

Weinberger Discusses Forgeries of Masters

By ELLIE HUMMER

Although forgers of art are great technicians, they will always lack an understanding of art and a feeling for taste, Martin Weinberger, distinguished visiting professor in art and architectural history, said in a lecture last night.

The forger will always be a hit-or-miss type of artist, he said, but although every copy is a forgery, not every copy is a bad work of art.

The art of forgery arose in the beginning of the 15th century, when people first began to pay money for old things, he said. The market for collectors' items has been so great, Weinberger said, that if all the supposedly authentic English and French furniture appearing in the museums is actually real, every Frenchman and Englishman between 1600-1700 must have had at least three writing desks and several dining room suites.

The curator of a museum or a connoisseur of art must face many different types of forgeries, Weinberger said. These people fear a work that has been patched up more than one that is an outright fake from the beginning, he added.

The work may be a copy of an original by the actual artist of the original, he said, and many of these workshop pieces may be very good. Another copy may be by a contemporary of the artist and at least have the general feeling of the period, he said. A forgery by a later artist is perhaps the easiest to detect because it is more removed from the original.

Very few forgers last more than 30 years, Weinberger said. He explained that when the mannerisms of the particular period the forger lived in have died away, it becomes apparent that the work has mannerisms of the forger's own contemporary period.

To illustrate this point, Weinberger showed a slide of a statue of supposedly ancient Roman origin. Although the trained eye could pick out the technical faults of the work, he said, any one knows the ancient Romans did not wear the trunks which are very evident on this work.

Another example of this tendency of a forger to put his own period in the work was the coffee pot which appeared on a work which was to have been of a time previous to the modern coffee pot, Weinberger pointed out.

The three main techniques of forgery are the simple copy, the composite and the sublime method, he said.

Kleenex Kaper Plays Part In Horse Show

Common facial tissues played an important part in the Riders Club annual Fall Horse Show last weekend.

The "Kleenex Event" was one of 14 classes presented. Partners on horseback held a tissue between them cantering, trotting and walking their horses as directed.

The length of the tissue remaining intact determined the winners as Dora Ann McKenzie, senior in elementary kindergarten education from Montrose and president of the Riders Club, and her partner Donald Ferry from Roaring Springs.

About 100 entrees participated in the contest.

In the Burlap Bag Race the participants had to ride to a pile of burlap bags, dismount, climb into bags, remount and ride to the finish line. Barney Derstetter, a 4-H member from Tyrone took first place in this event.

Bareback Horsemanship was judged on form and was won by Jane Clarke, freshman in agriculture from Centre Hall.

Yale Prof to Speak At Chapel Service

E. William Muehl, professor of practical theology at Yale Divinity School, will speak for the University chapel service at 10:55 a.m. tomorrow in Schwab. His topic will be "The Dark Reflection of God."

A lawyer by training, Muehl is considered an authority on homiletics, the art of preaching. He received his bachelor of arts and his bachelor of law degrees from the University of Michigan and an honorary master of arts degree from Yale.

In addition to being a member of the Michigan Bar Association, Muehl belongs to the American Arbitration Association and has served as arbitrator in New England labor management disputes. Members of the University Chapel Choir and the Meditation Chapel Choir will sing for the service, with James Beach conducting.

Speaking at the Protestant worship service at 9 a.m. tomorrow in the Helen Eakin Eisenhower Chapel will be The Rev. Donald McIlvride, Presbyterian chaplain to the University.

Rev. McIlvride, who will speak on "Pushing to the Extremities," came to the University in 1956 after teaching in the Michigan public school system. He is also director of the Westminster Foundation.

He is a graduate of Western Michigan University and received his bachelor of divinity degree from Union Theological Seminary and a master of arts degree from the University of Michigan.

The Meditation Chapel Choir, directed by Willa Taylor, will sing for the service.

In 1924 attendance figures showed 3320 undergraduate students at the University with men outnumbering women by more than eight-to-one.

Chess Team To Compete At Princeton

Penn State will become the 1960 National Intercollegiate Chess Team Champion if it can beat players from New York and the University of Chicago, Mordecai Treblow, director of the tournament, said yesterday.

The National Intercollegiate, biggest tournament in college chess, will be played on Dec. 27-30 at Princeton University.

It will be a seven-round Swiss team tournament in which teams will play opponents with the same win and loss score without any team being eliminated. The tournament is open to any full time college undergraduate.

Treblow said he thinks Penn State can beat its leading opponents, the players from Harvard, Columbia, City College of New York, Fordham and the University of Chicago.

Representing Penn State at the tournament will be Anthony Cantone, first board, and Richard Sommerville, second board. Playing the other two boards and acting as alternates will be Harry Mathews, Anthony Poulos, George Djurjevic and Eugene Grumer.

TOCS--

(Continued from page one) long since ended--when the nation might have been able to afford the luxury of summer-long "holidays" from learning.

"What is needed, obviously, is a fundamental shift in the public attitude toward college-going. Whereas now it is the "regular" student who attends college nine months out of every twelve for four years, and the "irregular" student who also attends in the summer, it should actually be the other way around, with the "regular" student attending on a year-round basis. The exception must become the rule."

John Wanamaker would wait early at the door to his department store. To all late department managers he would merely smile and say "Good morning." Nothing else happened, but nobody was late a second time

PIZZA PIE

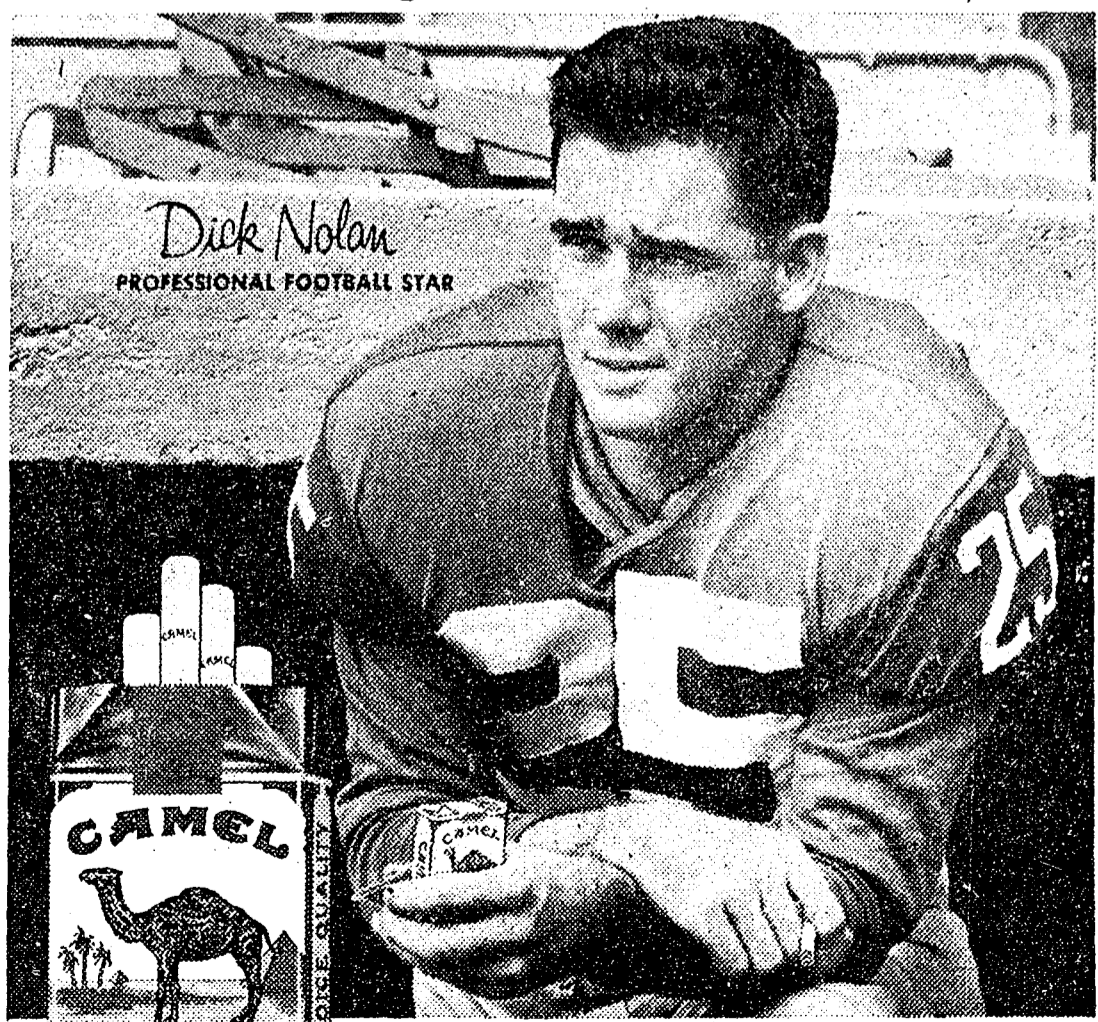

Just What You Need For A Party

Bar-B-Qued Chicken
Halves and Wholes
50c and up

FRANK'S HOAGIE HAVEN
(Formerly Morrell's)
112 S. Frazier St.
SPEEDY DELIVERY
5 p.m. to 12:30 a.m.
CALL: AD 8-8381

Have a real cigarette—have a CAMEL

The best tobacco makes the best smoke!
B. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., Winston-Salem, N. C.

FIRESIDE FORUM

on India with

MR. AND MRS. CHAUNCEY LANG

SUNDAY 6:30 P. M.

Wesley Foundation 256 E. College Ave.

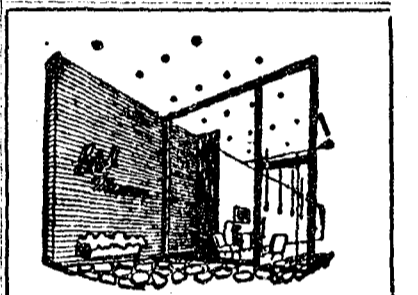

ISA Asks Indies To Join Committee For 'Project Joey'

The Independent Students Association will place posters in the residence halls asking independents and student groups to sign up to help ISA with Project Joey, Susanne Bolich, project co-chairman, said yesterday.

Those who sign up for the project will help give a Christmas party on Dec. 11 from 1-6 p.m. in the Hetzel Union Building. About 80 children from the St. Mary's and St. John's orphanages and the Blair County Children's Home will attend.

Each child will be the personal guest of a student for the party.

Movies will be shown and a sing will be held in the HUB ballroom. All the children will be treated to a special Christmas dinner in the HUB Terrace Room.

Through the Looking Glass with Gabbi

Well are you ready, have you been good . . . GREAT TURKEY DAY is coming. Remember the Great Turkey is watching.

IMPRESS HIS OR HER PARENTS . . .

with your good taste. Take them a gift from Ethel Meserve's. Only at Ethel's can you find the perfect gift for every personality.

EVERY WOMAN LOVES A HANDBAG

Don't miss our Margaret Smith collection of plain or plaid cloth handbags. These stunning bags come in either red or black. While you're here, see the "Boodle Bag" by Rolfs.

IT WAS GRAND, WHILE IT LASTED . . .

Indian summer I mean. But as I was nearly swept off my feet by a sudden gust of wind today, I remembered that snow is just around the corner. Girls, come to Ethel's for the warmest mittens in town. They're attractive too embroidered brown leather mittens. Ever tried an umbrella to keep off the snow, it's the latest fad. Seriously fresh, winter does strange things to people up here. Wait till you see for yourself. What's that you're not coming back?

IT'S YOUR LAST CHANCE . . .

before Great Turkey Day to order personalized Christmas cards. See Ethel's complete selection.

Happy Great Turkey Day,
Gabbi

Ethel Meserve