

Wind-Blown FG Gives Illini 10-8 Win Over Lions

By SANDY PADWE

Except for a 20-mile-an-hour wind, it was the Missouri game all over again in Champaign, Ill., Saturday where Illinois handed Penn State its third loss in five games, 10-8.

Just as they did against Missouri four weeks ago, the Lions dropped passes, failed to cash in on golden opportunities and couldn't get an offensive attack mounted until it was too late.

Meanwhile, Illinois wasn't doing much better. But they did take advantage of a strong wind in the first quarter for a touchdown and a wobbly field goal for the victory before 51,459 in Memorial Stadium.

"We never had a wind worse than that," a sad-faced Rip Engle said before leaving the stadium. "But that's not an excuse. Illinois just has a good, powerful football team."

"I think if we could have thrown more we would have done better."

"You also have to keep in mind we weren't quite as alert physically. Remember three games in a row on the road can wear you down," the Ripper added.

Illinois wasted little time taking advantage of the strong wind which was blowing into the huge brick stadium from the south-southwest.

Illini captain Bill Brown won the toss and decided the best thing for his teammates would be to kick and play with the wind.

So kicking specialist Gerry Wood promptly showed the huge gathering just how big a factor the wind was going to be when he boomed the kick-off into the end zone for an automatic touchback.

The Lions got nowhere in three downs and Charlie Raisig went back to punt.

He lifted a high kick against the wind and Mel Meyers took it on the 50 and returned it to the Penn State 45.

From there, quarterback Johnny Easterbrook moved the Illini steadily to the Lion three where halfback Marshall Starks went inside left tackle for the score.

Wood's kick was good and the Illini had a 7-0 lead with only 5:49 gone.

Again Wood kicked off and this time Jim Kerr returned it to the 15. Illinois' strong defensive line allowed Penn State little yardage and Raisig went back to punt again with the ball on the Lion 23.

His punt went high in the air and then the wind caught it and

'K' Proposals Will Retard Disarmament, Says Britain

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Britain declared yesterday Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's proposals would delay actual disarmament for 40 years if they were carried out to the letter.

David Ormsby-Gore, British minister of state for foreign affairs, challenged the Soviet Union to spell out more concretely its position on the major issue of controls over disarmament, and to enter into new negotiations on specific issues on which there is possibility of agreement.

But the Soviet Union held fast to its position in the General Assembly's 99-nation political committee, thus strengthening speculation that the Soviet bloc would carry out its threat to walk out on the committee debate if Khrushchev's proposals do not meet complete Western acceptance.

Ormsby-Gore told the committee that Khrushchev's proposal for a disarmament treaty makes no provision for anything to be done until the last comma has been agreed upon.

He declared that the Western plan to seek agreement in specific areas where this is possible despite East-West mistrust "is more realistic, more practical and less likely to deceive the hopes of mankind with high sounding phrases, incapable of translation into action."

"Think what it would mean," he added, "if before any measure of disarmament takes place an agreement must be negotiated and signed by more than 100 states which would include measures for bringing about total disarmament down to the last man and to the last gun, together with all the related verification procedures, although the effectiveness of many of these have not yet been even studied."

"It is our firm and sincere belief that the strict adherence to such an approach would not bring about total disarmament in four years, but on the contrary would ensure that no disarmament took place in 40 years."

As to controls, the British delegate said the Soviet Union appeared to have made a considerable advance toward the Western position, but that "there is still a

Constitution Altered By Third Party

The Liberal party Sunday deleted from its proposed constitution the controversial membership clause stating that fraternity or sorority members would be eligible for membership if approved by the party's steering committee.

A new clause, which states that all students are eligible for membership as long as they hold the beliefs of the party and receive the approval of a ten-man membership committee was inserted as a replacement.

The party also approved another revision delegating the party's 21-man steering committee to suggest an equitable distribution of Liberal party candidates and officers per living area.

The changes were made after encouragement by the Senate Subcommittee on Organization and Control to provide more stable opportunities for student participation, Richard Snyder, party chairman said. The subcommittee has been studying the Liberal party's application for charter, and is expected to give its recommendation to the Senate Committee on Student Affairs within the week, he said.

PENN STATE'S Don Jonas (46) picks up short yardage in the first quarter of the Penn State-Illinois game at Champaign, Ill., Saturday. Illinois' Ed O'Bradovich (82) made the stop. The Illini won, 10-8.

Arctic Front Brings 1st Snow of Season

The second blast of arctic air within four days surged into Pennsylvania Sunday night bringing the coldest weather of the season and the first measurable snowfall of the winter.

The arctic cold front passed the State College area shortly after midnight yesterday and was followed by snow flurries, a sharp drop in temperature and strong, gusty winds.

The snow flurries and squalls, some vigorous, continued much of yesterday and into last night. The total snow accumulation was measured at six-tenths of an inch. This was the third heaviest snowfall ever observed in October.

The mercury dipped into the low 30's early yesterday and the northwesterly winds, variable cloudiness and snow flurries kept the temperature readings in the 30's all day.

The hardest freeze of the winter was expected last night. A minimum of 30 was predicted.

The snow and cold weather was not restricted to this area, but was common throughout all of the Northeastern States. Some of the areas in northwestern Pennsylvania and portions of western New York were hit by two to seven inches of snow.

Diminishing winds, more sunshine and slightly milder temperatures are due this afternoon, although a few light snow flurries are possible. A high reading of 48 degrees is expected.

Tonight will be mostly clear and cold with a low reading of 30 degrees.

Sunny to partly cloudy skies and milder temperatures are in prospect for tomorrow with a predicted maximum of 54 degrees.

Council to Start Elections Tuesday

Applications for student council elections which will be held next Tuesday and Wednesday are now available in the college buildings and at the Hetzel Union desk and must be returned this week. The colleges have announced the following information:

Agriculture: Freshman representatives will be elected through the clubs of the college. The College of Agriculture will not participate in the Nov. 1 and 2 elections.

Business Administration: Self-nominating ballots are available for first and second semester freshmen in the main office of Boucke. The deadline for returning these applications is tomorrow.

Chemistry and Physics: Applications are available in 101 Osmond and at the HUB desk. They must be returned to either place by 5 p.m. Thursday. Three freshmen in any curriculum will be elected, also two sophomores in chemical engineering, and five juniors in any curriculum.

Education: Applications for freshmen may be obtained at the HUB desk and must be returned there tomorrow.

Engineering and Architecture: Applications for freshmen and sophomore representatives are now available in 216 Sackett. Sophomores will elect one representative in each curriculum; freshmen one representative in architecture, one representative in architectural engineering and eight members at large. Petitions must be returned to 216 Sackett by Thursday. Signatures of 25 people in the nominee's class and curriculum or 10 per cent of that group, whichever is the smaller number, is required.

Home Economics: Freshmen interested in representing their

IFC Votes to Ask For OK on 'Bars'

Interfraternity Council went on record last night to recommend to the Senate Committee on Student Affairs that the rule concerning the maintenance of bars in "any student or social unit" be amended so that only permanent bars are prohibited.

Senate Regulation W-4 now states that "... maintenance of bars, dispensing equipment, or similar facilities for storing or serving alcoholic beverages in any student or social unit are prohibited."

Until the last two years this has been interpreted to mean that only permanent bars were unacceptable, said Richard Haber, president of Beta Sigma Rho, who proposed the bill.

However, this rule is now being strictly interpreted to mean that no bars are permitted in fraternities, he said. Since the Senate committee is now reviewing all the W, Y, Z rules, "this is the time to take a stand," he said. IFC must change its "hazy, Casper Milquetoast attitude," he said.

The motion as originally proposed by Haber called for IFC to go back to the old interpretation of the W-4 rule until a decision is reached on it and that IFC further recommend to the committee that the new regulation merely prohibit permanent bars.

In opposing the bill, Gary Robinson, chairman of the IFC Board of Control, pointed out that he had contacted members of the Senate committee and that they felt such a motion might only lead to stricter regulation.

The objection to bars, he was told, was that fraternities were beginning to look too much like cocktail lounges.

After much discussion Haber withdrew the first part of his motion to let the old system go back into effect, since, as a member pointed out, "IFC is not free to tell the Board of Control to interpret a regulation illegally."

The final motion was passed by a voice vote.
