

Library Receives $100,000 Grant To Buy Books

The Pattee Library has received a grant of $100,000 from the University for the purpose of purchasing books, University Librarian Ralph W. McComb announced yesterday.

This non-recurring grant is the largest amount of money the library has ever been granted, McComb said.

Assembly To Consider Hospital Bill

A bill which calls for a committee which will work to improve relations between the student body and the Ritenour Health-Center will be voted on at the SGA meeting at 8 tonight in 203 Hetzel Union.

The bill, sponsored by the Freshman Class Advisory Board, proposes that SGA appoint a committee of six students plus an ex-officio member from the Health Center to study the situation.

According to John Davis, a representative of the advisory board, the plan has been approved by the dean of men and the dean of women with the stipulation that it must be a student organization and operated committee.

According to Davis, the proposed committee will be small to aid operating ease. Other committees which have tried to analyze the situation, he said, have run into difficulty because they were too large.

The six students who are selected will be given a complete tour of the health center facilities, said Davis. The ex-officio member of the committee, he added, will be Dr. Herber R. Glenn, director of the Ritenour Health Center, or someone appointed by him.

the library has ever been granted, McComb said.

$10,000 of the amount will be distributed to the libraries at Commonwealth Campuses and University Centers. The rest of the money will be used to fill basic needs in the Pattee Library on campus, McComb said.

Fifty per cent of the grant will be allotted on a preliminary basis to the library's liberal arts department for the development of holdings in that field, the University Library Advisory Board decided at a meeting Tuesday. This decision was made in view of the special needs of the College of Liberal Arts, McComb said.

We don't expect to allocate this fund in the way other library funds are used, McComb said. Instead it will be used to correct the library's basic weaknesses in the various departments.

He explained that an equal allotment to each of the library's departments would not be as effective as the planned system to distribute the sum according to need.

He said that there were no detailed allocation plans as yet. Certain pending items will be taken care of immediately and other programs will be reviewed at another Advisory Board meeting in December.

According to McComb, the library's financial situation is fine for this year due to the grant. It won't solve the whole problem, he said, but it will give a good start. However, he said that a long range financial program is being developed, which if successful, will make our library rank with the best institutions in the country.

U.S. Bans Export of Goods to Cuba; Charges Castro With Injurious Acts

TIME FOR A CHANGE—This was the theme of Sen. Joseph Clark's (D.-Pa.) speech yesterday afternoon at the rally in the HUB, sponsored by the Young Democrats. State Senator Jo Hays (D.-Pa.) was introduced by John Bonella, chairman of the Young Democrats.

Clark Calls GOP Stationary Party

By BARB YUNK

The main issue of the coming presidential campaign, according to Sen. Joseph Clark (D.-Pa.), is whether the United States needs to wake from the lethargy which has gripped it for the last eight years. Clark, speaking at a rally sponsored by the Young Democrats yesterday, described the Republicans as "a party frozen in the ice of his own convictions." They are convinced, he said, that those things which they have not done are not worth doing.

These things, he continued, include action to support federal aid for education, relief for depressed areas (Eisenhower recently vetoed the depressed areas bill), extension of the $1.25 minimum wage law to more categories and an end to the bankers' policy of high interest and tight money.

Clark charged that the Republicans with fostering a decaying American empire where the rich keep getting richer and the poor keep getting poorer.

"The Republicans have accepted lock, stock and barrel the statement of the chairman of the President's board of economic advisors that we must produce more consumer goods," Clark said. "This," he continued, "is the

Light Showers Due As Cold Air Hits

Much colder weather will move into this area today bringing the first touch of winter to the Nittany Valley.

Strong northwest winds, cloudy skies and possibly a few light showers or snowflurries will accompany the sharp change to colder temperatures.

The forecast indicates cloudy, windy and much colder weather today with a few showers or snow flurries likely. The high reading will only be 48 degrees.

Clearing and colder weather is expected tonight with a hard freeze. The overnight minimum should be about 28 degrees.

Issues 1960

Monat Cites Laws, Federal Agencies

By KAY MILLS

(This is the second of a series—"Issues 1960"—on the stands of the presidential candidates with interpretation by University Professors.)

The strength of federal regulatory agencies and conflict-of-interest laws appears as the issue on government administrative policies in the 1960 presidential campaign.

A Democratic administration would probably seek to make these agencies more independent.

William R. Monat, associate professor of political science, explained.

The Republicans, although they too want honest regulations, probably would not take as many steps toward removing the regulators from industry affiliations, Monat said.

The Democratic platform on which Sen. John F. Kennedy stands advocates a code of ethics and strengthened conflict-of-interest statutes "to assure . . . maximum security against unethical practices" by public officials.

Past policy dictates that when a person is appointed to a governmental post, he should divest himself of holdings, such as stock, which might cause conflict of interests with his officials duties.

The Republicans, Monat said, have expressed unhappiness over the policy of getting rid of all

A State Department spokesman described the major economic move, however, as "not an economic reprisal" against Castro, but as an action to help American businessmen caught in Castro's discrimination against American exports.

In its explanation, the State Department did not mention the Castro government's seizure of more than a billion dollars of American business interests in Cuba.

But certainly that was in the general picture leading to today's action.

The official embargo will make it easier for Americans not to go through with long-term commitments to ship goods to Cuba.

American shipments to Cuba, which have been running at the rate of $300 million a year, are expected to be cut by about two-thirds by the move.

The United States is Cuba's biggest supplier and in the past has provided about 75 per cent of the country's imports.

The economic impact of the embargo, measured in dollars, will go well beyond that of last summer's closedown on U.S. purchases of Cuban sugar.

However, the Castro government will not be hit as hard as it might have been.

Dispatches from Havana said the Cuban rulers, who have been anticipating what happened yesterday, have been rushing in shiploads of U.S. automobile parts such as spark plugs, fuel pumps and carburetors, plus oil refinery replacements and sugar mill supplies.
