

Campus Patrol Pursues Unidentified Man in HEc

The Campus Patrol made a hurried search of the Home Economics Building late Wednesday afternoon after an instructor in Home Economics reported seeing a middle-aged man rummaging through a coat hanging in the hallway.

Col. William C. Pelton, head of the Campus Patrol, said that the search of the building and the surrounding area did not reveal anything.

David VanDommelon, the instructor who informed the campus patrol, said the man looked like an older-graduate student or an instructor, with reddish hair.

VanDommelon said that after he saw the man searching through the coat, he went back to his office. When VanDommelon returned to the hallway, the man was running away.

Pelton said that there have been other reports of such incidents recently.

VanDommelon said that he has heard of other such incidents in Home Economics and other buildings on campus.

—Classes at the Pennsylvania State University in 1859 started at 6 a.m., immediately after devotions and breakfast.

HomeEc to Offer New Meat Course

Mrs. Clarice G. Taylor, professor of hotel and institution administration and director of the institution food research and services program in the College of Home Economics, has announced a Meat Grading and Inspection Short Course to be held March 29-31.

The department of animal industry and nutrition will conduct the course for meat cutters and persons responsible for purchasing and handling meats.

Education Council Coffee Hour

Speaker: Dr. Clarence Berguson
Topic: The Soviet School System

Thursday, March 16

HUB Assembly Hall
8 P.M.

Everyone Welcome

Reception and Refreshments in HUB Lounge

Attention

SGA Elections Commission

SUNDAY at 7 p.m.
in Room 214, HUB

- All students who are interested in working on the commission are asked to attend.
- Applications for chairmen of sub-committees will be accepted.

Attendance for Old Members Compulsory

LUCKY STRIKE PRESENTS: DEAR DR. FROOD:

DR. FROOD'S THOUGHT FOR THE DAY: In college, it isn't who you know that counts—it's whom.

Dear Dr. Frood: I have a confession. All my life I have been trying to learn how to whistle. I just can't. Please, will you tell me how to whistle?

Pucker

DEAR PUCKERED: Watch the birds. Notice how they gather a pocket of air deep within the breast, then push thin jets of this air into the throat, through the larynx, up and around the curled tongue, and then bounce the air from the roof of the mouth out through the teeth (which act like the keyboard on a piano). Practice this. In no time your friends will be amazed at the beautiful, warbly trills that flow from your beak.

Dear Dr. Frood: What do you think accounts for the fact that college students smoke more Luckies than any other regular?

Marketing Student

DEAR MS: Collegiate Lucky smokers.

Dear Dr. Frood: My coach is writing this letter for me because I am illiterate. We want to know if I got to learn how to read to get into college. I am the best football player in the state.

DEAR X: Every college today will insist that you meet certain basic entrance requirements. I'm afraid you're just out of luck, X, unless you learn how to read diagrams and count to eleven.

Dear Dr. Frood: Hamlet killed Polonius. Macbeth stabbed Duncan. Richard murdered his little nephews. Othello strangled Desdemona, and Titus served Tamora her two sons in a pie before killing her. Don't you think this obsession with violence would make an excellent subject for a term paper?

English Major

DEAR ENGLISH: No, I don't, and my advice to you is to stop running around with that crowd.

ARE YOU READY FOR THE FLOOD? Most students today live a carefree, devil-may-care existence—buying their Luckies day to day. Only a handful have had the good sense to set aside an emergency cache of three or four Lucky cartons, wrapped in oilskin. When the dam breaks—they'll be ready. Will you?

CHANGE TO LUCKIES and get some taste for a change!

• GEORGE SHEARING •

Sponsored by
IFC - PANHOL
April 14