

Just Call Cleveland a 'Pest'

By SANDY PADWE
Cleveland Jones, the Oregon halfback from San Diego, Calif., is known as "Smiley" to his teammates, "Pussyfoot" to Stanford's Cactus Jack Curtice and "that pest" to everyone else who has played against him.

The smallest player in major college ranks, Jones stands just 5-3 and weighs 148 but his record at Oregon is better than any of the "king-sized" backs.

This year, the little speedster was one of the main cogs in the Oregon attack as the Ducks posted a 7-2-1 record which landed them a berth in Saturday's Liberty Bowl battle against Penn State.

Every place you looked this fall, Jones was there. He was Oregon's top scorer with 46 points, was second to Dave Grayson in rushing with 511 yards, and was tops in pass receiving with 25 receptions for 402 yards.

"Jonesey is a truly amazing football player. There isn't anything he can't do and do well," Oregon coach Len Casanova said.

"He'll block and tackle, he has an amazing sense of balance which makes him a fine runner and the way he catches a pass is something to see.

"I don't really know what he could do to be a more complete football player," Casanova added.

Jones played high school and junior college ball in San Diego before coming to Oregon in 1959.

Stanford was the first team that tried to stop the midget racer.

Jones ruined the Indians with his running and pass receiving and after the game "Cactus Jack" couldn't stop praising him.

"Why that Pussyfoot Jones is amazing. You don't know whether he's going to go up, down or just plain scatter," a frustrated Curtice exclaimed.

It was the same story in this year's Stanford game with Jones catching a pair of touchdown passes in addition to a couple of long runs.

Despite his size, Jones has always been a regular and never has been hurt enough to miss any action.

Earlier this year, Smiley was knocked cold by a gang of Utah tacklers. Asked if he was hurt, Jones answered, "Not hurt, just outnumbered."

Lion fans shouldn't have much trouble spotting the Oregon star this weekend.

As one writer puts it, "He's the first football player I've seen in 25 years of covering football who didn't need a number."

Lion Grapplers Record 7 Pins In 39-4 Rout Over Mounties

By JIM KARL

Referee Grover McLaughlin's hand slapped the mat with monotonous regularity Saturday afternoon as the Penn State grapplers scored seven pins over an out-manned and out-conditioned West Virginia squad for a 39-4 victory.

There were only about 200 people on hand for the battle between these old rivals at Mountaineer Fieldhouse in Morgantown.

Two draws, one between State's John Trojan and George Nedeff at 191, and the other between Dan Johnston and Bob Petres at 137 accounted for West Virginia's four points.

The match between Ray Bazzoli, last year's Southern Conference champ, and Trojan never came off. There were conflicting reports that Bazzoli quit the Mountie squad and that he just wasn't ready to wrestle Saturday. Lion Coach Charlie Speidel would not comment.

Denny Slattery gave the Lions a good start when he scored a fall over Ralph Staton with 2:44 left in the third period. Slattery was leading, 10-2, before the pin.

Tony Scordo recorded his second consecutive pin of the season when he flattened Mountie George Thompson with seven seconds left in the second period. Scordo scored a third period pin last week over Bob Protzman of Army.

Petres had a 4-2 lead over Johnston going into the third period but the Lion junior got a reversal to even the count at 4-4. However, referee McLaughlin caught Johnston using an illegal hold and awarded one point to Petres, making the score 5-4.

Johnston netted a point for riding time for a 5-5 tie.

Co-captain Jerry Seckler, making his varsity debut at 147 this year, pinned Howard Lester with 35 seconds gone in the second period.

Seckler scored a first period takedown and then reversed Lester before using a spread eagle to get the fall.

Ron Pifer didn't waste any time pinning Gary Wilson in the 157-pound division. Pifer used a cradle to throw Wilson at 1:13 of the first period.

At 167, John Barone, making his first appearance of the year, used a half nelson and bar arm to pin Mike Sullivan with 1:56 left in the third period.

Phil Myer was behind 4-2 when he used a half nelson and bar arm to pin Paul Hoblitzell in a 177-pound battle.

Hoblitzell, the Southern Conference champ at 177 last year, scored a first period takedown and was awarded a point when Myer left the mat without permission.

Myer got a takedown after Hoblitzell escaped in the second stanza and then threw him with 35 seconds left in the period.

After a scoreless first period in the 191-pound bout, Nedeff got a second period escape but Trojan countered with the same maneuver in the final stanza to earn a 1-1 draw.

Johnston Oberly climaxed the meet by pinning Tom Greaser with a double arm bar at 0:35 of the second period.

Lion Gridders Win Traditional Trophy

Penn State's football team has won the "Old Ironsides" trophy for 1960. The Nittany Lions, Pitt and West Virginia compete annually for the award, symbolic of Tri-State supremacy.

Lion coach Rip Engle will accept the trophy Dec. 21 at the Pick-Roosevelt Hotel in Pittsburgh. Coaches John Michelosen of Pitt and Gene Corum of West Virginia will be on hand when the Pittsburgh Jaycees make the presentation.

Meeting Postponed

BOSTON (AP) — Selection of players by the new Los Angeles and Washington American League clubs scheduled for today has been postponed to tomorrow—because of storm disruption of air travel.

The 24-hour postponement in the player picks at league headquarters here was announced when officials of the Los Angeles club sent word that their air travel arrangement had been cancelled until today because of weather.

Snowstorm Forces Nittanies To Hold Rec Hall Workout

The weekend snowstorm which paralyzed most of the East left Rip Engle with plenty of worries and forced the Lion gridders to hold practice indoors yesterday.

Dressed in full gear, the Liberty-bowl bound Nittanies held a complete workout in Rec Hall.

"I don't know when we'll be able to get back out," Engle said, "but I hope it's soon. That game is only a few days away."

While the Lions were experiencing plenty of trouble here, Bud Dudley, the Liberty Bowl president, was trying to figure how to rid Philadelphia Stadium of nearly 15 inches of snow.

Dudley was on the phone for quite some time yesterday talking to weather experts throughout the East and one in Chicago.

He told the Associated Press that he had checked several weather maps and spoke to quite a few experts who assured him that Philadelphia would have good weather over the weekend.

Dudley said he was told a high would blow the snow storm out.

The imaginative promoter has high hopes that this year's crowd will exceed the 32,000 who paid their way into Philadelphia Stadium last year to watch State top Alabama, 7-0.

He said he expects quite a few Oregon alumni from the East to turn out for Saturday's game.

Oregon's football team is scheduled to leave by plane for Chicago today. They'll stay overnight and fly to Philadelphia tomorrow. The Nittany Lions are scheduled to leave by bus for Philadelphia Thursday.
