

Werner Hits Critics Of Olympic Team

By JIM KARL

In the minds of many track fans, the United States flopped badly in the 1960 Olympics. But Lion track coach Chick Werner, who saw the Rome games, doesn't agree.

"If we were miserable, who was good?" Werner said. "The Russians had more disappointments than we did."

Werner said a few writers were the main cause of the negative viewpoint.

As the United States began losing events in which they were favored, reports began drifting back home that some members of the U.S. team were over-participating in the gay Rome night life.

But Werner said there were no such occurrences. "Our team was splendid," he said. "We need no alibis."

"I know the Olympic coach (Larry Snyder) very well," he continued, "he tried very hard and the team tried very hard. They did not break training."

Werner said the greatest remark he heard during the games came when John Thomas said, "Since when is a bronze medal to be criticized?"

That was Thomas' comeback to a question asking if he was disappointed after placing third to a pair of Russians.

Two other Olympians who came under fire after losing in events were sprinter Norton and hammer thrower Connelly.

Norton said that he would never run again after finishing last in both the 100-meter and 200-meter finals and then committing a foul which disqualified the U.S. in the 400-meter relay.

Connelly, the world-record holder in the hammer throw, finished far back in seventh place.

Red Sox Deny Rumors Of Williams' Return

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox yesterday refused to give credence to a report that 42-year-old Ted Williams will return next season as a pinch hitter and part owner of the club.

Williams, the great left-handed slugger who has announced he is quitting at the end of this campaign, was not available for comment.

An article in the Boston American by Hugh Wheelwright yesterday stated that Williams will play next year.

Thomas Wins at 7-2

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — John Thomas of Boston University cleared 7 feet, 2 inches in an international meet yesterday but failed in a bid to top his world high jump record of 7-3 3/4. Thomas tried—and failed—three times at 7-4.

Turley Goes For Yankees Against BoSox

NEW YORK (AP) — Although the magic number for clinching the pennant now is five over Chicago and four over Baltimore, the New York Yankees are not taking anything for granted.

With the next six of their remaining nine games to be played on the road, Manager Casey Stengel balks at looking ahead toward any World Series.

Stengel named Bob Turley (8-3) to oppose Boston's Billy Muffett (6-3) in this afternoon's series opener at Fenway Park. The Yanks will send Art Ditmar (15-9) against Bill Monbouquette (14-11) tomorrow afternoon and Ralph Terry (9-8) against Tom Brewer (10-13) Sunday.

If the Yanks keep on winning and the White Sox stumble against Cleveland the Orioles fail in Washington, Stengel's 10th pennant could be wrapped up over the weekend.

However, it is more likely that the clinching will drag on a little longer, perhaps to the end of the season. The Yanks go to Washington for three night games next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday and then come home to finish the year next Friday night and Saturday and Sunday afternoons against the Red Sox.

"Who owns the electric company?"

Some people can answer that question with the greatest of ease—but a surprising number of our own customers can't.

Thousands of people own the electric company. All kinds of people, people who invest money in the company and help it grow to serve you better.

That makes it an independent business—not owned by the city, the state, or any kind of government.

And that's one of the big reasons why you can always be sure of having plenty of electricity, at a bargain price.
