

Community Living Produces Change

By JO ANNE MARK
Second of a series

Drastic changes have come about on campus since the groundwork for a community living program was laid less than a year ago.

The dean of women's staff, as well as women's government have been revised to meet the needs of residence community living.

The Women's Student Government Association, known for years by that name, became a member of the Association of Women Students, an international organization of women's student government, last fall.

The new AWS is made up of legislative and judicial bodies on both community and campus-wide levels. Judicial boards and elected student councils are located in each residence community.

On the campus wide level, there is the AWS Central Judicial Board and the AWS Senate.

The Central Judicial Board is made up of the chairmen of the local boards, the Central Board chairman, secretary and two other members.

AWS Senate is made up of the presidents and treasurers of each community council; two representatives-at-large from each class; representatives from the Women's Recreation Association, Panhellenic Council, Leonides and Central Judicial; the dean of women, Senate officers and a representative to International AWS.

Dean of Women Dorothy J. Lipp has created new staff positions to meet the needs of residence community living since her arrival on campus last year. Mrs. Marian Davison, special assistant to the dean of women, handles most of the particulars of the program.

Each community staff is headed by a residence community coordinator. Two of the larger communities, Pollock and West Halls-Atherton have assistant coordinators as well.

Each residence hall is staffed with one or more senior residents, graduate student: who are on duty during the evening hours. The senior residents also work with the students in planning social and cultural activities within the residence, according to the community plan.

Each residence is also staffed with one or more hostesses. These women handle most of the paper work involved with signing in and out, according to the plan. They also work directly with the residence housekeeping staffs.

Junior residents, upperclasswomen who have volunteered for these posts, are assigned to about 50 girls in each residence.

They are to perform the task of communications between the dean of women's staff and the women students.

The following series will deal individually with the function and performance of each facet of AWS and the dean of women's staff.

Librarian Says 2 Encyclopedias Badly Mutilated

Within the past month two of the Pattee Library's new encyclopedia books have been seriously mutilated, Mrs. Margaret K. Spangler, assistant librarian, said yesterday.

A chapter on West Germany was torn from the Encyclopedia Britannica, a $200 set, and from the World Mark Encyclopedia, which is a $30 volume that was purchased just two weeks ago by the library.

The greatest damage cannot be set in terms of the monetary value of the books but in the nuisance value, Mrs. Spangler said. The library's service is greatly depreciated by such mutilations.

In an effort to prevent magazine loss, the current periodicals are now available only at the desk upon request. When the magazines were on the open shelves, they often disappeared, Mrs. Spangler said.
