'K' Courts Afro-Asian Countries

UNITED NATIONS N.Y. (AP) — Premier Khrushchev pressed a vigorous drive yesterday for Asian-African support in the wake of a formal demand by five neutral nations for a new meeting between the Soviet leader and President Eisenhower.

The developments aroused Western concern that the United States is in a tight squeeze. The President and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain arranged a weekend meeting to consider the bold Soviet offensive.

The neutralist proposal was presented by President Sukarno of Indonesia at the conclusion of a policy speech to the Assembly. Dramatically lending his great prestige to the undertaking, Prime Minister Nehru of India quickly asked the Assembly to place it on the 15th session's agenda. Without discussion, the proposal automatically was added to the weighty matters to be discussed by the assembled representatives of the 98 nations.

It was considered likely that debate on the demand for a new Eisenhower-Khrushchev meeting would take place early next week.

Just before the neutralist Indonesian offered the draft resolution for assembly action, Khrushchev surrounded himself with an array of African and Asia leaders at a glittering Soviet U.N. headquarters luncheon. The whole Communist bloc, include a parade of Soviet ambassadors and experts was on hand.

Board Asks Change In HUB Expansion

Several changes in the preliminary Hetzel Union Building expansion plans have been recommended by the HUB Board.

The major change recommended was that the Terrace Room Cafeteria be expanded more than the 12 to 15 feet indicated in the plans drawn by Harbeson, Hough, Livingston and Larson, Philadelphia architects.

The Board asked that the cafeteria dining space be extended to include all of the present courtyard with a terrace added above it.

The Board also suggested that the proposed addition to the ballroom be only two-thirds as high as the present ballroom and one floor added above it to provide a room large enough for SGA meetings and a temporary auditorium larger than the HUB assembly room.

Another recommendation was that the Book Exchange be moved to the southwest corner of the present game area on the ground floor where there would be more room for its operation.

Wigfield, AXP Win Homecoming Honors

Homecoming honors were awarded last night to the 1960 Homecoming Queen, Nancy Sue Wigfield, junior in art education from New Cumberland, and to the winner of the annual fraternity display contest, Alpha Chi Rho.

Miss Wigfield was selected by the football team from the five finalists named Tuesday by alumni and faculty members. She was sponsored by Alpha Tau Omega fraternity and is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority.

Other queen finalists and their sponsors in addition to Miss Wigfield were Allison Woodall, Theta Chi; Diane Derrickson, Phi Kappa Sigma; Gina Kobus, Theta Phi Alpha; and Janey Bernreuter, Kappa Alpha Theta.

The Queen and her court will be presented to the student body today at the Penn State-Missouri game during half-time. They will also be guests at the alumni luncheon this morning at 11:30 in the HUB.

During the half-time ceremony, Miss Wigfield will be presented with a trophy on behalf of the football team by Henry Oppermann, team captain. Richard Haber, Student Government Association president, will give her flowers on behalf of the student body.

This year's queen contest was sponsored by and organized by the SGA and the Alumni Association. This will be the first time in several years that the queen will appear at the Homecoming Game.

Committee heads for the program were Jeffrey Shaman, Patricia Baker and Alan Dries for SGA, and Ridge Riley, alumni secretary.

In the fraternity displays contest, Alpha Chi Rho won first place with a huge white battleship, the S.S. Penn State. Second place honors went to Phi Kappa

State Rates Slight Edge In Homecoming Contest

By SANDY PADWE

Penn State's homecoming fans couldn't have asked for a more attractive contest than the one they're going to see in Beaver Stadium this afternoon between Rip Engle's Nittany Lions and Dan Devine's Missouri Tigers.

The kickoff is set for 1:30 and the weather forecast calls for a windy day with cloudy skies and cool temperatures.

Both teams have hopes of crashing the top ten with a convincing win, but the oddsmakers predict an extremely close game with State a slight pre-game favorite.

Missouri is ranked 19th in the country on the basis of two straight wins over SMU and Oklahoma State. The Lions, who had an open date last weekend after beating Boston University in the opener Sept. 17, are ranked 20th.

However, both coaches feel today's game should tell them just how good their teams really are.

"No one has to tell me about Missouri," Engle said, "they're one of the best teams in the country."

Devine had the same sentiments about Penn State. "This is a real big game for us," he said, "we won't face many teams that are better than Penn State."

State comes into the big inter-sectional clash in much better physical condition than the opener.

Returning to the lineup are such tested veterans as ends Bob Mitinger and John Bozick and guard Wayne Berfield. All three were injured in pre-season practice and were spectators at the Boston U game.

Captain Henry Oppermann, who was limited to kicking duty against the Terriers, also will be ready for full duty at end today.

Lion's Den Will Attempt Later Hours

The Lion's Den in the Hetzel Union building will remain open until 11 each night next week, Louis Berrena, manager of HUB Food Service, said yesterday.

Berrena said that the Den was open until 11 p.m. during the week for the past two weeks but that most students were not aware of the extra hour of service.

Last spring, a recommendation was made to the HUB asking for the later closing hour.

A two-week trial basis for the recommendation began when classes started this fall. However, Berrena explained, the later hour was not publicized and consequently the Den was empty by 10:30 during the nights of the trial.

But Berrena agreed to give the plan another week's trial in hopes that the students would take advantage of the extra hour.

The Lion's Den opens at 7:15 a.m. every day. It is open until midnight on Fridays and Saturdays. Under the new plan, it will remain open until 11 p.m. during the week.

AIM-Leonides to Hold Annual Homecoming Hop

A fall decor highlighted by a mobile of autumn leaves will decorate the Hetzel Union ballroom tonight as the "Melody Men" play for the annual AIM-Leonides Homecoming Dance.

The affair will be held from 9 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. All students, upperclassmen as well as freshmen, faculty and alumni may attend. Admission price will be $2 per couple. Tickets will be sold at the door.

Frosh Must Wear Customs

The Freshman Customs Board reminds freshmen that they will be required to wear their name cards and dinks to this afternoon's football game with Missouri.

Cool Weather Will Continue

Much cooler weather, which invaded Pennsylvania last night, will keep this afternoon temperatures nearly 20 degrees lower than those of yesterday.

Partly cloudy skies and brisk northwesterly winds will make the cool temperatures feel even colder than they actually are. The wind, which may reach occasional gusts of 20 miles an hour, could be a factor in this afternoon's football game.

Quite chilly temperatures are indicated to continue tonight with mercury readings falling close to the 40 degree mark.

Sunny skies and rather cool temperatures are expected tomorrow with a predicted high reading of 60 degrees.

Faculty Comments on Senate Ruling

By LYNNE CEREFICE

The decision made Thursday by the University Senate to eliminate the rules on attendance from the Regulations for Undergraduates aroused varied comments from faculty members.

Rule K-9, now eliminated, stated that as a precaution against unfortunate incidents that might result from the unreported illness or extended absence of a student, the instructor is required to report each case of three successive unexplained absences to the dean of the student's college. The dean, in turn, will report to the dean of men or the dean of women.

With the elimination of this rule, the question was raised as to what check the University would have in determining the whereabouts of a student successively absent from class.

Dorothy J. Lipp, dean of women, explained that it is possible to know the whereabouts of women students living in campus residence halls. "When a woman student is discovered missing from her dormitory, this fact is immediately reported to the dean of women's office by a residence hall staff member," she said.

On the same question, dean of men Frank J. Simes said yesterday that he foresees "no problems" with the elimination of the attendance rules. He explained that "since many professors failed to adhere to the K-9 rule the old system was not an effective way of checking a student's whereabouts."

John R. Hackley, dean of the College of Education, brought out at Thursday's meeting that, with the elimination of the K-Rules, the University is left without a policy on class attendance. He suggested that the Senate Committee on Educational Policy might consider establishing a clause which states that class attendance is not required.

Lawrence Perez, assistant dean of engineering and architecture, said that "freshman class attendance will present the only problem." He said that since instructors will not be required to report absences, knowledge of whereabouts of students will depend entirely on the "integrity and initiative" of each individual professor.

Ossian MacKenzie, dean of the College of Business Administration, said, in reference to the business college, that an "intelligent faculty and a competent student body should be able to work out suitable arrangements concerning class attendance policies."
