

Army Fools The Experts By Winning First Three

By SANDY PADWE

The experts weren't picking Army to cause any trouble this year, but apparently the Cadets don't read the papers until Sunday morning.

So far they've won three straight over Buffalo, Boston College and California, all in impressive style, and tomorrow's objective will be Penn State at West Point.

The current Army team is different from those of bygone days because there are no super-stars to ruin you week after week. Instead everyone does his job well.

That's the report offensive line coach Sever Toretti brought back after scouting the Cadets in their first three games.

"Overall, Army is a bigger team than last year," Toretti said. "There is no particular star, but rather a large group of good players."

"They have picked up tremendous momentum and looked better in each game."

Most of the credit for Army's surprise showing goes to coach Dale Hall, but he'll tell you quarterback Tom Blanda is the one who deserves all the praise.

Blanda, Joe Caldwell's understudy for the past two years, has been the catalyst Army needed this fall.

In the first three games his passing has been sensational. He has completed 27 of 41, (65 per cent) for 328 yards and four touchdowns.

His main target, oddly enough, is halfback George Kirschenbauer who has hauled in 11 aeriels for 141 yards.

Kirschenbauer is potentially the finest running back on the Army squad. He averaged four yards a carry as a sophomore in 1959 but this year he's averaging 6.3.

The other starting halfback will be Glen Adams, a fine all-round athlete who has been the key to the Black Knight defense for the past two seasons. Adams originally was scheduled to play quarterback, but Blanda's fine showing has enabled Hall to use him at halfback.

Army's fullback is big Al Rusbatz, "the backbone of the team" in Toretti's estimation. The nimble footed fullback is Army's workhorse and has carried the ball 47 times this season for 143 yards.

Toretti said Army has plenty of depth in the backfield with such vets as Dick Eckert, John Eielson and Roger Zailskas returning. Zailskas has been battling a bad knee but he may see action tomorrow.

The Cadets also are blessed with a fine group of veteran linemen including Al Vanderbush (6-2, 215), a good bet for All-American honors.

The Army co-captain is a two-year letterman and he calls the defensive signals. The other starting guard will be Harry Miller (6-1, 195), a senior.

Dale Kuhns (6-2, 225) who played for Clearfield High School a few years ago is the inside tackle on Army's unbalanced line. Gerry Clements

(6-1, 220), who beat out letterman Bob McCarthy, is the outside tackle.

George Joulwan (5-11, 190) from Pottsville, Pa., is the center. Toretti singled out Joulwan as one of Army's top linemen, especially on defense.

Co-Captain Frank Gibson (6-3, 205) and Bob Fuellhart (6-0, 195) are the ends. Fuellhart is the famed lonely end this year, replacing All-American Bill Carpenter.

The lonely end offense has been modified this year and Fuellhart comes into the huddle on most plays and then splits wide. Last year Carpenter never came into the huddle.

Giles Says New York May Not Get NL Club

PITTSBURGH (AP) — New York is not a cinch to return to the National League when the league finally goes through with its plan for expansion, Warren Giles, head of the circuit, said yesterday.

Giles said a meeting would be held in two weeks, probably in Chicago, to discuss the cities to be added as the ninth and tenth clubs. It is believed the meeting will take place Oct. 17.

"It is my understanding from what took place at the expansion committee meeting in Chicago on Aug. 2 that we would accept two of the cities from the Continental League group," said Giles. "That doesn't necessarily mean New York or any other specific city." Under the rules, six of the eight National League votes are needed for acceptance of a team.

Mantle's Blasts Help Yanks Clobber Bucs

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Mickey Mantle drove in five runs with two homers — one an awesome 460-foot smash over the center field wall — in a 16-3 New York Yankees' romp over the Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday.

Squaring the World Series at one game each with this second game rout before 37,308 fans, the Yanks sent the press box tenants scrambling to the record books to find anything to match this debacle.

On Oct. 2, 1936, the Yanks beat the old New York Giants 18-4. The 14-run margin that day was the greatest ever.

Bob Turley walked the tight-rope through the early innings, barely skirting disaster in the second, fourth and fifth until the American League champions burst through with seven runs in the sixth. Nicked for 13 hits, Turley stuck around until the ninth for his fourth Series victory.

Turley left with one out in the ninth and little Bobby Shantz came in and fed Don Hoak a double play ball to end the game.

The 32 hits picked up by both teams broke the Series record of 29 set by the St. Louis Cardinals and Boston Red Sox on Oct. 10, 1946. The Cards that day got 20, equalling the record set by the New York Giants against the Yankees on Oct. 7, 1921.

The Yanks' 19 blows Thursday fell just one short of the mark.

Twelve Yanks went to bat in the sixth inning against Fred Green, Clem Labine and George Witt before the Pirates finally got them out.

Mantle passed Los Angeles' Duke Snider as the only challenger to the all-time Series homer record of 15 held by the late Babe Ruth. Mantle's two blasts gave him a total of 13.

Mickey, called out on strikes twice Wednesday, struck out in the first inning yesterday and walked in the third. His first homer, a 390-foot drive into the lower stands in right, came with Roger Maris on base in the fifth.

Mantle struck out again in the big sixth inning but got his revenge in the seventh with his tremendous blast over the center field wall with two men on.

The Yankee center fielder tied a record by driving in five runs in one game. Others to do it were Yankees Tony Lazzeri and Bill Dickey, both in the same game in 1936, and Ted Kluszewski of the Chicago White Sox last year in the 11-0 opening game against Los Angeles.

Casey Stengel announced that Whitey Ford (12-9), his veteran left-hander, would start against the Pirates in the third game tomorrow at Yankee Stadium. There will be no game today, an open date. Vinegar Bend Bill Mizell (14-8), also a southpaw, will pitch for Pittsburgh.

Home Tilt With Orangemen Is 'Must' Game for Booters

Coach Ken Hosterman's Lion booters will meet Syracuse in a home tilt tomorrow morning, and a win is a "must" if the Lions hope to finish the season with a respectable record.

State, winless in two games so far this year, has lost once to the Orangemen in the 36-game series.

The Lions even won last season, their worst in 43 years. They had a 2-7 record, and one of their wins was a 6-0 victory over the Orange. Howie Farrar led the way in that game by scoring four goals, the 1959 single game high.

Syracuse coach Pete Cataldi fielded a team composed almost entirely of sophomores in last year's encounter on Piety Hill.

The Lions dominated the entire game in 1959, outshooting Syracuse, 51-19, and controlling the ball with ease.

However, the situation is a little different this year. The Nittany Lions haven't shown much strength in their two previous outings.

They dropped the opener to Bucknell, 6-2, and last Saturday lost to West Chester, 5-0. The front line has not displayed a potent scoring attack and the defense has been porous.

The sophomores on Syracuse's 1959 team are now juniors and the year of experience could make them tough to handle.

Tomorrow's game is a "must" in another respect because after it, the going will get rougher.

The next six teams the Lions will meet—Colgate, Maryland, Temple, Navy, Army and Pitt—are all top eastern soccer powers.

Injuries to key personnel have responded quicker than expected, and with the exception of captain Wayne Rodgers, the entire squad will be available for action.

Rodger's ankle continues to bother him, and it is doubtful if the veteran fullback will see action against the Orange.
