

Senate Suspends Two Schwab Service Moved to Chapel For Forgery, Thefts

The Senate Sub-Committee on Discipline, following through on its get-tough policy on student thefts, suspended two men students from the University Wednesday afternoon.

A freshman in liberal arts was suspended until the winter term of 1962 for forging five checks and then cashing them in establishments in State College, Leroy S. Austin, associate dean of men, said yesterday. The student also had been involved in a theft in the residence hall, Austin continued.

A senior in agriculture who was caught shoplifting from a State College store was suspended for the spring semester, Austin said. The student will be permitted to finish this semester, Austin added.

In other disciplinary action, the dean of men along with the student tribunals disciplined eight men.

A sophomore in liberal arts was placed on probation with the office of the dean of men, Austin said, after he twice failed to comply with discipline given to him by his residence hall counselor.

Office probation does not limit the activities of the student but is a decision that is taken into consideration if the student gets into trouble again.

A freshman in liberal arts who was caught drinking in the residence hall was placed on disciplinary probation, Austin said.

Under disciplinary probation, a student may not be an officer of an organization or participate in varsity athletics.

Three students who were drinking on the golf course and then took the bottles back to the residence hall each were given probation with the office of the dean of men until June, 1961.

Three other students involved in gambling in the residence halls were also given probation. One student with eight prior minor violations was placed on disciplinary probation, Austin said. The two other students were put on office probation until the fall term of 1961.
