

Calendar Completed for Next Year Despite Football, Traffic Problems

By JOAN MEHAN

Football games, vacation traffic and computing of averages have presented problems for the scheduling in the four term system. Out of the confusion a final calendar for the 1961-62 year came yesterday.

The most recent changes involve the moving back of the beginning of classes during the winter term from Jan. 3 to Jan. 5 and moving the beginning of spring classes back a week

4-Term Rush Plan Proposed by IFC

The proposed Interfraternity Council rushing program for the four-term year was presented at last night's meeting by Herbert Goldstein, IFC Rushing Committee chairman.

The program provides for a deferred fall term rush and other adjustments to make the plan workable for the new four-term system. A vote on the proposed program will be taken at the next meeting, according to Goldstein and all suggestions for revision should be submitted to the committee before that time.

The date for the Spring Jazz Festival has been set for April 14. This big weekend event will feature George Shearing, Eli and the Chosen Six, and Freida Lee with piano accompaniment.

Gary Robinson, chairman of IFC Board of Control, announced that Alpha Gamma Rho has been fined $50 by the Board of Control for not registering six of their pledges at the IFC office. According to regulation, the penalty is $25 for the first pledge and $5 for each additional one.

Fraternities were also reminded by Robinson that hte ruling regarding door duty at Friday and Saturday evening social functions should be observed.

In other business, Richard Moyer, chairman of the IFC Public Relations Committee, outlined his committee's proposal for next year's IFC Rush Booklet.

The proposed booklet is to include a pictorial coverage of fraternity life and will have some new features, Moyer said.

Ralph Freidman, a member of the SGA "Back the Budget" Committee, asked the fraternities' cooperation in the attempt to get endorsement for President Eric A. Walker's budget request. Friedman asked fraternity presidents to have their members write to assemblymen and senators of their districts for support of Walker's budget.

UBA to Return Money, Books Until Thursday

The Used Book Agency will be returning unsold books until Thursday.

Lawrence Abrams, president of the board of control, said that the Thursday deadline will definitely be the last time books and money may be claimed.

He added that anyone with a problem in claiming either money or books should see him personally in the UBA, located in the Hetzel Union cardroom or in the Book Exchange tomorrow or Thursday. None of the UBA staff is authorized to handle problems such as lost or destroyed claim slips, he said.

Estimates of the amount of money and books returned by the agency can not be made until the UBA closes on Thursday, Abrams said.

He added that a book company will buy unsold books from students as they are returned by the UBA. The company will also purchase any textbooks students may have available.

Spring Week Applications

Applications for the Spring Week float parade are now available at the HUB desk.

from March 21 to March 28.

The beginning of winter classes was moved so students will not be involved with the holiday traffic when they return for registration on Jan. 3 and 4, Lawrence E. Dennis, vice president for academic affairs and proposer of the changes, said.

The additional week in between the winter and spring term will give the staff a much-needed longer period to compute averages, Dennis added.

The new proposals were made by Dennis and approved by President Eric A. Walker. The calendar has not been scheduled beyond the first four terms.

The summer term for 1961 will begin with registration on June 13 and 14. This term, which will be the official beginning of the four term plan, will run from June 15 until Aug. 26. There will be an Independence Day recess on July 4. This is the only term that has not been revised from the original calendar which was proposed in October.

The fall term has been moved up a week as previously announced to enable students to have matriculation cards to attend the Penn State-Navy game and to prevent traffic congestion between incoming freshmen and football fans. Orientation Sunday will be Sept. 17.

SDX to Sell Programs At Lion-Temple Game

Sigma Delta Chi, men's national professional journalistic society, will sell programs again at tonight's Penn State-Temple basketball game at Rec Hall.

The programs, which sell for 10 cents, feature a scorecard, rosters, and other pertinent data on the two teams.

Congolese Terrorize U.N. Aides

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (P)—Congolese soldiers have loosed a campaign of rape and terror against U. N. personnel in Leopoldville, already imperiled by the advance of leftist rebels.

Volunteers Near End Of Survey

The State College Chamber of Commerce Housing Survey is approximately 95 per cent complete according to Paul Mazza, president.

The remainder of the work to be done is primarily in 12 sections of the borough but also includes the houses where people weren't home when the interviewers called, Mazza said.

He also said that he expected the material collected during the survey would be submitted for processing before the end of the week. The results should be ready in about 30 days, he added.

The purpose of the survey is to determine the availability of town housing for students and faculty members. It began last Tuesday.

Of 129 sections, 117 were covered with interviewers checking 2800 out of 2900 houses in the area, according to Mazza.

He praised the 110 students who served as interviewers for the survey, adding "As far as I'm concerned, it couldn't have been more of a success, thanks to the energy of the student volunteers."

National Defense Fellowships Posted

A list of National Defense Graduate Fellowships for 1961-62 is posted on the bulletin board next to the graduate office in 106 Willard.

Interested seniors may now obtain applications from various colleges.

Areas of study available are education, humanities, social sciences, biological sciences, physical sciences, mathematics and engineering.

The University has four fellowships in biophysics, two in philosophy and three in political science and government.

Command in the Congo exchanged threats of force. Kasavubu's government sought aid from rebellious Katanga Province against the rebels now reported only 280 miles from Leopoldville.

In the midst of the tension, G. Mennen Williams, U.S. assistant secretary of state for African affairs, arrived in Leopoldville on his African tour. He declined to comment on the latest Congolese developments.

Congolese soldiers, reported angered because the UN Command has done nothing to stop rebel leader Antoine Gizenga's soldiers in their march toward Leopoldville, went on the rampage Sunday night and early yesterday.

Unarmed UN personnel were hauled from cars and man-handled. UN headquarters sent a stiff note to Kasavubu warning that such attacks will not be tolerated and will be resisted with full force. UN trucks rumbled through the capital, emphasizing that the command was ready to use the force authorized by the Security Council last week to keep peace in the Congo.

Shortly thereafter, Kasavubu called for a general mobilization of Congolese troops.

Kasavubu sent Premier Joseph Ileo to Elisabethville, capital of secessionist Katanga, ostensibly to discuss a proposed peace meeting of all rival Congolese factions in Geneva, Switzerland. But sources close to President Moise Tshombe of Katanga said Ileo was really seeking quick military aid to help block any move by Gizenga's rebels against Leopoldville.

Tshombe's army is better trained than the forces of other factions and has some modern equipment. But it is currently engaged in northern Katanga against Baluba tribesmen loyal to Gizenga's rebel Stanleyville regime.

Ileo's plea may get a cool reception. A Katanga spokesman noted Tshombe offered to sign a military pact with the Leopoldville regime more than a month ago but Kasavubu and Ileo hesitated.

Leonides May Lobby in 1971—Shockey

In ten years Leonides, the independent women's association, may have become a lobbying group, Patricia Shockey, Leonides president pro tem, said yesterday.

Miss Shockey spoke in reply to Dean Lipp's statement of last week that in ten years Leonides will probably not exist.

"Because of the University's size, a central group like Leonides is needed not necessarily to set up activities for independents, but to make sure that another group does provide them," Miss Shockey said.

A group of perhaps five to ten active independents could act as an interest or lobbying group to make suggestions to the community councils as to what they could do for the independents, she said.

Miss Shockey rejected the idea that Leonides would die completely. "Leonides gives independent women a chance to show leadership; if they go in with the Independent Students Association, they'll be overshadowed," she said. "Since there are more independent men than women, the more important positions in ISA will go to the men," she said.

"It is also up to Leonides as a central group to coordinate activities for those independents that want to be active," Miss Shockey said. "It has been said that this could be done by the community councils, but how many sorority women are going to push themselves to promote activities for the independents?" she asked.

"If the independents could get on the councils and be well enough represented, then they could see that independents have activities," Miss Shockey said. "In the South Halls council though, of the eight members, six are sorority women and the other two are rushing sororities," she said.

"On the community council there will still be competition between the independents and
