Miss PSU Entries Due April 19

On May 2 a new Miss Penn State will be crowned at Awards Night, the grand finale of Spring Week.

Any coed who is at least fifth semester and has a 2.2 all-University average is eligible for the title. Applications have been sent to all groups participating in Spring Week, Sue Ellen Block, chairman of the contest, said Wednesday.

If, however, a coed is not a member of a group taking part in Spring Week, she may still enter the contest, Miss Block said.

Applications and a 5 x 7 inch portrait must be submitted to the HUB desk by 5 p.m. Wednesday, April 19. The pictures will be returned after the contest, Miss Block said.

All applicants will be interviewed by six judges in the preliminaries on Monday and Tuesday, April 24 and 25. The girls will be judged on poise, speech, carriage, personality, attractiveness, grooming and scholarship.

Five finalists will be selected. They will attend a banquet on Tuesday afternoon, May 2, with the six finalist judges. In the evening, at Awards Night, they will be interviewed again and the final decision will be announced.

The new Miss Penn State will be crowned by Constance Adler, who presently holds the title.

Zygler to Show Paintings

Paintings by Eleanor Zygler, assistant professor of art, will compose an exhibit that will open in the gallery of the Hetzel Union building on Sunday and continue through April 22.

Finance Workshop To Aid Educators

To help educators furnish young people with the basis upon which they can build sound habits of dealing with their personal financial problems, the University will conduct a Family Finance Workshop this summer.

The program, which will open June 15 and continue through July 6, is especially planned for junior and senior high school teachers of social studies, mathematics, business, homemaking and agricultural education.

Campuses Hold Tournament

The Commonwealth Campuses have advanced to the second round: are running a spring semester tournament in bowling, chess and table tennis, according to Merle E. Campbell, dean of student affairs for the Commonwealth Campuses.

It will be a single-elimination tournament and will culminate in a "championship" play-off at the main campus on April 22.

The first round of eliminations has been completed in both divisions and the following teams

Bowling — Ogontz, Hazelton, Wilkes-Barre, Wyomissing, Mont Alto (Eastern); New Kensington, Erie, Altoona (Western).

Chess — Ogontz, Pottsville, Scranton, York, Mont Alto (Eastern); New Kensington, Erie, Altoona, (Western).

Table Tennis — Ogontz, Pottsville, Scranton, York, Mont Alto (Eastern); New Kensington, Erie, DuBois (Western).

The Open House programs have been arranged for high school students all over the state but are open to all University students who are thinking of changing curriculums within the science field, according to Eugene Grumer, president of the Mineral Industries Student Council.

The programs will consist of exhibits, demonstrations, lectures and movies, Grumer said. In addition, faculty members will be available to consult with students, Grumer said.

A display on cell culture will be the feature of the College of Agriculture's program. The display comes from a study conducted by Richard L. McCarl, instructor in agricultural and biological chemistry. Ten other departments of the college will have displays.

A lecture on criminology by Dr. Mary L. Willard, professor of chemistry, and a lecture on physics by Fred Tracy, assistant professor of physics, will highlight the program arranged by the College of Chemistry and Physics.

Information concerning the three Open House programs will be available tomorrow at an information booth in the Hetzel Union Building.
