SGA Uninformed, Parties Weak—King

By MEG TEICHHOLTZ

Richard King, C-Sr., leader of his party's representation on Assembly blamed badly informed Assemblymen and weak party structure for SGA's current ineffectiveness.

Elected last spring, King said he was speaking as an outgoing SGA member with an eye to improvement.

"SGA," he said, "gets so bogged down in parliamentary procedure that it forgets its function. I'd recommend that every SGA member make it his duty to learn Robert's rules!"

"There are about 12 people on Assembly who do all the work and talking anyway," King said.

Asked what bills he had introduced, King said that he "preferred to work behind the scenes."

"I did introduce one bill spontaneously after getting a note from Dean Simes (Frank J. Simes, dean of men) on having pep rallies," he said.

On the subject of the party system, King said that the Liberal and University parties were "all right," but that Campus (his own) party was going "down-hill."

"When Campus nominated last fall," he said, "there were only about 20 people there and anyone who brought his fraternity could get nominated."

King said that the current trend of parties to disband after elections was bad for the Assembly. "But," he said, "there's nothing else for them to do after they work on elections." He added that it would strengthen parties to work as a uniform group throughout the year.

He would make no predictions on who will get the Campus party chairmanship when party elections are held before the spring elections.

Pottery Project To Start Today

Beginning yesterday, 32 volunteers of the Arts 2 class participated in a pottery-making experiment.

The experiment, which is being sponsored by a $500 grant from the research department of the College of Education, will last for three weeks. Students who are taking part in the project will attend two-hour sessions twice a week in Temporary Building.

There will be classes from 1 to 3 and 3 to 5 p.m. Tuesday; 1 to 3 p.m. Wednesday, and 3 to 5 and 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday.

Kenneth Beittle, the creator of the program, has devised two methods of instruction—the analytic and holistic. Students encountering the analytic method will receive precise verbal instructions and help with every stage. Emphasis in the holistic group will be placed on learning the "feel" of the materials and fewer instructions.

The Agricultural Extension Service was established in 1914 by passage of the Smith-Lever Act.
