Eidophor at Work

Members of the administration and the state committee on education saw Nixon and Kennedy debate last night over the experimental projecting system in Schwab.

The system which projects a 10 by 14 ft. picture, was installed by Eidophor Inc. for experimentation here during the 1960-61 academic year.

The giant screen is now being used for two courses and no plans, as far as we can determine, are definitely being made for programs such as the Nixon-Kennedy debates.

Why can't major television programs be projected on the Eidophor screen for a student audience in the evening? Many students do not have easy access to a television set.

Eidophor also has certain technical advantages such as sharper image and truer color reproduction. It would be a shame to limit the use of this new system to two courses, when so many students could benefit from planned evening programs.

Perhaps our Student Government Association could check the possibilities of using Eidophor for the future Nixon-Kennedy debates and other important television programs.

SGA could set up a committee which would work with faculty and members of the administration in selecting worthwhile programs for Eidophor. The networks put out a list of their major broadcasts for the coming season.

We realize that many rehearsals, tryouts, etc., are already scheduled for Schwab. However, these should be rescheduled somewhere else if they conflict with an Eidophor program which would benefit many students.

As far as scheduling complaints are concerned, we would like to remind administrators and students alike that the offer from Eidophor Inc. came last spring.

The use of Eidophor concerns students and as such it demands the attention and voices of students.

Well, You Know ...

Nikita Khrushchev surprised the world Friday by suggesting that the U. N. move to the USSR where there would be no diplomatic troubles due to racial prejudice.

One of the boasts of communism has always been no racial prejudice — a strong appeal to colonial lands that have suffered under the white supremacy theory.

Nkrumah, the young leader of Ghana who preceded the communist boss to the rostrum, had always been considered one of the most pro-Western of the native African leaders. Most Westerners were surprised at his words Friday.

Westerners were also surprised that Khrushchev's speech seemed to be better accepted by the Afro-Asian bloc than Eisenhower's.

Why don't they love us like they should? We've always done right by them. We've always tried to help them. Why this willingness to accept communism instead of the democracy epitomized by the U.S.? Can't they see that communism is bad? Sure communists accept them as equals. But we tell them they are equal with us, too.

We are helping fight communism by educating international students in our country. Just because we don't want these students to share our housing accommodations doesn't mean that we think they are unclean or inferior. It's just that, well, you know ...

And that New York Times writer who says that international students who return to their country "have no difficulty in hating the U.S. whose universities once enrolled them" is all wet.

Certainly they will have respect for the educational institution where they gained their knowledge, even though it did not have enough concern for human dignity to see that they were treated as equals in obtaining such a basic requirement as shelter.

Ban on HUB Lot Queried

TO THE EDITOR: I read with keen interest the editorial appearing in The Daily Collegian Saturday concerning the HUB parking problem. In it was a plea to the University, and especially to Mr. Diem's office, to explain why the supposed solution to the above problem, which was imposed on the student body, adequately solved none of the problems that the University claimed existed. Or at least did not solve them in a way which would be the most satisfactory to all concerned.

As a commuter to campus, I am intimately familiar with the school's traffic problem and would, also like an answer to the above question.

Further, I would like to know why for the first time this year are parking lots formerly reserved for commuters now being clogged with the cars of University dormitory residents who use their cars less frequently.

As a result, it is impossible for commuters to find parking spots within reasonable walking distance of the center of campus.

In the last two years, in three separate occasions that I am aware of, a representative of the student body was promised that before any new parking regulations were instituted by the mystical committee that does such things, representatives of the student body would be allowed to argue their case. In this way the resolutions passed might be the most acceptable ones to all.

When the time came, these promises were ignored. The administration waited until the end of the summer, when the fewest possible students were on campus, and then announced their arbitrary and seemingly illogical decisions.

It seems evident to me that the administration is not interested in listening to student opinions on the rules that regulate these same students. Why, then, does it keep up pretenses by having an SGA or by running a Student Encampment?

More Entered IFC Sing

TO THE EDITOR: I read with rather mixed feelings your editorial Friday morning concerning the IFC-Panhel Sing.

I was pleased to know that someone at least shared the committee's concern about the semi-lack of participation in the sing, but I was also disappointed that all the facts had not been presented to you before you wrote your column.

As of the writing of this letter, we have bettered last year's number of participants by one. Twenty-four groups is still not quite the response we would like to have, but even a slight improvement is better than none at all.

Then, too, of the groups entering this year, a good number of them have not participated in the sing in recent years. We find their re-participation encouraging also.

Perhaps next year, when everyone has accustomed himself to this fantastic break-with tradition—Greek Week in the fall—the more hesitant Greek groups will enter and make the IFC-Panhel Sing the competitive and significant event it ought to be.

'Outrageous' Prices Decried

TO THE EDITOR: I want to thank Mr. Groner for bringing to the attention of the student body the situation regarding the majority of the local merchants and their outrageous prices.

When I came here last year as a freshman, I had trust in the merchants, and thought that they had a little of the students' well-being at heart. What a disillusionment I had in store for me.

To give you an example of what Mr. Groner and I are talking about, I needed an erasing shield for my Engineering Drawing course. So I stopped in one of the nationally known stores in town and bought one for fifteen cents. Later on I was getting some supplies at one of our better known local stores, and for the heck of it I asked what an erasing shield would cost. The same product, the same brand name was priced at exactly twice the amount I had just paid.

If the student body would avoid—boycott if you wish—the merchant who charges unjust prices, it wouldn't be long before that same merchant would make some price alterations.

Remember when you shop, observe, compare the products and the prices, and then buy.
