

—Collegian Photo by Neal Fahar
LIKE THIS COACH??? Even the girls put in long hours of practice before the big game. The Kappa Kappa Gammas have been practicing for the Powderpuff game with the Alpha Chi Omegas on Nov. 6.

Lion's Den Hours To Be Discussed

Whether the Lion's Den in the Hetzel Union Building should continue to stay open until 11 p.m. on weekdays will be decided this week, according to Robert C. Proffitt, director of food service.

Prompted by student requests, the Lion's Den instituted later weekday hours at the beginning of the semester on a temporary basis, Proffitt said.

Sunny Weather Will Prevail

The lack of precipitation continues to characterize this month's weather. Only four-tenths of an inch of rain has fallen through the first 11 days of October, which is just about one-third of the normal amount.

The basic weather pattern, which has prevailed for the past several days, shows no indications of changing for at least three more days. Consequently, no rain is expected before the weekend.

Sunny skies and mild temperatures are expected today with a predicted maximum of 68 degrees.

Fair and cool weather is due tonight with an expected low of 45.

Tomorrow should be partly cloudy and warm with a high of 70 degrees.

He explained that later hours cause many employment problems. Some Lion's Den employees who commute to State College find it more difficult to get rides home at 11 than at 10 and don't want to work the extra hour, he said. The extra hour also causes added expense since employees who had previously worked 40 hours a week would be working 45 hours, he added.

Louis A. Berrena, manager of the HUB food service, has compiled a report on the number of students taking advantage of the later hours and submitted it to the Department of Food Service.

The results of the report and other data will be discussed at the meeting to be held this week to determine the feasibility of continuing the late hours on a permanent basis. Student groups who supported the initiation of later weekday hours will be invited to the meeting, Proffitt said.

Panhel Votes to Hold Open Bid Rush

The Panhellenic Council voted last night to extend the fall rush program to include a period of open bidding.

After defeating a motion to allow all sororities and upperclass independents to participate in the open bid program, the council voted to restrict it to those sororities and women who participated in the fall informal rush period. The duration of open bidding will be from Oct. 17 to Nov. 14.

The same regulations concerning open bidding last spring will be in effect this fall. All rushees will be given seven days to accept or regret the bid which will be issued directly to the rushee by the sorority.

Upon recommendation from the housing committee, the council voted to accept the following hours for men in sorority suites: Pollock and South Halls, 12 noon to closing hours every day; Simmons and McElwain Halls, 6 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. on week days, 6 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. Fridays, 1 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. Saturdays, 1 p.m. to 11 p.m. Sundays.

Each sorority will make its own restrictions within the times as approved by the council and will be allowed to make requests for time changes on special occasions.

Under the new business, the council approved plans for a Panhellenic Workshop to be held Nov. 13. The national Panhellenic president will be on campus at this time.

The workshops will be set up

Khrushchev Says Elections Hinder Disarmament Talks

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Premier Khrushchev insisted yesterday that the U.S. elections make constructive American participation in disarmament talks impossible. He demanded a spring session of the UN General Assembly — at heads of government level — on the arms question alone.

But only an hour before the Soviet leader made his final address of the 15th assembly session, the United States re-

Bernreuter Favors Safer Pep Rallies

When we beat Syracuse on Saturday students should demonstrate their enthusiasm in some safer manner than riding on cars, Robert G. Bernreuter, special assistant to the president for student affairs, said yesterday.

Bernreuter cited the possibly serious danger involved in riding on cars, and noted that three coeds had been injured in the demonstration after the Army game. Although these girls were not seriously injured, a great danger exists that someone might be, he said.

This kind of tradition would be a dangerous one to start, he added. Bernreuter said that a bon fire or any safe way for students to release their excess energy would meet with his approval.

Bernreuter said that he passed by the scene of one of the accidents almost immediately after it occurred. The students cooperated with his request that they get off the hoods and roofs of cars without any hesitation, he added.

The Ritenour Health Center reported that Barbara Silver, freshman in education from Elkins Park, was treated for ankle abrasion due to a fall from a bicycle and Dale Harris, freshman in arts and letters from Latrobe, suffered leg abrasions after falling off the hood of a car. Both coeds were immediately released from the hospital.

State College Police Sgt. Matthew E. Seckinger, who "directed traffic" during Saturday's demonstration, called the crowd "as orderly as a disordered group can be," adding that there were more participants this year than last, but that the students "cooperated 100 per cent" in general attitude and behavior.

News Candidates to Meet
A meeting for all candidates on the news staff of The Daily Collegian will be held at 7 tonight in the basement of Carnegie.

Fraternities May Host Coeds 'til 10

The Senate Committee on Student Affairs decided yesterday that women may remain in fraternity houses until 10 p.m. on week nights for functions approved by the dean of men's office.

According to Dr. Monroe Newman, chairman of the committee, the decision was approved to permit student organizations to hold meetings in fraternity houses.

The recommendation allowing women to attend special week night events held in fraternity houses was suggested to the Senate committee by Frank J. Simes, dean of men, with the approval of Dorothy J. Lipp, dean of women, Newman said.

Organizations, the English Club for one, have recently requested the extension of hours, he added.

Every organization wishing to take advantage of the new decision must have its plans approved by the dean of men's office, Newman said.

jected his proposal, contending there is no need for such a meeting while a disarmament commission representing all 99 UN members exists.

Khrushchev suggested that many governments already had lost faith in this current UN session.

"The fact that the majority of the heads of state and government who came to the UN General Assembly have already returned to their countries and others are going to return," he said, "shows that they apparently have no trust in this session of the General Assembly and do not expect that it will really take up such a vital question as the question of general and complete disarmament."

Khrushchev again proposed an assembly meeting at the summit either in Leningrad, Moscow or Geneva. He made this suggestion Friday to a UN Correspondents' Association luncheon.

Just in advance of Khrushchev's appearance, U. S. Ambassador James J. Wadsworth rejected the proposal. And after Khrushchev suggested the U.S. elections were in the way of agreement, Wadsworth took the floor to declare that the Russians are the ones who have been obstructing agreement.

"It was not the United States who walked out on disarmament negotiations," Wadsworth said, referring to the breakup of arms talks in Geneva last summer. "We are prepared to go back to the negotiating table today — elections or no elections."

As to Khrushchev's proposal for an emergency session on disarmament, the U.S. delegate declared: "There is no magic in a special session."

What was being argued was not whether the disarmament question should be raised, but whether it should in the normal course of events be allocated to the attention of the 99-member political committee. The Soviet Union wants disarmament subjected to full General Assembly debate, without the committee preliminary.

Nov. 4 Named Date For Mock Election

The Mock Elections Committee last night set Nov. 4 as the date of the University's mock presidential election.

The election, sponsored by the Student Government Association, will be held to help educate students in political processes. Both the Students for Kennedy and Johnson and the Young Republican Club of the University will campaign for their respective candidates.

Voting will be held all day with polls situated in several campus locations. Tentative plans for the decentralized stations include booths in the Hetzel Union, Sparks and Boucke.

WDFM and WMAJ had planned to carry a live political debate with student representatives of both parties participating. However, the Young Republicans, operating under the strong suggestion of the Harrisburg Republican Club, have announced that they cannot participate.

Robert Gandel, chairman of the Mock Elections Committee, speaking on this, said that the resolution from SGA permitting the election does so only under the stipulation that the campus organizations have no outside influence from the parent organizations.

Speaking for the committee, Gandel said, "As an unbiased committee we feel that any outside pressure put on either party is unnecessary and unfair to the other party."

However, he said, the radio incident would not be considered outside interference.

A taped interview with Dr. Eric A. Walker speaking on campus affairs was scheduled to be heard with the proposed debate. Steve Moiner, a representative of WDFM, said that Walker's speech will be broadcast at 9:45 p.m. tonight.