

IFC Control Board To Maintain Policies

By PAT DYER
Second of a Series

The Interfraternity Council Board of Control will continue to operate under similar conditions as in previous years, according to the recommendations submitted by the Rules and Regulations Workshop of the IFC Encampment held in September.

7 Councils Open Polls For Voting

Seven colleges will hold elections today and tomorrow to fill openings on their student councils. The polling places will be held in the various college buildings and on the ground floor of the Hetzel Union Building. Polls will open at 8 a.m. and close at 5 p.m.

The Education and Liberal Arts Colleges and the Division of Counseling will have polling places on the HUB ground floor. Liberal Arts will also have polls in Sparks.

Business Administration voting will be held in Boucke. The polls for Chemistry and Physics will be in Osmond. Home Economics will be in Home Economics and Engineering and Architecture voting will be held in Sackett.

The other three colleges — Physical Education and Athletics, Mineral Industries and Agriculture — are not participating in the council-wide elections. Their council representatives will be chosen by elections held within the college or in the clubs of the college.

Although this election is primarily to elect freshmen representatives, some colleges are choosing upperclass representatives also. Sharon Hoffman, coordinator for the council elections for the Inter-College Council Board, said.

Accident Involves Two Men Students

Two students were involved in an automobile accident Saturday evening on the corner of S. Atherton St. and Prospect Ave. Jack E. Cartwright, sophomore in secondary education from Camp Hill, was driving south on Atherton when a car operated by Frederick G. Waite, junior in electrical engineering from Chambersburg, ran into the Cartwright car, according to State College police.

Waite has been charged by the police with failing to yield the right-of-way and driving without lights.

Miss Sue Talley from Camp Hill, a passenger in the Cartwright car, received slight bruises and scratches. She was treated by a local physician.

The cost of damages was estimated at $600 for the Cartwright car and $300 for Waite's car.

Weintraub Elected To Head Council

Nittany Council Wednesday elected freshmen to all council offices except that of the vice presidency.

Stephen Weintraub, president, and Frank Milus, vice president, ran unopposed. Milus, senior in landscape architecture from Colonia, N.J., is the only upperclassman.

The other council officers are James Pukata, secretary; Gary Kapp, treasurer; Leigh Yates, parliamentarian; and Terry Popkin and Robert Bell, representatives-at-large to AIM.

In other business the council voted to give a prize to the best dormitory in the Nittany area for the pre-Maryland game Banner Contest.

No changes in Board of Control organization or policies were considered by the workshop, Gary Robinson, chairman of the Board of Control and chairman of the workshop, said last night.

At present the Board of Control is composed of seven members and a chairman appointed by the IFC executive committee. Board members must be house presidents. The chairman and the executive committee sit as non-voting members on the board.

In contrast with other campus tribunals, the board not only hears cases, but also reports them, Robinson explained.

The board is charged with the responsibility of investigating and reporting any violations of IFC Regulations. This includes rushing, pledging and social code violations.

To carry out this job, the chairman appoints 12 team captains (the seven board members plus five house presidents) who then organize the checking teams.

Each week about four teams make checking rounds. Each team goes out 2 or 3 times during the year, Robinson said.

The workshop also discussed penalties for violations of IFC regulations. They recommended that the board consider each case under its own circumstances and arrive at a decision without being bound by fixed penalties.

This again, is consistent with previous policy, Robinson explained. Certain violations such as those concerning door duty and failure to register pledges do carry fixed penalties — a fine and four weeks observation for door duty violations and a fine schedule for pledging registration violations.

However, rushing and social code violations are always considered on their own merits, Robinson said. If there is a precedent for the case, it will be referred to for background information, but each case is dealt with individually, he said.

Industrial Council Meets With Eng-Arch Faculty

Eighty leaders in industry met yesterday with faculty members of the College of Engineering and Architecture to discuss academic programs and the personnel needs of industry.

The men are members of the Industrial and Professional Advisory Council organized last year.

The theme of the meeting will be: "Education Through the Eyes of an Industrialist."

Jaunzemis to Continue Grant-Supported Studies

Theoretical studies of stresses produced by high temperature conditions in various structural elements are being continued for the second year by Dr. Walter Jaunzemis, assistant professor of engineering mechanics.

His research is supported by a one-year grant of $12,329 from the Air Research and Development Command of the United States Air Force. The same agency also supported his studies last year.

Thinking it would be a snap to select the winner from the five finalists for the Jr. Prom Queen, I was unprepared for the ensuing frustration of having to make a selection. Any of the five were equally qualified on the basis of poise and beauty. The real quandry became apparent only after each girl had a 1.5 minute interview with us. Of course this only solidified the dilemma. Essentially judges are human beings not withstanding the fact that their degree of impartiality can be affected by how tough their steak dinner was. For true objectivity, contests should be "machine judged" what ever that is. T'was rough indeed.

ONE to a person - - - FREE. This concerns that pile of about 100 extra party pictures from last semester, laying about our studio. First come, first served.

Speaking of parties, a picture of each party we photographed this past weekend will be on display in the Western Union window (next to Graham's). House names will be deleted until Friday. But between now and then the first person who can identify each picture will receive a steak dinner in any one restaurant in this county.

Wonder why so few coeds use perfume. To the educated European woman the tasteful use of perfume is an important part of good grooming.

Sororities who plan to have us do their composite this Spring can inform their members that those in need of Xmas portraits can be photographed this month. These girls should call and make their own appointments.

Check the Theta's sophomore class. Living dolls . . . absolutely. We thank the following girls, whom amongst many, it gave us much pleasure in working with this past week. Each for her own reason.
