

'Sizable Seven' Depleted, Subs Uphold Tradition

By SANDY PADWE

Graduation broke up Syracuse's famed defensive unit, the "sizable seven," but the 1960 edition is doing its best to live up to tradition.

So far this year the Orange line has given up just 147 yards on the ground, an average of 49 yards a game.

"Yep, they're as good and as big as last year," Penn State scout Frank Patrick said yesterday before the Lions started practice.

"They lost a lot through graduation but these replacements seem to be doing alright, don't they," he said pointing to the Syracuse statistics.

Only three of the original members of the "sizable seven" are back, and one—Al (tombstone) Bemiller—was demoted to the second unit after the Holy Cross game.

Bruce (Cinderella) Tarbox, a guard, and Fred (Chief) Mautino, an end, are the other returnees.

Mautino, picked on everybody's pre-season All-American team, is rated as the best defensive end in the country along with Pitt's Mike Ditka.

The 6-3, 215-pound senior also is a threat on offense and caught 17 passes for 215 yards and two touchdowns last year.

Tarbox goes 6-2, 230 and is one of Schwartzwalder's most dependable performers.

Bemiller, who hopes to be a mortician some day, was the starting center all last year but Schwartzwalder was dissatisfied with his play against Holy Cross last weekend and shipped him to the second unit.

He'll be replaced by Bob Stem, a rugged pivot man who played mostly on defense last year.

The rest of the starting line has Tom Gilburg and Lou Mautino at tackle, Dick Feidler at guard and Norm (Wahoo) Lemieux at end.

Gilburg, (6-4, 230) one of the leading punters in the country, is the inside tackle on Syracuse's unbalanced line. He was converted from end last spring and has been more than a pleasant surprise.

FRED MAUTINO
... Syracuse All-American

Mautino, Fred's brother, replaces John Brown at outside tackle. Brown injured his knee in the Holy Cross game and won't be able to play tomorrow at Archbold Stadium.

Mautino will probably play on offense only, with sophomore Dave Meggyesy handling the defensive chores.

Meggyesy was named the top soph in each of Syracuse's first three games by the working press. Fiedler a 6-1, 210-pound junior is Roger Davis' replacement and has been doing an excellent job this fall.

The scouting report also says that Syracuse's second unit line is just as strong and stingy as the first.

Otis Godfrey, a guard, leads the second unit and he gets plenty of help from Big Leon Cholakis (6-0, 240) and end Walt Sweeney a 220-pound sophomore.

Yank Boss Mum On Future Plans

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Casey Stengel, one of the legendary figures of modern baseball, held court yesterday for possibly the last time in the Yankee dressing room and said in his gravelly voice:

"I won't say anything about the future. I'm going to decide what I'm going to do later in October. I've got to find out a lot of things first."

"I just told this team that they fought like everything right down to the last inning. We were behind once and we caught 'em. We were behind again and we caught 'em a second time."

"It's a good club. It showed it all the way through. At least every Series I lost went to the last game."

This could be the end of the baseball road for Stengel, despite his fabulous record. There are strong rumors he does not see eye to eye with his Yankee bosses.

Dan Topping, one of the Yankee owners, was asked, "What's the pitch on Stengel" as he edged into the gloomy dressing room to talk to the team and Stengel.

"I won't talk about it now," he snapped.

Lion Frosh Meet Navy At Annapolis

Penn State's freshman grid-ders, fully rested after a two-week layoff, will meet the undefeated Navy plebes at Annapolis today.

In their only game to date, the Midshipmen rolled to a 48-6 win over an outmanned George Washington squad.

Two weeks ago the Lion cubs defeated West Virginia, 21-20, when quarterback Ron Coates connected on an 18-yard touchdown pass to halfback Gary Wydman in the closing moments.

Except for the hotly contested quarterback post, the lineup for today's game is fairly well set.

Freshman coach Earl Bruce said that John Diebert and Bill Lezinski will start at end.

Joe Zink and either Bill Sikorski or Al Koontz will get the nod at tackle.

Lou Shimoski and Ralph Baker are slated to see duty at the guard posts, with Ted Gregor anchoring the line at center.

Bruce was undecided about who will open at quarterback. "You can throw that decision up in the air," he said yesterday. "The only thing definite is that it will either be Potter, Caum, Coates, or Wydman."

Potter opened against West Virginia and scored the first Lion touchdown on a 27-yard jaunt around end. However, before the game was over, all four backs got into the scoring act.

Coates, a six-foot, 190 pound signalcaller from Fayette City, hit Wydman twice for touchdowns.

Caum booted one extra point and caught a Coates pass for a 2-point conversion. His 33-yard punt return set up the second Lion TD.

Ed Struckrath, who looked impressive in the West Virginia victory, gets the nod at one halfback post, and Alex Chiara at the other. Tom Urbanik, a 205-pound blockbuster from Donora, will start at fullback.

Last year the Lions ended a five-game Navy winning streak by edging the Midshipmen, 10-8. The winning points came on a 29-yard fourth quarter field goal by tackle Charlie Raisig, now with the varsity.

Williams or Evans Will Start for Mounties

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (AP) — Danny Williams or Dale Evans will get the starting nod at quarterback for West Virginia's Mountaineers in tomorrow's football clash with old rival Pitt.

But WVU coach Gene Corum hasn't abandoned the idea of using sophomore Larry Tracewell at the signal-calling spot.

Corum is seeking to inject some scoring punch in his Mountaineers. Last week's 6-6 tie with Richmond was the low point so far this season in WVU's rocky football fortunes. And it extended the Mountaineers' winless streak to nine games over a two-season span. In four games so far this season, WVU has scored only 14 points.

Kerr Wins Award As 'Back-of-Week'

Penn State's Jim Kerr, the halfback whose feet are so flat that he has to wear special arches in his football shoes, has been named Sports Illustrated's Back-of-the-Week for his performance against Army last Saturday.

The St. Clairsville, Ohio performer scored three touchdowns and picked up a total of 140 yards.

Kerr's triple against the Cadets put him in select company. No other player except Navy's Joe Bellino has scored three times against Army.

"Naturally I'm proud to get the award," Kerr said yesterday after learning he had won. "I just hope I can do half as well against Syracuse Saturday."

Kerr said he wears the special arch supports because of a high school mishap.

"I was a hurdler in high school," Kerr explained, "and I broke my arches. I started having leg and back trouble so I began using these special shoes."

The shoes have arch supports inside, and a one-inch block on the outside, underneath the instep.

Because Kerr is having leg trouble if he goes more than a day or two without the special shoes, he uses them in practice all week and usually reverts to regular grid shoes on game day.

In addition to the Sports Illustrated award, Kerr was named to the UPI backfield-of-the-week and to the ECAC All-East team.

On Monday, he'll receive the Maxwell Club's weekly award in Philadelphia.

Last year, Penn State's All-American quarterback Richie Lucas won Sports Illustrated's back-of-the-week award for his Missouri performance when he completed 10 of 11 passes for 154 yards.

'S' Club to Meet

The Varsity 'S' Club will meet at 10 p.m. Sunday at Alpha Gamma Rho for the purpose of initiations. President Dick Campbell urges all members to attend.

Miller, Gilmartin Win Golf Crowns

Dave Miller of Triangle and John Gilmartin are the fraternity and independent intramural golf champions.

Miller shot steady rounds of 74 and 72 to edge Phi Gamma Delta's Jim Balling by one stroke for first place. His 146 was just eight over par.

Gene Tusi of Phi Mu Delta, with a 152 and Les Walker of Lambda Chi Alpha with 154 took third and fourth places.

Phi Sigma Kappa's Frank Kitzmiller and Lambda Chi Alpha's John Larson shared fifth place honors.

Frank De Dillo captured second place among the Indies, just a stroke off Gilmartin's pace. Harry Baer took third.

Gridiron Notes

A worried Ben Schwartzwalder says, "We spent most of the week on fundamentals. If we make the same ball handling errors against Penn State as we did against Holy Cross, we'll be run off the field." . . . Syracuse fumbled five times against the Crusaders and they lost three . . . What's more, Orange players miscued on seven passes . . . Syracuse ends dropped two sure fire TD tosses by quarterback Dave Sarette, and also bobbled five interception opportunities . . . Syracuse tackle Tom Gilburg is one of the top punters in college football . . . The 230-pound senior tackle has a 42.0 average for three games . . . Four of the players who started against Syracuse in last year's 20-18 heart-breaker will start again Saturday . . . They are captain and end Henry Oppermann, center Jay Huffman, guard Bill Popp and halfback Jim Kerr . . . Penn State will fly from nearby Black Moshannon Airport at 10 this morning, arriving at Syracuse approximately one hour later . . . Following a workout in Archbold Stadium, the Lions will be quartered at the Hotel Syracuse . . . They'll fly home tomorrow night . . . Next week Penn State will be at Illinois and Syracuse will be at West Virginia, Schwartzwalder's alma-mater.
