to which they prefer to be assigned and the grades of the subjects they prefer to teach.

Centers for the first eight weeks include the Harrisburg City Schools, Delhaas (Bucks County) and Altoona. Centers for the second eight weeks period include Central Dauphin (Harrisburg Area), Abington (Montgomery County) and Johnstown area.
