

Grandstand Views—Loes Handcuffs Baer Says Lion Stickmen

year for another shot at Ben Schwartzwalder's boys. Their chance came last Oct. 15 in Syracuse but this time State fell four yards short.

Going into the game with the Lions this year, the Orangemen were still tops in the country and they had 14 straight wins.

Rumors of complacency floated around Piety Hill and the experts were looking for an upset because the Orangemen just managed to beat Holy Cross 15-6 the previous week.

Ernie Davis put Syracuse ahead before the largest crowd (40,817) to watch a game in ancient Archbold Stadium.

In the second period State tied it 7-7 on a 45-yard run by Don Jonas and the fans looked forward to another spinetinger.

Syracuse added two touchdowns in the third quarter on a 60-yard pass interception by Mark Weber and Don King's two-yard plunge.

When Syracuse held the Lions on the one early in the fourth quarter the outlook wasn't very bright.

Refusing to crumble, State fought back and forced Syracuse to punt on the next set of downs.

A poor kick gave the Lions the ball on the Syracuse 20. Six plays later with 7:59 left, quarterback Galen Hall rolled out to his right and flipped to Dick Pae in the end zone for a touchdown.

Hall went around end for two extra points and the score was 21-15.

Syracuse desperately controlled the ball and the hungry Lions didn't get a chance until just 2:24 showed on the clock.

Actually it wasn't much of a chance because the Orange line was getting mighty stingy and the ball was on the Lion 11.

Two pass plays failed so on third down Hall dipped into his bag of tricks. He sent Sam Sobczak into the line on a draw play, but some beautiful faking caught Syracuse off guard.

While Sobczak was plunging into the line, Hall handed off to Jonas coming around from the left side.

Jonas lifted a perfect pass which Bob Mitinger caught on the Syracuse 42 for a first down.

Only 1:12 remained now. Hall immediately began filling the air with passes but the first two were incomplete.

On third down Jonas broke into the open on the Syracuse 26 and Hall's pass was perfect for another first down. On the next play Hall fired another completion to Eddie Caye on the 12.

By this time the huge gathering was on its feet staring unbelievably at the drama on the field.

Hall chose the airways again and the Syracuse rooters gasped as Caye took a pass near the sidelines on the two-yard line.

One referee motioned that Caye was in bounds when he caught the pass but he was overruled by a fellow official.

So it was second down and 38 seconds were left. Hall decided to cross up the Syracuse defenses by running and picked up eight yards even though he lost his shoe in the process.

He asked for a timeout to stop the clock but the officials refused. The clock was running so the shoeless Hall tried to hit Jonas in the end zone. It was incomplete.

Now it was fourth down and there were seven seconds left. Hall calmly barked the signals. Mitinger was the target in the end zone. Art Baker was defending on the play and he just managed to bat the pass away to save the game for Syracuse.

Pandemonium reigned on the Syracuse side of the field while lumps grew in the throats of the Lion rooters. Once again Penn State's finest moment came in defeat.

Baer Says Lion Stickmen Gave Navy Eight Goals

By DEAN BILLICK

Earnie Baer, who has suffered through four losing lacrosse seasons at Penn State, isn't giving up on his team yet despite its 16-5 opening day loss to Navy last Saturday.

"I have every bit of confidence in this team," he said yesterday. "I know we have the ability to be a real good team."

"Our trouble at Navy," Baer said, "was that we gave them at least eight goals. We were just like the Penn State baseball team. We made eight errors and everyone of them cost us a score."

"The 16-5 score may sound bad on paper," he said, "but actually it is a vast improvement over recent years. Last year Navy had us 12-0 at halftime and played their 'rinky-dinks' the rest of the game. This year, the score was only 7-2 at halftime and Navy used their first unit the entire game."

Navy's win over the Lions was their 31st straight and State's 10th loss in a row. The Lions' last win was an 8-3 verdict over Loyola in their opener last year.

The Lions play Loyola Saturday and Baer is looking for a win. "I know we have a better team than Loyola," Baer commented as he watched his team on the practice field yesterday. "I think we learned a lot at Navy and should profit from our mistakes."

Loyola will be quite a change from Navy. The Greyhounds are loaded with sophomores and freshmen and there isn't a senior on the team. Coach Charley Wenzel has only four lettermen on hand and two of these are sophomores.

The Greyhounds started strong with a 15-8 win over Ohio State but since then have dropped decisions to Cornell, 10-2, and Washington & Lee, 14-6.

Although Baer wasn't disappointed with the Stickmen's showing Saturday, he is planning a couple of line-up changes. Defensive standout Andy Lockhart suffered a charley horse and won't be used Saturday unless it responds to treatment.

Besides Lockhart, Baer said he might make a couple changes in the midfield and possibly one in the attack. "I don't want to say who they will be until tomorrow," Baer said.
