

Campaigning Bill Tabled by SGA

Lack of Quorum Delays Legislation for One Hour

By KAREN HYNCKEAL

After a confusing discussion of constitutional rules and a vigorous debate over a proposed bill which will define the limits of elections campaigning, SGA Assembly tabled the bill. But it took them one hour before they could even begin to legislate.

At 8:50 p.m. last night Assembly was called to order

Third Party Charter In Committee

The Liberal party's application for charter has been received and discussed by the Senate Subcommittee on Organization Control, but no recommendation as to its acceptance has been reached, according to Dr. Alex Black, chairman.

The subcommittee is still discussing the application, and a recommendation will probably be made to the Senate Committee on Student Affairs in about two weeks, Black said. The party may meet on campus as long as its charter is being discussed, he added.

Under Senate regulations, all new organizations wishing to be recognized by the University must apply to the Senate Committee on Student Affairs for a charter. The committee then refers the application to its Subcommittee on Organization and Control for a recommendation.

According to Richard Snyder, party chairman, the subcommittee suggested to party leaders that they revise their membership clause to make it easier for fraternity and sorority members to join.

In its present constitution, the party allows membership to independents and any other student who has the approval of a 21-man steering committee.

The party will discuss the proposed revision at its next meeting, Snyder said.

AWS Election Finals Will Take Place Today

The Association of Women Students will hold final elections for Community Council members and AWS Senate freshman members-at-large from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. today in each women's residence area.

Voters must present their matriculation card and their meal ticket to be eligible.

U.S. Calls Cuban Ambassador Home

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States yesterday recalled Ambassador Philip W. Bonsal from Havana "for an extended period of consultation." It said, "No date has been fixed for his return to Cuba."

The State Department announcement, a day after the United States slapped an embargo on most U.S. exports to Cuba, underlined that U.S.-Cuban relations are at a new low.

Officials said they do not intend to break diplomatic relations with the regime of left-wing Prime Minister Fidel Castro. But they left up in the air whether Bonsal or someone else might eventually be returned to the Havana post.

Castro has sent no ambassador to Washington since Ernesto Digo left last December. In Havana, the U.S. Embassy will be tended by the No. 2 American diplomat there, Minister-Counselor Daniel M. Braddock.

U.S. sources said Bonsal, 57, had reached the point in Havana where his presence could do no more good at this time. The career diplomat, personally popular with many Latin Americans, has been cold shouldered by Cuban officials and repeatedly been insulted by Castro and his aides.

Bonsal, who first went to Havana in February 1959, returned to the United States for two months early this year after an especially virulent attack by Castro. He finally went back to Havana March 20 on the theory that he could tap whatever opportunities might remain for bettering U.S.-Cuban relations and could report to Washington on Cuban affairs.

The State Department announcement, issued by press officer Joseph W. Reap, left open the possibility Bonsal might never return to Havana.

It is customary for career as well as noncareer ambassadors to submit their resignations to the incoming administration, which will take office in January. It will be up to the new administration to review the Cuban question and determine new ambassadorial assignments. Also, a two-year tour for Bonsal would be up in February.

Reap said it was just a coincidence that Bonsal's recall was announced on the heels of the embargo on U.S. exports to Cuba. He said the matter had been discussed with the ambassador for several weeks and the come-home instruction had been given him earlier this week.

While Assembly members waited, telephone calls were made. Miss Adler and Miss Trone arrived and at 8:50 p.m. there was a quorum. Twenty-five minutes later, however, Miss Trone had left and again a quorum was lacking. However, the arrival of Miss Grabill again constituted a quorum.

The bill concerning commercial publicity was introduced by Walter Darran (U.-Sr.).

Darran's bill proposed that the control of commercial publicity as well as funds used for this publicity be given to the SGA Elections Committee. The funds, a specified $700, would be gotten from the SGA budget and would eliminate the need for candidates to engage large expenses in order for publicity.

The bill, however, would be unconstitutional since it would go against one of SGA's by-laws concerning the SGA elections.

Therefore, it would be necessary to amend the by-law by two readings and a vote next week.

Last night, when the constitution rules had been settled, Assembly plunged into a debate. Darran began by citing the large amounts of money spent by political parties for publicity campaigns in the past. His bill calls for publicity in the fields of radio time and posters, these fields to be supervised by the Elections Committee.

AIM Passes Motion To Start Reorganization

By ELLIE HUMMER

The Association of Independent Men Board of Governors passed a motion last night to start the reorganization of AIM into a proposed Association of Men in Residence.

The following motion was passed unanimously:

That AIM request the permission of the Senate Committee on Student Affairs to reorganize without the restrictions of the the present Constitution.

To group the executive committee and the delegates at large of the resident area councils, under temporary chairmanship, and to delegate this group to draw up a Constitution to give power to govern all residents living on campus.

To set up a committee to evaluate the social needs of all on-campus men and to present a plan of organization to the existing body of AIM.

Preceding the vote on this motion was a discussion of the possibility of setting up a body of AMR to govern all men in residence and another organization strictly for the purpose of coordinating all social and recreational activities of the independent men.

The purpose of the proposed AMR would be to have a governing body which would cover all men in residence, with no differentiation between independent and fraternity men. It would allow pledges and fraternity men living on campus to sit on any governing bodies of the organization.

Frank J. Simes, dean of men, said the character of the residence halls will probably change as a result of the four term plan. It will be highly possible that men will be living in the dormitories while they are pledging and for sometime after they are brotherized in order to fulfill housing contracts made each term.

In other business the council voted to amend an article of the Constitution to allow freshmen to serve as any officer of the Nittany Council. Previously, there had been a proposal to allow freshmen to serve in all offices with the exception of president, but this had been voted down by the council.

Roberta Hill, president of Leonides, gave a report on the proposed Indie Encampment. Miss Hill explained that Leonides felt it

SGA May Change Party Leadership

By BARB YUNK

SGA Assembly heard the first reading last night of a proposed amendment to the by-laws, which would make the majority and minority leaders in the Assembly their respective party chairmen.

The proposed amendment must be read a second time and voted on next week.

If this amendment is passed as it stands the majority and minority leaders as party chairmen would be elected only by those party members sitting on Assembly.

Robert Umstead, co-chairman of the Elections Commission and sponsor of the bill, explained that if a third party were formed which did not have members on Assembly it could operate under a temporary chairman.

A permanent chairman would be elected as soon as the party had a member or members on Assembly.

Umstead said that he could see three reasons for the proposed amendment. The first reason was what he termed "unfortunate experiences" with irresponsible party chairmen.

He then suggested that the majority and minority leader who have accepted the responsibility of actually working on Assembly would be less likely to conduct themselves in an improper manner.

Furthermore, Umstead said, if these leaders did anything, which is questionable, they would be available to the Assembly for immediate questioning.

Dennis Eiseman, Campus party chairman, suggested that the proposed amendment be changed to allow all party members to vote for the majority and minority leaders. Eiseman said that this, then, would not limit their selection merely to the small percentage of the party sitting on Assembly.

Judith High (C.-Sr.) objected to this change on the grounds that the whole party could not accurately judge the qualifications of an assemblyman for this job.

Constance Adler (U.-Sr.) said that in winning the party's nomination for Assembly these leaders would have what amounted to a vote of confidence.

Arctic Air Brings Unseasonable Cold

The change to much colder weather yesterday seems to be associated with a major change in the overall weather pattern that promises winter-like weather for the next several days.

The arctic air that moved into this area yesterday should maintain unseasonably cold weather through tomorrow.

Today will be mostly sunny with some afternoon cloudiness and continued cold. The high reading should be near 50 degrees.

Clear and quite cold weather is expected tonight with a hard freeze likely. The minimum will be near 28 degrees.

Partly cloudy skies and slightly warmer temperatures are in prospect for tomorrow with an expected maximum of 52 degrees.

New Dorm Area Named East Halls

The residence halls now being constructed opposite the flower gardens and Wagner have been officially designated as East Halls, Otto E. Mueller, director of Housing, announced yesterday.

East Halls will house 1050 students when they are opened for occupancy next fall and will consist of one four-story building, three six-story buildings and a dining hall building.

Each of the individual buildings will eventually be given a name. Mueller said the halls were originally intended to house only women, but will probably be used for both men and women. The final decision, however, will depend upon the proportion of men and women enrolling for the 1961-62 year, he added.

The East Halls are designed similarly to the Pollock Halls. Each of the buildings has a central corridor containing laundry facilities with the student rooms on either side.

The dining hall contains a snack bar and three dining rooms which together will be able to feed an additional 500 students, Mueller said.

In one building there will be two sorority suites. Each hall will have rooms for hostesses and senior resident counselors, and all will have study lounges and elevators.

The only real differences between the Pollock Halls and the East Halls, Mueller said, is the student rooms. The rooms will be about the same size but will be of different design.

Dividing the room in half from the door to the window, both centrally located, each half is the mirror image of the other, he explained.

The beds extend lengthwise from either side of the window with a back rest above them. The desks are L-shaped and will be placed at the foot of the beds.

Two lights, recessed in the ceiling, will fall over each desk while a panel of lights will extend from each desk to the closet on the side of the wall.

This light will illuminate the mirror and bulletin board which will hang at the side of the desk and next to the closet.
