Student Politicians Prepare For Coming SGA Elections

With the SGA fall elections scheduled for Dec. 5, 6, and 7 the three political parties have made their final nominations for SGA Assembly seats and class presidents and one has set up its platform.

The positions of freshman and sophomore class presidents will be filled along with 18 Assembly seats. The parties may nominate two candidates for the two senior seats to be filled, three for the two junior seats, four for the six sophomore and six for the eight freshman seats.

This year's elections were moved back about three weeks to allow the Liberal party (which is awaiting an official charter) a chance to endorse candidates and also to avoid splitting the campaign because of the coming vacation.

Campaigning is expected to begin Nov. 28 the day after Thanksgiving recess.

Liberals Back 15 'Endorsees'

Liberal party made its final selection of 15 "endorsees" Sunday night and spent the rest of the meeting discussing its charter difficulties.

Party members were particularly disturbed when party officers announced that a "Senate committee member compared the Liberal party to Communist and fascist organizations." No specific Senate member was named.

The proposed third party, with a registered membership of 42 students, had its charter rejected last Tuesday when the Senate Committee on Student Affairs refused to accept what it termed "membership restrictions" in the group's constitution.

Barry Flashman, vice chairman, read the group a letter by party officers in which they asked the Senate Committee to explain exactly what the committee required for a charter and why the

U Party Names 18 Candidates Campus OK's Party Platform

Over 300 University Party members met Sunday night to decide their nominees for student government positions.

The party, by acclamation, named Dean Wharton, freshman class president, its choice for the sophomore class presidency.

James Sloan, freshman in engineering from Havertown, will carry the Party banner in his bid for the presidency of his class. He defeated Jay Globman and Martin Eichelberger for the position.

Chosen without opposition as nominees for SGA senior assemblymen were Cricket Grabill and Sara Phillips.

Nominated for junior assemblymen were Nancy Williams, Patricia Higgins and William Stout. Failing to receive the party nomination, Joan Cavanagh petitioned and will run independently for a junior seat.

The SGA constitution provides

Seventeen candidates for Student Government Association positions were nominated Sunday night by 21 voting Campus Party members.

The party's five-point campaign platform was also approved without objection.

Campus Party nominee for freshman class president is John Androski, an engineering major from Scranton. He defeated Norman Levin, business administration major from Chester, for the nomination.

Sam Lerch, sophomore in aeronautical engineering from Curllsville, won the nomination for president of his class. He was opposed by Edward Loev, pre-med major from Philadelphia.

Candidates for SGA freshman assembly seats are Diana Sasse, Harvey Gordon, Gwyneth Jenkins, Barbara Krauth, Sandra Tait and Eugene Levine.

Each party selects six candidates for the eight seats to be filled in the Dec. 6 and 7 election. This distribution insures the minority party in a two-party system of at least two freshman seats. Dennis Eisman, vice chairman, said.

Five sophomores were nominated to represent their class on SGA Assembly: Ralph Friedman, Norman Rhodes, Joseph Ebner, Edward Loev and David Reichard.

Seven vacancies will be filled in the upcoming election.

Dennis Eisman, Robert McLean and William Laman were nomi-

Kennedy, Nixon Meet in Florida

KEY BISCAIYNE, Fla. (AP) — John F. Kennedy paid a perhaps unprecedented call yesterday on the man he defeated for the presidency to discuss in an atmosphere of cordiality the great problems of a political transition and world affairs.

Side by side in a villa, with the sound of the surf outside,

Kennedy and Vice President Richard M. Nixon chatted for 63 minutes.

Kennedy said later there was no discussion of a position for the vice president in the new administration.

In separate news conferences afterwards, each said the session was cordial and helpful.

It was Kennedy who made the overtures for the meeting with the man whom he fought all over the country in the weeks of rigorous campaigning before last week's election. And it was Kennedy, the winner, who came to see Nixon, the loser, in what the vice president termed "a very gracious act."

While there were deep differences during the campaign, Nixon said, now that the decision is made, the meeting yesterday is "notice to all the world there will be no differences we will have in the next four years based on personal considerations."

Kennedy then held his news conference.

The first question was whether Kennedy had offered the vice president any post in his new administration.

"We did not discuss that," Kennedy said.

To an assortment of other questions about such things as bipartisanship, bringing Republicans into the administration, and Cuba, Kennedy replied by referring back to his opening statement as presenting what he wanted to say about the talks.

Finally, to a question whether he would rule out "the possibility of using Mr. Nixon in your administration in any capacity," Kennedy took a slightly different tack.

"Mr. Nixon," he said, "has a definite responsibility as leader of his party and I think that perhaps he can answer how he would define that responsibility more satisfactorily than I can."

X-Country Team Wins IC4A Title

Special to the Collegian

NEW YORK, N.Y., Nov. 14

—Depth was the deciding factor for the Penn State cross country team today as the Lions won their first IC4A championship since 1951.

Penn State won the title with a total of 70 points. Army was second with 119, Michigan State third with 130, Manhattan fourth with 139, and Yale fifth with 231.

Bob Lowe of Brown University won his second major Eastern title of the season by capturing first place in the time of 25:40.4.

Last Saturday, the Brown senior won the Heptagonal title, downing the best of the Ivy League and Army. Second place went to Larry Sweet of Alfred.

Herm Weber, Gerry Norman, and Steve Moorhead, three of the East's best distance runners, were the top Lion finishers, taking eighth, ninth, and tenth places respectively.

But the deciding factors for the Nittanics were the fine performances of sophomores Howie Deardorff and Lionel Bassett.

Deardorff had previously run his worst meet of the season over the Van Cortlandt Park course in the Lions' dual meet with Manhattan. His poor showing then

35 Penn Staters Chosen For College 'Who's Who'

Thirty-five students have been chosen to represent the University in this year's "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities."

Each year the publication accepts and publishes the names of outstanding students on campuses all over the nation. Selecting the representatives is left to the individual schools.

Here at the University, a committee of five made the final selections. Members were Richard Haber, SGA president; Susan Sherman, SGA secretary-treasurer; Margaret McPherson, AWS president; William Fuller, director of the Association of Student Activities, and George Donovan, director of student activities.

Each year the Who's Who main office in Alabama sends a letter to each school asking for its selection. Donovan said that he usually receives the letter and has recently made it a practice to turn it over to the SGA president. The SGA president then selects a committee to make the Who's Who selections.

Selections are made from a list of 90 students, 10 submitted by each of the nine college councils.

Final choices are made on the basis of contributions to the University, usually through student activities using elected positions as an important determining factor.

Hoak Runs Wild as Lions Win, 33-8

By SANDY PADWE

Dick Hoak, a converted halfback who makes quarterbacking look extremely simple, took it upon himself to ruin homecoming for 20,000 enthusiastic Holy Cross fans at Worcester, Mass., Saturday.

The Lion senior passed and ran for 234 yards, threw a touchdown pass and set up two other scores as Penn State rolled to a 33-8 win over the Crusaders at Fitton Field.

Penn State's victory snapped a four-game win streak for Eddie Anderson's youthful Crusaders who now have a 4-4 record.

By winning, State clinched its 22nd consecutive winning season and headed into Saturday's key game against Pitt with a 5-3 log.

This was the third straight week that Hoak has been Penn State's big offensive gun, but Saturday's Holy Cross performance far surpassed his showings against West Virginia and Maryland.

Hoak had plenty of support up front in the person of Bill Saul, voted the game's outstanding lineman.
