

Effort to Cut Costs Needs Cooperation

A campaign to reduce costs and increase efficiency in the dining halls is underway, but the success of the operation depends on student cooperation, Robert C. Proffitt, director of Food Service, said.

"All additional costs incurred by waste must come out of the students' food dollar," Proffitt said, "and students could do many things to help maximize efficiency at mealtime."

One of the best things students could do to help reduce costs would be to adjust their eating times to the times when fewer students are eating in the dining halls, Proffitt said.

"Between 7:30 and 7:45 in the morning only about 20 students come through the lines," he said, "when we can accommodate 150." More students eating at this time would reduce the size of the lines, he explained.

Proffitt said that at times when few students are using the cafeteria lines, the kitchen staff is not able to utilize its time efficiently. Long lines at the end of the meal periods keep the cafeterias open for as much as 15 minutes after the regular time and the cost of this additional labor must be paid for, he said.

Damage done to the furniture in the dining halls is another cost which adds dollars to the cost of the Food Service operation, Proffitt said.

Proffitt said that the practice of taking china and silverware from the dining halls has been much more of a problem in the past than it is now, but it still persists somewhat. The china-ware is specially designed and is expensive to replace, he said.

Ashtrays taken from the dining halls present more of an inconvenience than a loss, Proffitt said and explained that when no ashtrays are available, students stub cigarettes out on the chinaware and on the floor.

The employees' cafeterias in Redifer, Simmons, Waring, Warrack and McElwain have been eliminated in the interests of conserving costs, Proffitt said. (Pollock Circle and the Turf Plots are designed without these cafeterias.) "These separate dining rooms are very desirable," Proffitt added, "but we just can't afford it."

He also said that he had had his interoffice communication system disconnected in the Foods Service building in order to save $700 yearly.

Rein Explains 'Project Joey' To North Halls

"Project Joey," a Christmas party to be given for the children of St. Mary's, St. John's and Blair County orphanages, was explained to the members of North Halls Council Monday night by Roberta Hill and Barry Rein, co-chairmen of the Independent Student Association.

Rein and Miss Hill said that independent men were urgently needed to work on "Project Joey" committees.

All interested men should attend a meeting at 7 p.m. tomorrow in 215 Hetzel Union.

In other business, George Schoeffner, chairman of the Outstanding Living Unit committee, explained the way in which the best all-around North Halls living unit will be chosen.

Schoeffner said points will be given for participation in intramurals (team and individual), academic average (based on fall semester results), extra dormitory projects, North Halls sponsored projects and University sponsored projects.

Visiting Soc Prof To Address Club On 'Punishment'

Dr. George B. Vold, visiting professor of sociology from the University of Minnesota, will address the Sociology Club at 8 p.m. tomorrow in 10 Sparks on "Is Capital Punishment Desirable?"

Dr. Vold, one of the foremost penal reformers in Minnesota, has recently published a criminology book titled, "Theoretical Criminology."

He has also served on several special gubernatorial committees and has made first hand studies of prison conditions along with a one year study of police and prisons with the U.S. Occupation Forces in Japan.

She will preside at the fall meeting of the Association in Harrisburg Saturday.

Alma McDougall, associate professor of hotel administration was chosen president of the Pennsylvania Dietetic Association on Nov. 1.

Next time your parents come up for a visit, take them to Duffy's famous tavern in Boalsburg. You'll see why Duffy's is a Penn State tradition. Relax this weekend over a fine steak or lobster cooked to your own specifications.

Open Saturday at 5 p.m.
In Boalsburg, 4 miles east of State College on Route 322 (turn right at the Texaco Station)
