

Bookstore Will Be Considered After Facts Are Known—Diem

The need for a bookstore will have to be established by facts before judgment can be made on the possibility of having one on campus.

Albert E. Diem, vice president for business administration and advisor to the bookstore committee, stressed the need to obtain facts to back the bookstore plan to Phil Steinhauer, SGA Bookstore Committee chairman, in an interview yesterday.

Diem has not formed an opinion as yet on whether the University should have a bookstore, Steinhauer said.

Volunteers Canvass Housing Facilities

The Borough Council room of the Municipal Building was buzzing with activity yesterday as the Chamber of Commerce housing survey got under way.

The survey, which is designed to determine the availability of town housing for students and faculty members, will continue to use the council room as its headquarters today and tomorrow.

About 35 of the more than 100 volunteer students had reported to survey headquarters yesterday for assignments to various areas. Kathleen Leland, graduate student in sociology, director of the survey, said that students are assigned areas as close to their place of residence as possible.

More students are still needed if the estimated 2628 houses are to be covered by interviewers, according to William G. Mather, author of the survey questionnaire and head of the Department of Sociology and Anthropology.

Students wishing to participate in the survey may secure the necessary information at the survey office on the second floor of the Municipal Building on Frazier St.

Student groups participating in the survey are Alpha Phi Omega, men's service fraternity; Gamma Sigma Sigma, women's service sorority; the Direct Action for Racial Equality organization; the Sociology Club; the Town Independent Men; and the SGA Committee on Inter-racial Relations.

Mather said that the survey results will be made public after March 21. He hopes the survey will be completed by Friday, he said.

"He thinks the only way we can get the data we want is if students come and tell us their problems when buying books," Steinhauer said.

Diem likes the idea of distributing questionnaires to students in order to get data, he added.

If the forms were distributed, they would include questions on how long it took to purchase desired books and whether the books were available, Steinhauer said.

Students who have taken required fundamental courses, such as history, basic math, economics and speech, would probably receive the questionnaires, he said.

Also sitting in on the interview was Richard Leighton, chairman of the bookstore Sub-Committee on Public Relations.

Diem said the need for a bookstore must be established from the student viewpoint and must stress service, Leighton said.

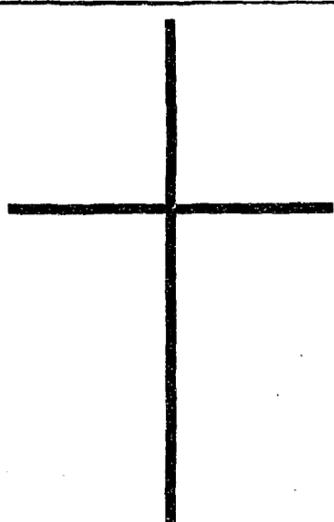

"We can't report on service but we can certainly write on the lack of service," Leighton reported Diem as saying.

Leighton said Leslie P. Greenhill, associate director of academic research and services, has consented to act in an advisory capacity to the Bookstore Committee. Greenhill will advise the committee on ways to gather the desired information, Leighton said.

Diem will "carry the ball" from the business standpoint, and will have assistants checking such figures as service costs and overhead, Leighton said.

Leighton said Diem will meet with the committee's sub-chairmen Friday night to become more acquainted with the work being done.

4000 Students Sign Petition To Support Request for Funds

An estimated 4000 students have signed the Liberal party petitions urging legislative support of President Eric A. Walker's appropriation request, according to Dale Harris, campaign chairman.

Miss Harris said that the campaign is gaining momentum and student response has been unexpectedly good.

Liberal party will extend its campaign to the commonwealth campuses if the Student Government Association's Committee on Centers doesn't take action first, Miss Harris said.

Most of the Liberal party members are now working with subcommittees of the SGA "Back the Budget Committee," Miss Harris said. However, she added, Liberal party will continue its own campaign "because no one can do too much for this issue."

As part of the Liberal party campaign, more "Letters to the Editor" have been sent to newspapers throughout the state.

So far, the Harrisburg Patriot and the Pittsburgh Press have published letters in their Sunday editions.

Liberal party petitions are circulating on campus in the Hetzel Union Building, residence halls and fraternity houses. Permanent headquarters for the campaign are on the ground floor of the HUB and are open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily.
