

Surprise: G-Men Win Title

Weiss Cops All-Around; Yohn 2nd in Flying Rings

By JIM KARL

Gene Wettstone has experienced many surprises in his 22 years at Penn State, but the biggest surprise of all came Saturday afternoon at Champaign, Ill., when the Lions won their third straight NCAA gym crown.

"If ever there was an upset, this was it," Wettstone said yesterday when a well-wisher walked up to congratulate him. "I've never seen a team salvage as many points out of their maximum as we did," he said. "It happened because we wouldn't settle for second place. Everything we did we did right. It never happens this way but this time it did."

Party Picks Foianini For SGA Officer

Dennis Foianini, junior in petroleum and natural gas engineering from LaPaz, Bolivia, was nominated for SGA president by Campus Party at a 10-minute meeting Sunday night.

Campus party nominee for SGA vice president is David Grubbs, junior in labor-management relations from Bethlehem. Mary Swed, junior in secondary education from Paterson, N.J., was nominated for secretary-treasurer.

These nominations are not final, according to Philip Steinhauer, elections commission member. Dennis Eisman, chairman of Campus party, said that the steering committee felt it would not be fair to the other parties to make the nominations final.

Speaking on the Student Government Association's efforts at reorganization, Foianini said SGA doesn't have a grasp of the essentials. "They are just discussing numbers," he said.

"The class system is on the way out due to the four-term system and college councils don't play an important role anymore," Foianini said.

Miss Swed said that student government representatives should speak not only as a representative of a group, but as a "whole man" — a member of a college, a class, a residence area and probably an interest group.

Governor Briefs Houses On Education Problems

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Lawrence said yesterday Pennsylvania must act quickly but wisely to avoid letting "the deluge of unmet needs in education fall on our successors."

Addressing a "call to action" to a joint session of the legislature, he appealed for a no-politics approach to education and the avoidance of unnecessary delay in acting on education this session.

Psych Prof Will Speak

Dr. John F. Corso, professor of psychology, will speak at the Psychology Colloquium at noon tomorrow in Dining Room A of the Hetzel Union Building.

He will talk on "Some Theoretical Aspects of Sensory Discrimination."

Illinois, one of the pre-meet favorites, was one of the tourney's ill-fated teams. The Illini, who have won the title seven times including one four-year streak from 1939 to 1942, saw their hopes for an eighth crown vanish when tumbling ace Hal Holmes suffered a virus attack and all-around contender Ray Hadley was injured.

But even though luck was on their side, the Lions couldn't have repeated without a great performance by Greg Weiss and surprising showings by the other Lion competitors.

Weiss won the All-Around crown and led the Lion scoring parade. By defeating runner-up Fred Orlofsky of Southern Illinois, Weiss became the third Penn Stater in as many years to win the title.

Jay Werner won it last year and Armando Verga in 1959.

In addition to his All-Around victory, Weiss placed third on the parallel bars, third on the still rings, fourth in free exercise and fifth on the side horse.

Tommy Seward, who patched up his differences with Wettstone before the tourney, placed eighth in the All-Around and second in free exercise for more valuable points.

But the big surprises were State's showings in the flying rings and rope climb.

Lion competitors took second, third and fourth in the flying rings and sixth, seventh and eighth in the rope climb.

Larry Yohn, a junior from Littleton, Pa., provided the biggest surprise when he beat out teammate Jerry Schaefer for second place on the rings.

Schaefer, who suffered a break in his routine Friday but still won the preliminaries by one point, didn't fare as well in the finals Saturday.

He broke again and finished fourth behind teammate Jack Donahue. Navy's Frank Snay, who was defeated by Schaefer in four previous encounters, was the winner.

"I was happy to win a medal," Yohn said yesterday, but I was disappointed that Jerry didn't take first. There's no doubt in my mind that he would have won except for the break."

Thalimer Reveals 'Backroom Politics' Employed to Adopt SGA Constitution

By MEG TEICHHOLTZ

A member of the quartet that wrote SGA's present constitution returned to the governmental arena for a "one-night stand" Sunday, revealing the intent of the constitution and the "backroom politics" used to get it adopted.

Daniel Thalimer, one-time parliamentarian of Cabinet and Lion's Paw member, said, "The idea was to devise a system of continuing political parties and a government patterned after the federal government."

Trial Of Eichmann To Open in Israel

JERUSALEM (AP) — The day of reckoning comes today for Adolf Eichmann, accused as the master executioner of Hitler's Reich.

The slight, balding man accused of complicity in the slaughter of six million Jews will take his place in the prisoner's dock, shielded from possible avengers by sheets of bullet proof glass.

Justice Moshe Landau, president of the three-judge Israeli court, will turn to Eichmann and say: "Adolf Eichmann, stand up."

And the trial of the man run to earth by Israeli agents in Argentina last May will be on.

Eichmann must stand for the reading of the indictment, a formidable document of 15 counts. The indictment accuses him of "crimes against the Jewish people and crimes against humanity."

The maximum penalty is death. Eichmann was chief of the Gestapo's Jewish affairs section in World War II. To him—in the cold, impartial words of Nazi bureaucracy—was assigned the job of finding "the final solution of the Jewish problem."

The prosecution charges the solution was the Nazi death camps. Eichmann will be asked how he pleads once the indictment is read. And before he answers, his West German attorney, Robert Servatius, is expected to rise and challenge the legality of the proceedings.

Servatius is expected to argue that Eichmann was kidnapped in Argentina and therefore that his trial is illegal; that Israel did not exist as a nation at the time the crimes allegedly were committed, and is without jurisdiction; that he is being tried under a law passed after the crimes were committed.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany declared Nazism has been purged "from our social life and souls."

Cold Weather, Slow Clearing Expected Today

A never-say-die winter season continues to chill Pennsylvania with unusual cold.

A late season snow storm dumped 3.3 inches of snow here Sunday night and up to 10 inches accumulated in the higher mountain. This brought the winter's total to 84.2 inches which is nearly 10 inches more snow than has fallen in any previous winter.

Unseasonably cold weather should continue for several more days, but no additional snow of consequence is expected.

Cloudy skies early today will give way to partial clearing this afternoon. Temperatures should be a few degrees higher than those of yesterday and a maximum of 46 degrees is expected.

Tonight should be mostly clear and cold with a low of 32 degrees.

Cloudy skies and cool temperatures are indicated for tomorrow and a high of 45 is likely.

"We missed one big point," Thalimer added. "You can't build on a rotten foundation."

Thalimer, who said he was speaking on his own volition, addressed SGA's committee on the whole, now trying to revise Thalimer's constitution.

Thalimer, senior in secondary education from State College, said "SGA is a four-year thing. We visualized freshmen, trained in the party for a year, running for Assembly. Parties were to be all-year things, working through the majority and minority leaders on Assembly."

"We found out one thing in dealing with the administration," Thalimer added. "Their job is to look out for student welfare. They would like to do it through student government, but if this becomes impossible, they'll do it without you."

Digging back into the political machinery used to defile the old Cabinet system, Thalimer noted his three co-politicos as James Goodwin, William Kling, and Reilly Johnson, all of whom are former students.

The constitution which SGA has been using provisionally for two years was originally written in the summer of 1956, Thalimer said.

"Our job then became one of instituting it," he added. "I went to LP (Lion's Paw) to help get their votes. We got Bob Franklin (Editor of The Daily Collegian, '58-'59) to get Collegian on our side, and Ed Frymoyer for the Independent vote."

"We had to sell Jay Felstein (All-University President, '58-'59) so we convinced him that he had written it."

"Cabinet was destined to doom by Bill Kling who believed in politics as the backbone to government. He started undermining the system in 1956 and by 1958 he had convinced people that it was no good."

DG Scores Top Average for Fall
