

Panhel May Cut Transcript Rule

Action will be taken to eliminate the Panhellenic deferred grade clause next term if sororities still require a minimum scholastic average then, according to Janet Carlisle, assistant Panhel rush chairman.

Miss Carlisle, who has been appointed chairman of the next rush program, said she was amazed to discover that coeds cannot be exempted from the ruling by a statement from their advisors. "It's a crime that any girl should miss her average because of a deferred grade," she said.

Housing Poll On Facilities Starts Today

The Chamber of Commerce survey to determine the availability of town housing for students and faculty members will begin today.

About 104 students have volunteered to act as interviewers in covering each building in the State College area.

Paul Mazza, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said that twice as many students are needed for the survey. "If each person who has volunteered to serve as an interviewer would bring one friend with him when he calls at the Municipal Building to begin the survey, we would have an ample number to do the work," he added.

Students may volunteer for the survey by going to the Municipal Building on Frazier Street from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. today and tomorrow.

The survey questionnaire, drawn up by William G. Mather, head of the Department of Sociology and Anthropology, is designed to determine the quality and amount of facilities available as well as the rental preference of property owners.

Mazza said the chief aim of the survey is to obtain the total number of rooms and apartments along with the total number of vacancies, to be correlated in connection with University planning for handling future enrollments.

Students Given Phone Warning

Students living in campus residence halls may not accept charges for out-of-town telephone calls made to their residence hall telephones, Wilbur Diehl, supervisor of the telephone division, said yesterday.

Concerned about the problems resulting from acceptance of unpaid calls, both for the student and the University, University officials yesterday placed a small card outlining the use of the telephone system in rooms throughout the campus.

The notice explains that the telephone system in residence halls was designed to make possible on-campus calls and to receive calls from any point, local or long distance, so long as the long distance calls are prepaid. There is no provision for billing individual students for toll calls.

Leadership Shingles

The shingles for students who took part in the leadership program last semester are now available at the Hetzel Union desk.

Council Tea Will Honor Sr. Resident

Marian Laines, senior resident for McElwain Hall, will be the guest of honor at the Residence Hall Staff tea sponsored by Leonides Council March 16, Patricia Shockey, Leonides president pro tem, announced last night.

Miss Laines is also the advisor to Leonides Council. Leonides will hold an Easter egg hunt for invited children from out of town March 25 on the lawn in front of Old Main, Linda Eager, chairman, announced.

In other business the council approved a revision of the constitution in a special meeting called after the regular meeting. The revised articles must be sent to the Senate Subcommittee on Organization and Control for approval.

The new articles provide that council members will be selected in the future by a screening committee composed of the executive officers and council members.

The council voted to send two members to the National Independent Student Association convention to be held March 30, 31 and April 1 at Nashville, Tenn.

The council also decided that the March 6 meeting of Leonides will be open to all independent women at which time they may offer suggestions for a Leonides gift to the University.

STARTS FRIDAY "CAN-CAN"

Walker Approves 'Budget Campaign'

President Eric A. Walker said over the weekend that he considers the student campaign backing his budget request "worthwhile."

Ronald Sheetz, junior in secondary education from Bellefonte, said yesterday he spoke with Walker Friday evening to get his suggestions on how SGA's "Back Penn State's Budget" committee might continue its campaign. Sheetz chairs the committee.

Walker offered no suggestions, saying that he considers the committee capable of getting things done. Sheetz added that Walker was "glad to see the students behind his appropriation request," but added the final say is up to Governor David L. Lawrence.

Walker also said that as of now the governor's committee on education is not expected to report to the Legislature until March 15.

The SGA Budget committee plans to coordinate the main stream of its campaign with the release of this report. Sheetz said that he will meet with his committee today to decide on a campaign.

Five sub-committees have been appointed to work on the different aspects of the campaign. The "On Campus Campaign" will be handled by Dennis Eisman, past vice-chairman of Campus party.

Elliott Newman (U.-Soph.) and Theodore Simon will head the Publicity committee, which will be responsible for contacting the news services and newspapers.

A committee to promote the campaign in the residence halls is headed by Wayne Ulsh (I.-Jr.) and Jean Megzendorff, freshman in liberal arts from Easton. The Off-Campus committee, which will contact the town independents, is headed by Ralph Friedman (C.-Soph.).

The Lobbying committee, which may go to Harrisburg when the legislature is discussing the appropriation, is headed by Gomer Williams and Jacqueline Leavitt (U.-Sr.). Their official plans so far are to contact industrial groups in Pennsylvania for lobbying purposes.

Edgar Snyder, will head the Penn State Center committee which will coordinate all efforts of University students at the campuses and centers.

Applications are available at the Hetzel Union desk for students interested in working on any of these committees.

Miss Jane Bernreuter, another Theta

Though you may accuse us of being biased towards the Thetas, let it be known that you are right—at least partially. We admit to bias and discrimination which is freely practiced in this column—towards selecting a girl each week who gave us much pleasure to work with and whose fine features merit some publicity. And after all, any picture appearing above or any name mentioned in said column gives that person an eligibility to win our "Easter in Puerto Rico" contest.

Janie, a local girl, spent two years at Rollins before transferring here where she is presently a philosophy major. Tough, gentlemen, she's pinned.

Just received a frantic phone call for a most exquisite request. The excited young lady whose portrait we just made for the Phi Sigma Sigma composite asked that we not send her proofs home lest her parents observe the extra poundage she gained. (on dorm food?)

Reward to the finder of XO's missing composite frame. Call them if you know.

Yes, of course we do fraternity composites. So if you're weary of the style you've been accustomed to, we stand ready and waiting to do you the justice you so aptly deserve. Expensive? Certainly but drop in and get a quote from Bunny or Polly. 6 weeks delivery—not the usual five months.

A sign of the times—it appears as if almost every party were due to photograph this Spring will be in color.
