Eisman Claims Mistake

TO THE EDITOR: The editorial which appeared in Saturday's Collegian criticizing the Elections Commission failed to give all the facts.

As it was stated in the editorial, I demanded that Umstead put the platforms on the campaign posters so that students would know immediately what the candidates stood for. It wasn't stated, however, that it wasn't possible for the printer to do so without making the pictures too small.

I then agreed that the platforms be printed in the Collegian since there wouldn't be time to have them commercially printed and distributed. Walter Darran, who wrote the "$700 bill" and who is majority leader of the opposite party, also agreed this was a fair solution to the problem. It's obvious that since Darran had written the bill he knew it's intent.

The endorsees of the proposed Liberal party could have had the same publicity given to the two present parties if they wanted it. They simply refused to accept it. Instead of fighting the bill in SGA as Robert Umstead and myself did, leaders of the "Liberal Party" literally sat in that gallery and didn't open their mouths.

They chose to remain silent and after the bill was passed they misrepresented it to the public as giving money to political parties. If this is grounds for someone to claim injustice it's not the "Liberal Party" but the student body of this University.

I believe before the Elections Commission is editorially railroaded, their side of the story should be considered also.

Clarifications--

by Umstead against passing out cards printed by her father advocating her election. A precedent for this was set two years ago when a freshman class presidential candidate got into trouble for this same offense.

Three independent candidates were disqualified by the Elections Commission when examination of their petitions proved they did not have the 100 signatures required by the SGA election laws.

Although each petition had at least 100 or a few more when turned in, enough signatures were invalidated because they were fictitious names, were signed twice, or were not in the same class as the candidate, as required by law.

While charges have arisen from all sides over this election, it must be remembered that, whether liked or not, in a constituency governed by law, the laws must be followed by both those seeking election and those conducting the election.

46 Vie for SGA Positions

Forty-six students are running for Student Government Association positions in the elections being held today and tomorrow.

Independent candidates who have been endorsed by members of the proposed Liberal party: freshman class president, Jon

Readers Meet In Workshop

Three students of the University Readers presented a program of short stories Wednesday as part of the weekly workshop.

The purpose of the workshops is to train students for membership in the University Readers.

"The Ruggles' Christmas" by Kate Douglas Wiggin was read by Peggy Mitchell, freshman in liberal arts from Leesburg. Philip Weber, senior in mining engineering from State College, presented "Prison" by Benjamin Malahud. "Is There a Santa Claus?" by P. Church was read by Pat Higgins, junior in home economics from Sterling, Va.

The first University registrar was Miss Harriet E. McElwain.

Curry Receives Grant

Dr. Haskell B. Curry, professor of mathematics, has received a two-year grant of $20,400 from the National Science Foundation to support research in the field of combinatory logic, one of the more fundamental aspects of mathematical logic.
