Traffic Court Is Violators Last Chance

To appeal or not to appeal—that's the question before the student who is issued a ticket by the Campus Patrol.

If the student feels he was the unfortunate object of faulty eyes, he will in all probability choose to appear before the student traffic court to appeal his case.

The eight students who comprise the student traffic court meet every Monday night in 203D Hetzel Union Building.

The first step in appealing a ticket issued on campus, is to see Captain P. A. Marks in the Traffic Violations Office in 203 HUB. Here the student makes his appointment to appear before the student court.

The 8-member board will hear the students case and will give him an opportunity to ask questions, and then make their decision. After a decision has been reached by the court there is no further appeal.

The traffic court will consider any case that wishes to be heard. However, Dean Murray, court chairman, emphasized that ignorance of the traffic rules is no excuse for violation, since they appear in the Senate Regulations handbook and are given to each student when he registers his automobile.

Willard Gives Talk On Crime Analysis

"Murder Under the Microscope" was the topic of a speech by Dr. Mary Willard of the department of chemistry at the initial meeting of the English Club Thursday night.

Dr. Willard discussed her experiences while working with various criminal investigations as a chemical analyst of the evidence in some of the most notorious crimes in the area. Most of her talk was illustrated by slides and was based on her work in the John Wesley Roberts murder case in 1954.

The case concerned Mr. and Mrs. Roberts who were found shot in their car on the side of a highway. Mrs. Roberts had been killed, but her husband was still alive.

Dr. Willard showed how an analysis of material on Roberts' shoes helped in proving that he had murdered his wife and shot himself in order to make the murder look like an attack by hitchhikers.

Also instrumental in proving Roberts' guilt was Dr. Willard's test run on the blood types of the couple.

The role of photography in recording evidence was also discussed in the talk. Dr. Willard pointed out that evidence can be distorted, especially in traffic accident cases, by the position of the camera when taking the picture.

Historic RR Attracts Tourists

By SARALEE ORTON

Can a railroad make a comeback? A pint-size railroad with only 3½ miles of track? The East Broad Top Railroad in Rockhill Furnace is making a successful attempt.

The East Broad Top was the last operating narrow gauge railroad east of the Mississippi until it was abandoned in 1956. It was reopened again this summer as a tourist attraction and now takes passengers on a leisurely 8-mile ride through the scenic Aughwick Valley behind a genuine steam engine.

The railroad will cater to students next Saturday and Sunday offering reduced rates to anyone able to show a matriculation card. In case of rain, the "Students' Special" will run the following weekend.

The old East Broad Top operates on rails just 3 feet apart (standard gauge is 4 feet 8½ inches), and the diminutive size of the cars make a sharp contrast to today's large Pullmans.

The locomotive, "No. 12," dates back to 1911 and hauls both passenger and baggage cars of the same period. Much of the equipment was in use in the 1870's and is in excellent condition.

The train includes a business car, the "Orbisonia," which is reputed to have been used by President Grover Cleveland for his fishing trips in the area. The coach has an ornate interior complete with red plush furniture, gilt railings and mirrored panelling.

The little locomotive and others like it have an appropriate home in an authentic turn of the century roundhouse. Even the turntable has been repaired and is in operation.

The East Broad Top Railroad and Coal Company was chartered in 1860 following the discovery of coal on the eastern slopes of Broad Top Mountain.

Completed in 1875 with two tunnels and a horseshoe curve, the line was in operation shuttling coal for 94 years.

One of the three narrow gauge railroads in existence in the United States, the E.B.T.R.R. lies only 60 miles from State College. It can be reached by following Pennsylvania route 45 to Pine Grove Mills, route 545 to Huntingdon, U.S. route 22 east to Mount Union and then route 5 to Orbisonia.

Klein to Give Lecture

Dr. William H. Klein, chief of the Division of Radiation and Organisms at the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D.C., will present a lecture on "Photocontrol of Growth and Development in Plants," at 4:15 p.m. Thursday in 112 Buckhout.

The talk is part of the Lecture Series in Biological Sciences.
