

Missouri Defensive Line 'Stingy' in Early Games

By SANDY PADWE

(This is the second in a series of scouting reports on the Missouri football team. Tomorrow the backfield.)

Judging by the comments of the Missouri and Penn State coaching staffs, Saturday's homecoming game in Beaver Stadium should be a bruising, defensive battle.

"Penn State will probably slap the best defense on us that we'll see all year," Missouri coach Dan Devine said earlier this week at a press conference previewing the big intersectional clash.

Maybe it's a coincidence or maybe it's just a mutual admiration society, but Lion end coach J. T. White says Missouri will be one of the best defensive teams Penn State will play in 1960.

White looked on in amazement the past two weeks as Devine's hustling Bengals played "stingy" football while grinding out wins over S.M.U. and Oklahoma State.

In the first battle, a 20-0 victory over Southern Methodist, Missouri's defensive unit held the Mustangs to just 39 yards rushing. Then last weekend against Oklahoma State they were a little more sociable, yielding 68 yards on the ground.

Much of the credit for Missouri's strong defensive showing must go to All-Big Eight Conference end Danny LaRose.

"He's their best boy," White said. "He's big and has good speed and he loves to play defense. He also handles their kicking."

Missouri's other starting end is senior Gordon Smith, rated as one of the finest ends in the Midwest. White's report says Smith is a fine blocker and a good defender. On offense, he's a sure-handed receiver.

The guards, Paul Henley and Paul Garvis, are a pair of vets who saw plenty of action in last year's game won by State, 19-8.

... Missouri end

Neither Garvis nor Henley weigh over 200 pounds, but White said they are extremely fast and pull out to lead a good portion of Missouri's plays.

Colorful Rockne Calhoun, sub, and Ed Blaine will be the starting tackles.

Calhoun, a stubby, barrel-chested scrapper (5-9, 203) played guard last year but was moved to tackle when co-captain Bucky Wegener severely injured his foot in a power mower accident. Calhoun's from a little hamlet on the Mississippi River called Louisiana, Mo.

Blaine (6-2, 217) has good mobility and pursues well. Only a junior, he started slowly last year but came along pleasingly in late games and has looked good this year.

Senior Mike Langan, a two-year holdover, is the center with fiery Bill McCartney right behind.

White said Missouri's defensive backfield is strong again this year with Freddie Brossart and Norm Beal, a pair of defensive magicians returning.

"Missouri will use its first unit most of the time," White said, "then Devine will give them a rest with about four minutes left in the quarter."

Cornell X-Country Team Hit With Injuries for Lion Meet

By BILL BARBER

Although Cornell's cross country season is only one week old, Coach Lou Montgomery is beset with problems that would make any coach throw up his arms in despair.

With Penn State due to invade the Big Red camp tomorrow afternoon, Montgomery is faced with the problem of replacing two of his top runners who are nursing leg injuries.

Eric Groom, the first Cornell man to place in last year's meet with the Lions, and Dick Chapman, Cornell's sophomore sensation, are both sidelined with knee injuries.

Chapman, the only runner to beat State's Gerry Norman in 1959, broke the Penn State three-mile record in that race.

Montgomery summed up the problem as "too much practice too soon."

"We only started running last Thursday and the boys have been trying too hard to get in shape," he said. "This has caused all the trouble and resulted in several knee and leg injuries," Montgomery said.

Groom and Chapman aren't the only Cornell harriers hampered with knee ailments. Captain Frank Brockman has been running with sore knees all week and won't be in top condition for the Lion meet.

"Right now we have a good team but it could be better if we had Groom and Chapman. We're going to feel the loss of these boys," Montgomery said.

According to Montgomery, Paul Deignan, Ray Westendorp, and John Munday shape up to be Cornell's best hopes for tomorrow's meet.

"Westendorp and Munday started coming into their own late last season. They have been running well this season and should give us a lot of help," he said.

Against Colgate and Lemoyne last Saturday, Cornell won handily with Westendorp, Brockman, Deignan and Munday tying for first in 28:07.

Rounding out Montgomery's lineup are lettermen Pete Slater and Pete Brandeis, Murray Moulden, Bill Arnst, Dave Craver, and Bob Enaiudi.

The Lion freshman squad will meet the Cornell frosh before the varsity meet.

Nicklaus' 66 Gives U.S. Golf Lead

ARDMORE, Pa. (AP) — Power-hitting Jack Nicklaus ripped the feared Merion East Course apart for a record 66 yesterday and sent the United States into a huge lead in the first round of the second World Amateur Team Golf Championships.

The 66 by the husky, 20-year-old Ohio State junior clipped one stroke off Merion's amateur record set in 1924. It followed a pair of one-over-par 71s by Bob Gardner of New York and Bill Hyndman of Philadelphia and gave the U.S. team a first-round total of 208.

No other team among the 32 entered in this world wide competition was even close.

National amateur champion Deane Beman of Silver Spring, Md., a late starter, also fired a 71, but the U.S. total already had been posted.

In the world team competition for the Eisenhower Trophy only the best three scores of each team each day are counted toward the aggregate. This goes on for four days to reach the final result. There is no official individual competition.

Bob Charles of New Zealand fired the day's second-best round, an even par 70, and sent his team into a second-place tie with Mexico at 217. The Great Britain-Ireland team was fourth with 218.

AP Picks Nittanies Over Missouri, 18-13

NEW YORK (AP)—The "upset special" is highballing it toward Lawrence, Kan., this week, but look out for those 225-pound behemoths blocking the rails.

We still think the Syracuse line is too tough for the likes of Bert Coan and Curtis McClinton and should rack up a 21-7 victory.

Last week we stabbed 35 of 45 winner for .777. The second go-around:

Notre Dame 27, Purdue 21: Vengeance swells in the proud breasts of the Fighting Irish.

Northwestern 13, Iowa 7: Even without Dick Thorton, the Wildcats can do it.

Washington 20, Navy 14: The Midshipmen's Joe Bellino is a tough cookie, but the cookie crumbles under husky gang tackling.

Arkansas 14, Texas Christian 12: TCU's advantage of playing at home not enough to offset improving Razorbacks.

Army 23, California 13: Air arm built around Dick Eckert and Tom Blanda add to Golden Bears' woes.

Penn State 18, Missouri 13: Rip Engle's boys have just a little too much power for the Big Eight contenders.

Mississippi 34, Memphis State 0: If Ole Miss is tops, as the polls say, who is Memphis State to question it?

Clemson 22, Virginia Tech 8: Grit and grits are a potent combination.

Ohio State 20, Southern California 7: The Buckeyes are fancier with passes this year, but still tough.

The others: EAST—Princeton 14, Columbia 13; Penn 20, Dartmouth 8; Yale 21, Brown 6.

Williams Blasts Homer in Finale At Fenway Park

BOSTON (AP) — Ted Williams, master of drama to the last, answered a thunderous ovation with a 450-foot home run yesterday, then announced his immediate retirement.

Previously the 42-year-old Boston slugger had been expected to finish out the season on the road in a weekend series at New York.

"I'm convinced I've quit at the right time," said Williams in the dressing room.

When "Old No. 9" walked to the plate in the eighth inning, the crowd cheered him for a minute and a half.

Then he stepped in and lashed the ball over the bullpen in right center for another three minutes, the fans roared "We want Ted!"

His 521st homer left him 13 behind second-place Jimmy Fox among baseball's homer hitters.

A bareheaded, nervous Williams spoke his goodbyes to Fenway Park — site of his historic batting feats—before the 5-4 win over Baltimore.

A crowd of nearly 10,000 braved fog, murk and a threat of rain in a farewell tribute. The all-time star is signing off with a .345 lifetime batting average and a reputation as the game's top student at batsmanship.

Owner Tom Yawkey recently made Williams' retirement official, announcing Ted will be a batting instructor at the 1961 spring training camp and will then assume duties best suited to his talents in the Red Sox organization.
