

North Halls Turns Down Dress Code

The men of the North Halls area have overwhelmingly defeated the dining hall dress code which the area council passed Feb. 13.

The code required that students wear a coat and tie at special dinners and set up a new enforcement method. This would require that all students, who violated the regulation three times, go before the area tribunal.

The bill was referred to the residents of the area on March 28 after a petition was presented to the council protesting the bill.

The referendum was defeated by almost a three to one margin. The vote was 166 for and 453 against the code.

The vote totaling 619 was 46 more than necessary for approval. Under the North Halls constitution a referendum must be approved by an absolute majority of the residents.

Wayne Ulsh, president of the North Halls council and proposer of the code, said that much of the code was taken from the Guide to Residence Hall Living. The guide was distributed to all students at the beginning of the school year by the office of the Dean of Men, Ulsh said.

These provisions set up in the guide are still in effect, Ulsh emphasized.

Cool Temperatures Expected to Remain

Even though old sol is growing stronger daily, chilly, almost winterlike weather, continues to prevail in Pennsylvania.

Temperatures should remain well below seasonal normals through the weekend, but sunny skies may bring somewhat milder weather to this area tomorrow.

The past six days have been more like a typical first week of March than the first week of April. Two and a half inches of snow fell on the first two days of the month, and temperatures have dipped to 32 degrees or lower each day.

The 2.5 inches of snow boosted the season's total to 80.9 inches making this the first winter season to have more than 80 inches of snow.

The 1960-61 winter became the snowiest in State College weather history on March 23, when the total surpassed the 74.9 inches that fell in the 1941-42 season.

Temperatures during the first week of April have averaged nearly 10 degrees below normal.

Little change in this "cold" weather regime is expected for several days, and no precipitation of consequence is likely before Sunday afternoon.

Today should be mostly cloudy, breezy and continued cold with a high temperature of 44 degrees. A few sprinkles of rain or possibly a few snow flurries are likely during the afternoon.

Some cloudiness and cold temperatures are predicted for tonight and a low of 30 is expected.

Tomorrow will be partly cloudy and milder with a maximum of 52 degrees.

Collegians Miss--

Two of the highlights of the fever-ridden demonstration were a mass meeting of the demonstrators in front of the student union and the throwing of parts of a picket fence (which they just happened to have handy) at University President Cloth McDonald.
