

Steinhauer Names Bookstore Committee

Philip Steinhauer, chairman of the SGA bookstore committee, yesterday announced the appointment of sub-committee chairmen who will help compile a report for the Board of Trustees on the possibility of a University-run bookstore.

To head the sub-committee on historical information, Steinhauer named Dean Wharton, sophomore class president.

Steinhauer said this committee will examine past reports on bookstore proposals presented to SGA, the administration or the Board of Trustees and will select facts pertinent to helping the present proposal.

Heading the sub-committee on universities will be James Sloane, freshman class president, and Susan Eberly, junior in arts and letters from State College.

The committee will contact large universities in the same situation we are in—that is, universities in isolated areas, Steinhauer said.

In addition, the committee will contact large universities, such as the University of Pittsburgh, that have successfully operated a bookstore.

Steinhauer named Walter Darran (Sr.-U.) to chair the fact-finding sub-committee. He said this committee will interview students, administrators, faculty and townspeople to determine the need for a bookstore.

David Grubbs, sophomore in labor management relations from Bethlehem, and Robert Taylor, junior in animal husbandry from Ellicott City, Md., will head the sub-committee on management.

The committee will study how and by whom the bookstore could be run, what items could be sold and the method that would be used in running the store, Steinhauer said.

Chairman of the sub-committee on physical plant facilities will be Ted Simon, who compiled the initial report on the bookstore which was presented to the Board of Trustees at their December meeting.

Ann Ghiglione, junior in arts and letters from Arlington, Va., and Betty Stanley, junior in secondary education from Philadelphia, will co-chair the secretariat sub-committee, which will be responsible for compiling the final bookstore report.

Steinhauer named Richard Leighton, junior in journalism from Philadelphia, and Herbert Nurick, junior in arts and letters from Philadelphia, to head the public relations sub-committee and help with coordination.

New Show To Begin On WDFM

Radio station WDFM will introduce a new feature, "Campus Beat," from 7 to 10 p.m. tomorrow.

Hosted by Susan Wheeler, junior in Arts and Letters from Uniontown, and Ira Berman, senior in journalism from Bethlehem, this new show is aimed to bring continuity to the station's Wednesday night programming. Regularly scheduled programs will be run successively with no time limit for each one.

The programs included in the three-hour "Campus Beat" will be "Washington Reports," featuring interviews with U.S. Senators; "Album Review," with Miss Wheeler as hostess; "Jaz Panorama," hosted by Al Pollen; "Obelisk," with Roland Reed; "Forum of the Air," moderated by Steve Milner; "Portrait of a City," a taped program which spotlights a different city each week, and the latest local and worldwide news.

Station WMAJ will carry the latter two hours of "Campus Beat," beginning at 8 p.m. each Wednesday.

Small Boys 'Snow' Coeds By Old Main

Three coeds were terrorized in front of Old Main Friday by four elementary school students armed with nature's most abundant product at this time of year — snow.

The four small boys stood on the east side of the Mall and bombarded the girls with freshly packed snowballs to the cries of "fire when ready" and other unintelligible cries from which only two words could be made out — "Yogi Berra."

The coeds shrunk back in a defensive retreat, but the boys advanced up the walk after them and one headed up the Mall apparently maneuvering to get behind the girls. But before he could get into position the coeds held a short but unusually productive summit meeting.

The strategy of the coeds was to move forward in the face of the enemy. As the coeds strolled through the lines of the startled State College school-kids, the defeated boys looked for another and less brave victim and found it — the Obelisk.
