

Jonas Scores on Punt Return

 ers with 55 yards in 13 carries.
 Dick Hoak was right behind with 54 yards and he was followed by fullback Sam Sobczak with 50 yards.

But it was junior halfback Don Jonas who pulled off the most sensational play when he gathered in a bouncing Terp punt on the State 35 and raced the rest of the way for a touchdown in the second quarter.

Any hopes of a Maryland upset were squashed just six minutes and forty seconds after the opening kickoff when Kerr climaxed a 91-yard drive by slashing off tackle for Penn State's first touchdown.

Captain Henry Oppermann booted the extra point to put the Lions in the lead, 7-0, and the Terrapins never quite recovered from the shocking fact that Penn State could move so easily against them.

But the Terps did make a fight of it. In fact, they came right back after State's first touchdown on a drive that looked equally impressive.

Dale Betty, the Maryland quarterback and All-American end candidate, Gary Collins were mainly responsible for getting the Terp attack moving.

Betty, engineering the complicated Maryland "I" formation, hit on six straight passes and the Terps moved from their own 13 to State's 16.

Suddenly Penn State got stingy and held the Terps to three yards in three downs.

With a fourth and seven situation coming up, Vinnie Scott and the Terps lined up for a field goal

PENN STATE'S Al Gursky (43) carries Maryland center Bob Hacker (51) for a free ride during third quarter of the Penn State-Maryland game at Beaver Stadium Saturday. Gursky picked up four yards on the play. The Lions won, 28-9.

SURPRISE—Penn State's Don Jonas takes Gary Collins' punt in second period of Lion-Maryland game Saturday in Beaver Stadium. Seconds later Jonas was in the Maryland end zone 65 yards away for Penn State's second touchdown. The Lions stopped the Terps at Beaver Stadium, 28-9.

from the 20. Scott's kick was good and State's lead was cut to 7-3.

The Lions made it 15-3 midway in the second quarter on Jonas' punt return.

Collins' kick was a high one that bounced to the Lion 35.

Both teams stood around watching the ball, then Jonas broke into the maze of blue and white jerseys and took off down the sidelines as the stunned Maryland defenders looked in disbelief downfield.

"I was running over to block in case Jim Kerr was going to take the ball," Jonas said.

"I heard someone yell from the sidelines to let the ball go, but I didn't see any white jerseys around so I just took it and started for the sidelines.

"There was one block but I don't even know who threw it,"

Jonas said.

Kerr then scampered around left end for the conversion points to give State its 15-3 halftime lead.

Penn State's final two scores came after a pass interception and a fumble in the third period.

Center Jay Huffman set up the third score when he intercepted a Betty pass on the Maryland 27 shortly after the second half started.

Five plays later Kerr dove over from the one. Oppermann's kick made it 22-3 with just 3:45 gone.

Later in the period, Dick Pae recovered a Tom Brown fumble on the Terp 23.

Hoak went 18 yards for a first down on the five and from there Hoak's cousin Buddy Torris carried over for the final TD. The run for the extra point failed.

Maryland's lone touchdown also came in the third quarter.

It came just after Jonas had intercepted a pass in the Lion end zone.

Jonas ran it back to the 33, but there was a clipping penalty downfield and the ball wound up back on the State seven yard line.

On State's first play, Hoak fumbled and the slippery pigskin squirted toward the goal line where Terp halfback Joe Mona pounced on it for a six-pointer. The extra point failed and the score was 28-9, the same as the final count.

State lost another left end Saturday when Dave Alexander suffered a dislocated shoulder. He'll be out for the rest of the season and Cliff Davis will probably move up in his place.

The week before, John Bozick suffered a broken leg against West Virginia.

Worcester, Mass., to meet Holy Cross while Maryland will be at Chapel Hill, N.C., for a meeting with the North Carolina Tarheels.

Coed Invades Press Box; Ref Confesses

Saturday was a day for the bizarre at Beaver Stadium—a coed broke an age old tradition by crashing the press box and an official admitted he was wrong.

The press box, regarded as one of man's last exclusive domains, was completely shaken when a drenched coed marched through the door at halftime.

Penn State sports publicist Jim Tarman rubbed his owlsh eyes and looked again.

"What are you doing in here," he exclaimed with a horrified look.

"I'm cold and I'm wet," came the reply. "Well, you can't stay here," Tarman said.

Just as she said "Why not?" she was seen departing the premises quicker than Swaps ever broke from the starting gate.

Referee Billy Reynolds' admission that he threw his flag too fast on a roughing the kicker penalty shortly before the half also had the press box buffs scratching their heads.

The controversy arose when Penn State's Charlie Raisig punted just inside the one-yard line. A flag went down near Raisig and everyone figured that roughing the kicker had been called.

Penn State seemed to decline the penalty and the Terps took the ball on the one. Nobody could figure why Penn State declined because a roughing the kicker penalty is good for 15 yards.

However, Reynolds phoned the press box at halftime and explained that he threw his flag too fast. He said a Maryland man actually hit the ball and in doing so came in contact with the kicker. He said when this happens there is no penalty.
