

TV Classes to See Bookstore Appeal

An appeal to all students who received bookstore questionnaires asking them to return the forms will be made via flash-card on the University's closed circuit TV tomorrow and Friday.

The appeal will be made between regularly scheduled TV classes, according to Janet Goodman, a member of the SGA Bookstore Committee.

Mrs. Goodman said that special permission to make the appeal was granted to the committee by the department in charge of closed circuit broadcasting and may be continued Monday if all questionnaires are not returned.

As of yesterday, about 550 of the 1000 questionnaires sent to a random selection of students had been returned, Phil Steinhauer, chairman of the committee, reported.

Steinhauer said his committee called students yesterday who did not return the forms in an effort to obtain all of them. The decision to make the closed circuit appeal was made to insure a more complete return, he said.

"It is imperative that we get all of them back," he said. "Without a 90 per cent return, we cannot get an accurate survey."

If the need is proven through the survey, Steinhauer said, his committee can then begin working on more research for their final report to the Board of Trustees.

Steinhauer would not release the contents of the questionnaires.

"We want to avoid discussion of the questions so that students answer from their own personal experience in purchasing books downtown," he said.

If the questionnaires are returned by Easter vacation, he said, his committee may begin computing the results during vacation and will report on them soon after the session resumes.

Skaters Test Skill With 'Figure Eight'

By LYNNE CEREFICE

No ingenious skill is required to draw a simple figure eight on a sheet of paper but try it on ice some time, as do the members of the Penn State Figure Skating Club.

The club was formed last year as a probationary member of the United States Figure Skating Association. On Sunday it held preliminary tests for members at the University skating rink.

The tests, which comprise the first step in a series of tests prescribed by the Figure Skating Association, involve cutting a figure eight on the ice in inside and outside and backward and forward formations.

The preliminary tests are followed by tests for the rank of novice, junior and senior figure skater, according to Mrs. James Tammen, club professional and former California figure skating champion.

Mrs. Tammen explained that the candidates in Sunday's tests were required to receive a passing grade from two of three visiting judges.

Included among the judges was Mrs. William O. Hickok, IV, international figure skating judge and member of the Hershey skating club.

In addition to serving as a preliminary test judge, Mrs. Hickok represented the Figure Skating Association in evaluating the Penn State club for full membership in the national association. The skating club holds regular practice sessions from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. and 8 to 10 p.m. every Sunday.

County Frees 2 Frosh Held For Shoplifting

The two freshmen convicted of shoplifting and disorderly conduct last Thursday were released from the Centre County jail after serving only two days of their ten day sentence.

The students, Benson Herbert and William Geisinger, were released after their parents paid fines of $150 and made restitution for the 186 items the students had stolen.

According to Leroy S. Austin, associate dean of men, the boys have moved from their residence hall and are engaged in withdrawal procedures from the University.

The students will appear before the Senate Sub-Committee on Discipline next week, Austin said. They will be given either a strong suspension penalty or will be dismissed from the University, he said. Austin added that this action must be taken even though the students are withdrawing from the University so that their actions will appear on their official records.

YOU THOUGHT RAY CHARLES STARTED A CONTROVERSY . . . LISTEN TONIGHT and HEAR About a Battle, A Never Ending Fight for Freedom. TONIGHT on JAZZ PANORAMA 8:30 p.m. Max Roach's •WE INSIST• Freedom Now Suite

"A revolution is unfurling—America's unfinished revolution." This statement by A. Philip Randolph introduces one of the most important jazz records ever released. This record shows how jazz speaks the message that it was truly meant to speak—that of man's fight for freedom from any and all oppression. "This is magnificent music, powerful music, vital music . . . a startling performance . . . widely exciting, almost frightening . . . it is protest."

"Some may object to the message it contains—and this is definitely an album with a message—but the sensitive listener cannot deny that it is a vibrant social statement and an artistic triumph." These were the raves of Downbeat magazine after giving the album one of the finest reviews that has ever been given.

Tonight, WE INSIST, Freedom Now Suite, a recent release on Candid Records will be aired on Jazz Panorama, uninterrupted from 8:30-9:30 on WDFM and WMAJ.
